Senate Passes Bill Drafting Men Aged 21 to 31; Worst Raid of War Harries London All Night; Rumania Clears Border, Reports Soviet Threat

Ten English Towns Bombed, Civilian Toll Reported High; Russians Said to Bar Any Cessions to Nazi Satellites

The War Today

STEPPED-UP AIR WAR brings London and Berlin alike their longest and heaviest raids of the war; Nazi bombers pound London for more than seven hours, range over England and Wales in perhaps the most destructive night attacks thus far; Berlin hears R. A. F. bombers flying over the capital for almost three hours, leaving at least one huge fire on the outskirts.

WORRIED RUMANIA draws auxiliary troops back from the Russian frontier as a joint commission investigates bloody week-end incidents and Bucharest hears rumors of a Russian invasion threat should Rumania submit to Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial demands.

HUNGARY AND RUMANIA exchange bitter recriminations over alleged frontier violations by military planes, as their foreign ministers answer an Axis summons to Vienna to get orders from German and Italian foreign ministers.

ITALIAN BOMBERS raid Port Said on the Suez Canal, after two nights of British raids on Fascist plane factories.

After-Dinner Show

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Aug 29. Roaring waves of German warplanes lashed London overnight with explosive, incendiary and "scream" bombs in the longest and heaviest air attack of the war against the world's largest city.

The sprawling capital and heart of empire was in a state of siege for more than seven hours, as the raiders continued dealing death and destruction into the pre-dawn hours.

The Nazis carried their attacks to other parts of the British Isles throughout the night and, when final reports are in, they might prove the worst yet experienced by the British.

One raider dropped six high explosive bombs over a northeast town, killing one woman and injuring several persons seriously; four bombs were dropped in one

Balkan Medley

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Rumania, Aug. 28.—Withdrawal of certain Rumanian army units, supply depots and state institutions from the Russian frontier toward the interior of this country was disclosed tonight in an army communique.

The announcement said the bulk of the army and all government authorities will now "remain where they are."

There have been numerous reports that Rumanian civilians and officials were quitting the southern Bucovina and Moldavia areas, which now are surrounded by Russian troops.

Russia, it was learned in official circles, reassured Rumania through her Minister in Moscow that she wanted to avoid border incidents as much as Rumania.

[The United Press, however, reported unconfirmed Bucharest ru-

Billion WPA Funds Won't Last Year

Cash Congress Hoped Would Care for Needs Till July Will Be Gone by March 1

By George Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

The work relief fund of nearly one billion dollars that Congress gave the WPA in July with the hope it would last through June will be all gone by the end of February, The Post learned yesterday.

In spite of an unusual summer rise in employment owing to the national defense drive, the WPA rolls are not shrinking and are, on the other hand, rising.

Granted $975,650,000 by Congress for the fiscal year 1941, WPA was told it would be legal to spend it all in eight months but was requested to try to stretch the money over 12 months.

This will be done. The Post learned, unless some unforeseen development like involvement in war or a much more extensive draft than is now planned should occur.

Request For Funds Foreseen

Though WPA officials refused to say whether they would ask Congress in the coming months for a deficiency appropriation, it was believed in other well-informed quarters that the request would be unavoidable.

One source of WPA's woes, it was learned, is that the national defense drive has not been the help it was expected to be.

With the rolls now carrying 1,088,647 persons, the waiting list of persons eligible but unable to get on the rolls is more than one million, at the highest point since the recession of late 1937.

All this has happened in the face of rising employment throughout the Nation, as registered by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

These figures show that nonagricultural employment gave jobs in July to 35,600,000 people, more than a million better than the figure for the same time last year.

In the usually slack month of

'Chip' Robert's Firm Gets Big Share of Defense Fees

Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, yesterday inserted in the Congressional Record statistics on negotiated Navy Department contracts, showing that Robert & Co., Atlanta, got 8 out of 66 awards.

The estimated cost of the eight projects involved, the compilation showed, was $26,659,081, and the Robert & Co. fees totaled $931,560, representing percentages ranging from 2.8 to 4.5 per cent of individual contracts.

Robert & Co. is the engineering and architectural firm of Lawrence Wood (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee.

The House Naval Affairs Committee called for the information on Robert's contracts after two members, Representatives Beverly M. Vincent (Democrat), Kentucky, and Colgate Darden (Democrat), Virginia, questioned Rear Admiral Benn Morrell, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, about the negotiated contracts of the Navy Department.

Plan Drafted To Train CCC In Mechanics

Enrollees Would Be Taught Radio Work And to Service Planes and Tanks

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A plan for conversion of a greatly enlarged Civilian Conservation Corps into a reservoir of trained young mechanics and artisans for national defense and for industry is now being prepared for presentation to the President.

Details of the plan have been practically perfected at a series of conferences between key Congressmen and associates of the President's National Defense Commission. Final recommendations will be laid before Mr. Roosevelt on his return here.

Increase of from 50 to 100 per cent in CCC camps and enrollees is contemplated. Present relief requirements for camp entrance would be lifted to place enrollments on a strictly voluntary basis. Strictly military training would be barred.

Tentatively, proposals call for an increase in the number of camps by 800 and in the number of enrollees by about 160,000. Camps at present number 1,500 with around 300,000 enrolled.

Need for the change stems from both national defense requirements and vocational training benefits to the enrollees and to industry, according to Congressional spokesmen who consulted the President before initiating the move.

They stressed that no actual militarization of the CCC is planned. The camps would be completely divorced from the Army, although mechanical and other training supplied would be of vital concern to national defense. Sponsors said there will be no conflict with organized labor.

Instruction to be provided calls for:

Training of mechanics for trucks, tractors, tanks and other

Two Votes Defeat Move To Try Volunteer System; Amendment Permits Seizing Of Plants Refusing Orders

(Draft Roll Call, Page 4; Text of Bill, Page 14.)

Post Staff Writer

The Senate last night passed the military training bill, subjecting the young men of the Nation to the first peacetime conscription in American history.

A decisive 58-to-31 vote ended the bitter controversy which had occupied the Senate for three weeks and sent the measure to the House. Action there is looked for within the next two weeks.

Before voting to conscript man power, the Senate added a far-reaching provision to the bill authorizing the drafting of industry if defense officials deem it necessary.

The amendment was approved 69 to 16, after opponents of the man-power draft taunted backers of the bill with being willing to conscript "flesh and blood" but not property. They called it a "second step toward dictatorship" but "consistent with the rest of the bill."

Voluntary Enlistment Loses by Two Votes

Administration leaders beat down several moves to delay the drafting of men, pending a trial to determine if voluntary recruiting would produce the troops required. One of these lost by the slender margin of 43 to 41.

Under the terms of the bill, some 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, are required to register for the draft. They would be liable to a year's training and could be sent for service anywhere in the Western Hemisphere or American possessions.

Plans of the Army, presented before Congress, call for drafting 400,000 men this fall in four increments beginning October 15. An additional 400,000 would be called next April, and like numbers in succeeding years. By 1945—when by its terms the bill would cease to operate—the Nation would have a force of 4,000,000, including the reserves of men who have completed their year's training.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, recently stated that an army of this size at least was necessary for defense of the Western Hemisphere.

Men with dependents, Army officials say, will be exempt from draft during peacetime, while others whose civil employment is necessary for the "maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest" would likewise be deferred. Local draft boards would pass on such exemptions. Selection for military service of men not deferred would be by lot. Not more than 900,000 drafted men could be

Guard Bill Is Signed By President

Mobilization Expected to Begin Next Month

By Bertram D. Hulen.

The bill authorizing the mobilization of the National Guard and other Army reserves for one year's active service has been signed by President Roosevelt and is expected to be placed in operation next month, in accordance with plans long matured in the War Department.

Satisfied that the measure contained no "jokers," the President signed the bill before he left for Hyde Park Tuesday night, it was announced by the White House yesterday. No statement was issued on it, but as soon as the War Department is ordered by Mr. Roosevelt to put it into effect, the switch will be thrown on machinery to call out the men.

The Guardsmen and reservists may be assigned by the President to serve anywhere in the Western Hemisphere and in the Philippine Islands.

The President also signed the bill authorizing the commissioning of aviation cadets in the line of the Navy each year. The number will be determined by the Secretary of the Navy.

The National Guard and reserve measure is part of the Government's ramified plan for putting the entire military training program into effect. Under the War Department's schedule the first contingent of the National Guard will be called into service on September 15 and thereafter a stagger system will be used with increments of the selected service recruits to be ordered into service by January 1 and placed in military training with the National Guard and the Regular Army.

The plan calls for 50,000 guardsmen being called out on September 15, and one month later the calling up of 50,000 more guardsmen, together with a draft of 75,000 men for training under selective service. More of the selective service re-

Protect Draft, Willkie Urges

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 28.—Wendell L. Willkie recommended today that Congress protect exemptions under the conscription bill from political influence and place authority to determine them in the hands of local authorities.

The Republican Presidential nominee told reporters that local draft boards should determine exemptions because "under that system the administration of the act would be both local and free of politics."

He did not amplify that statement.

Asked whether some provision also should be made to insure that men drafted under the legislation retain their right to vote, Willkie replied affirmatively.

Willkie announced that he had telegraphed congratulations to Senator Hiram Johnson, who yesterday won California's Democratic, Republican and Progressive nominations for another term.

After praising Johnson as a "true progressive," Willkie told reporters that "I wouldn't be surprised also if the people of California were not somewhat resentful of the purge."

His reference was to President

Berlin Bombed For 3 Hours

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Thursday), Aug. 29.—High-flying British air raiders swept over the German capital repeatedly early today, causing damage which in the first cursory checkup showed one house bombed and burned in the southeast section.

Berliners were kept agitatedly awake for almost three hours until the all-clear signaled them back to bed.

German authorities said reports of damage were not coordinated immediately, but that the most serious damage seemed to be the destruction of the one house, the flames of which lighted the sky for some time.

[The New York Times said one person was killed and ten injured when a bomb exploded in the populous Cottbusser Strasse in southeastern Berlin. Windows of every house in the block were shattered by the blast and the sidewalk was covered with broken glass and doors were torn from their hinges.]

Vienna Greets Balkan Envoys

By the Associated Press

Vienna, Aug. 28.—Germany and Italy, in their chosen role of "creators of a new Europe" and "peacemakers" in the Balkans, rushed diplomatic shock troops to this former Austrian capital tonight for a four-power conference intended to fashion an Axis-style appeasement of the disquieting Rumanian-Hungarian dispute over Transylvania.

In the old Belvedere Castle, once the residence of Austrian Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg, the Axis diplomats tomorrow will exercise their "united weight" to bring Rumania and Hungary together. Those were the words chosen by the authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, to describe the nature of the proceedings.

Tonight the route from the airdrome to the Hotel Imperial was lined with cheering crowds greeting the vanguard of the diplomats, the Italian and German foreign ministers and their associates.

The German wireless minimized recent Russian-Rumanian border incidents, and said it was not likely "anything further will result."

However, there was an unmistakable air of urgency both in the number of Axis diplomats sent to Vienna and the speed of their assembly.

How Do Draftees Feel About Conscription?

Previous Gallup Polls show the country as a whole favors compulsory military training: 64% voted for it in July; 67% in August. But how about the men most likely to be affected—are they in favor of conscription? The Gallup Poll in Friday's Post brings you the votes of men between 21 and 31.

Boy, 8, Wounded In Arm by Bullet

Eight-year-old Donald E. Watkins, of 26 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., was wounded in the right arm late yesterday as a .22-caliber rifle bullet was exploded. He was reported to have pounded it with a hammer.

Takoma Park police said the youngster was playing with Thomas DuBay, 11, of 117 Willow avenue, Takoma Park, at the latter's home when the accident occurred.

Driver Surprised! Reflecting Pool Was Not a Street

Jesse M. Schwartz, of Bloomington, Ind., drove down Seventeenth street in the fog and the rain. He looked toward the Lincoln Memorial and thought the vista was a broad avenue. He turned right and was astounded when his car jumped into 2 feet of water—the reflecting pool.

That occurred early yesterday morning. Some time later park police found the car abandoned in the pool. It was after this that Schwartz arrived to claim the machine and explain how it got there. He was allowed to go on his way, which was across the Arlington Memorial Bridge.

3 Nazis Took Oslo, Says Son Of Dr. McCartney, Now in U.S.

Benjamin McCartney, 24, son of Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, who went to Norway to visit friends and was caught in the German invasion, landed at New York yesterday on the American Legion.

McCARTNEY

"Three men took Oslo," he told the Associated Press. "Three parachute troopers dropped in the heart of the city and with several Norwegian police took command of the public square. Shortly afterward an armored truck appeared, and then about 600 soldiers."

The Germans, he said, dropped only one bomb on the city, "and that, probably, only as a warning." The Fornebo Airport outside Oslo was bombed by the British on 14 consecutive nights, McCartney declared, describing the flash of antiaircraft batteries as "greater than any fireworks display I ever saw on the Fourth of July."

The Norwegian army, he said, might have put up a stiffer defense if Oslo had been forewarned of the invasion and had thus been given a chance to evacuate its civilian population.

His mother was at the pier when the American Legion docked.

Affianced Virginia Couple to Adopt 2 Refugee Boys

An Arlington couple will be married Saturday, and a few weeks later they'll become foster-parents of two British refugee children.

Miss Nellie Spencer, 30, of 4441 North Nineteenth street, and her fiance, George C. McIntosh, 33, who lives a few doors away at No. 4431, at first had planned to adopt one of the war-menaced children. Later, however, on learning that the child's brother was to be sent to a family in Montgomery County, they decided "it's a shame to separate them," and arranged to welcome the two brothers, 7 and 9 years of age.

What Conscription Means to You

Reemployment of Draftees Still an Issue

Constitutionality Doubted on Law To Compel Rehiring

Demobilized Men Could Sue Interstate Employers for Jobs

By George Thorpe,
Post Staff Writer

Whether a trainee must sacrifice his job security to serve in the country's armed forces is one of the cloudiest issues of conscription today—despite action in both houses of Congress, conscription today.

The bill as passed last night by the Senate does not assure the conscript reemployment at his old job, and there is a serious doubt that any law attempting to do so would be constitutional.

The Senate bill directs employers in interstate commerce to rehire draftees at the conclusion of their military service, unless the former's circumstances have so changed as to make it "unreasonable or impossible." Federal employes are guaranteed reemployment. As to employes in intrastate commerce, the legislation merely states that it is the intent of Congress that draftees shall be reemployed, the Federal Government having no power to force such action in their case.

In case of a refusal by interstate employers to reemploy the draftee could file suit in a Federal court to get his job back. District attorneys are directed to act as his attorney in such cases.

These are some of the questions which complicate the problem: What change of circumstances made reemployment "impossible or unreasonable" from the employer's standpoint? What about the person who would fill the place of the absent conscript? Would district attorneys' offices be able to handle the tremendous burden of fighting "job guarantee" cases and still keep abreast of their regular criminal dockets?

There was another question, perhaps the most important of

Man Hurt in Fall From Window

Frank F. Townsend, 58, of 1630 Argonne place northwest, was injured critically last night when he plunged four stories into the courtyard of the Cavalier Hotel, 3300 Fourteenth street northwest.

Townsend had been visiting his sister, Mrs. William Seals, at the hotel. Seals said his brother-in-law had been sitting in the bathroom window when he fell over backward. Seals grabbed at a leg and a friend clutched another, but they were unable to save him.

Over the Coffee

GILT OFF THE DOME

BAD EXAMPLE: As a father of small children myself, I feel impelled to sound a warning to fathers and mothers: Don't take your impressionable tots to the Senate galleries during the conscription debate now going on.

Harlan Miller

If you do, the kiddies will pick up all sorts of bad manners from which they won't recover in years. They'll learn to snarl and call names, to act smarty and use impolite tones, they'll even pick up some naughty words. At the moment it's safer to take 'em to a wrestling match or a pool hall.

SENATOR PERILED: First of the United States Senators to adopt some British refugee children for the duration or two years is Senator Guy Gillette, who with Mrs. Gillette has signed up to take two and made his deposit of $63 each. They'll come to the Gillettes sight unseen.

Senator Gillette has been one of the more cautious Senators on the issue of extending Britain all aid short of war.

* * * *

One of his close friends, jollying him about the aquisition of the two English tots, warned him that if the two little ones turned out to be more than he'd bargained for, he might be influenced to extend England decisive aid so as to terminate the war and make it possible to send them back home.

"—no place for polite children"

HOLD THE VICTUALS: At a rather solemn little gathering at one of the legations whose country is being taught to goosestep in the Nazis' chain gang, I ran into a lovely Dutch girl, just over from the wars, whose dazzling eyes were easier to follow than her English.

Although she has dozens of relatives and hundreds of friends in Holland and other countries where the cupboard has been bare since the Nazis came, she is adamant that no food should be sent to the Nazi-occupied lands to relieve the famine. She feels that most of her friends would prefer to go hungry than to help the Nazis win the war with relief food.

IMMORTAL SPEECH: To my delight, I discover that it is possible to obtain phonograph records of Senator Lister Hill's matchless speech putting Roosevelt in nomination at Chicago. This is a speech which should be preserved under glass on every mantelpiece in Dixie.

* * * *

The radio chains make transcriptions of all their broadcasts, and are quite willing to sell the records.

A story is going the rounds that Senator Hill, up for several sleepless nights while preparing the speech, finally took a sleeping pill so he could get a nap before the big night. As he delivered it the effects of the pill had not worn off.

BUTTON BAN: Now the tale is going the rounds that at the defense offices, staffed largely with affluent $1-a-year men, they have been forced to adopt a regulation that Willkie buttons shall not be worn during working hours.

* * * *

This story, of course, is merely a legend, apocryphal and untrue; but it illustrates that the offices of Knudson and Stettinius are filled with men who'd rather be defending Willkie than Roosevelt.

* * * *

An Army officer who was high in our Tank Corps during the last war phones to tell me that one of the Senators now loudest in denunciation of the conscription law got a son enlisted in the tank corps in 1917 just in time to avoid the draft.

* * * *

Then, just before the young man's tank unit was due to sail for France, after months of training, the Senator showed up at tank headquarters and put on the pressure to have him given an honorable discharge on some flimsy pretext so he wouldn't have to go overseas.

This gives you a rough idea of the bitterness of the debate.

Senate Row Seen as Profits Tax Nears House Vote Under Gag Rule

Balloting Is Due Today With Debate Limited to 2 Hours

By John B. Oakes

Post Staff Writer

A storm over the excess-profits tax bill appeared yesterday to be brewing in the Senate as the House prepared to whisk the measure through today under extreme gag rule.

Action taken yesterday by the House Rules Committee insures that the bill will be voted on after only two hours of general debate today. No amendments except those proposed by the Ways and Means Committee will be permitted.

Representative Sabath, of Illinois, veteran chairman of the Rules Committee, observed that "its one of the toughest rules I've ever voted for," but he indicated that the decision to impose the gag rule was unanimous.

Senate Row Seen

Under a rate revision approved Monday by the Ways and Means Committee, the measure would now weigh more heavily on some large consumers' goods corporations than it would have in the form tentatively agreed upon three weeks ago. It is expected to yield $300,000,000 the first year of operation, and perhaps $700,000,000 annually after that.

Although no trouble is expected when the bill comes before the House today, it was indicated yesterday that powerful Senate opposition to the new rates is not unlikely. One influential Senator declared that the revised schedule represents "an entirely new proposition" while another asserted that the House Committee has made "a drastic change in the philosophy of the original measure."

On the other hand, the opinion was expressed by a third Senator that "if there is going to be any change in the bill as it comes from the House, it will be in the direction of raising the rates." It was recalled that the La Follette bill imposing much heavier excess profits taxes passed the Senate in June with a 10-vote margin (but was defeated in conference).

Hearings Next Week

In any case, Senate hearings on the new bill will be held next week—a departure from original plans. Members of the Senate Finance Committee had sat in on the House hearings for the express purpose of expediting action; but Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee held it would be only fair to hold brief additional hearings because of the changes in the bill.

In addition to the excess-profits levies, the bill contains sections that would suspend the Vinson-Trammell Act limiting profits on airplane and warship contracts and permit five-year amortization of new plants built for national defense purposes.

Insisting on linking these three measures in one bill, Administration spokesmen have contended that speedy passage is essential because armament contracts have been delayed by businessmen waiting for enactment of the amortization provisions. As recently as Tuesday, President Roosevelt implicitly criticized Congress for its delay.

This point of view, however, was bitterly disputed yesterday by Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, who declared to the Senate that "there is not a word of truth" in the contention that new law is necessary to set up the required amortization provisions.

Assails "Buck-Passing"

"It is not worth while for the Treasury of the United States or anybody else, including the press of the country, to try to pass the buck to Congress," roared the Georgia Senator. "The Treasury today can enter into an agreement amortizing over a period of years any plant or any facility that wishes to take a contract to provide for the national defense."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, later observed to reporters that Senator George's contention "cannot be easily ignored." The former candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination declared his opposition to any effort to rush through the excess-profits bill on grounds of "emergency." Pointing out that the proposed taxes could not be collected before next year in any case, he urged splitting the tax features of the bill from the profits limitation and amortization provisions.

In view of the expected Senatorial discussion, it was thought unlikely that the measure will become law much before the end of next month. At that time Congress may adjourn.

Protect Draft, Willkie Urges

Roosevelt's recent comment that Senator Johnson no longer could be considered a liberal.

"It is fortunate that the people of California are able to recognize a true progressive even though some others may not," said Willkie's telegram.

"You fellows can define who the 'some others' are," Willkie told reporters with a grin.

"Senator Johnson, for some 35 years has been one of the outstanding true progressives," he went on. "The President's attack on him probably helped him."

Willkie said he could not say which Presidential candidate Senator Johnson would support, but added that "it seems to me there is one person he couldn't support very well."

As he sat on the grass under apple and oak trees, in the backyard of his newly rented home, Willkie said he had read that the President said there was no more reason to release a report of the former War Resources Board than to publish plans of the Civil War.

The Republican nominee, who had urged previously that the report be published commented:

"Perhaps the President should release it as a historical document. Even if it is history I'd like to have the pleasure of studying it."

The report drafted by the board headed by Edward Stettinius, jr., was filed at the White House several months ago.

Earlier, Willkie opened his Presidential campaign headquarters on Main street with a demand that President Roosevelt appoint immediately assistant secretaries for aviation in the War and Navy departments.

Following up previous criticism of the Administration defense program, Willkie issued a statement saying:

"In connection with my suggestion that there should be created a position in the Cabinet for aeronautics, I want to make another suggestion immediately. The President should appoint at once an assistant secretary for air in both the War and Navy departments.

"These positions have been vacant ever since the President came into office in 1933. The failure to fill them is in part the cause of the present lamentable situation with reference to our aeronautical development.

"At the time he (Roosevelt) declared he was not making these appointments 'in the interest of economy.' I doubt if in view of the subsequent expenditure of $80,000,000,000 by his Administration that is a valid excuse for continuing the vacancies which would cost $24,000 a year to fill."

Willkie completed six days of conferences in New York yesterday and flew to Indianapolis, from where he motored to Rushville in an hour.

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated James F. T. O'Connor, of California, former Comptroller of the Currency, to be a United States district judge for the Southern District of California.

O'CONNOR

If confirmed by the Senate, he would fill a vacancy created by the death last July of Judge William P. James.

O'Connor, a one-time law partner of former Senator Williams Gibbs McAdoo, of California, resigned as comptroller in 1938 to seek the Democratic nomination for Governor of California. Since then he has engaged in private law practice.

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Chairman Edward J. Flynn, of the Democratic National Committee, says Wendell Willkie's suggestion that a Secretary of Aeronautics Cabinet post be created was "turned down by three Republican Presidents" after experts advised against it.

Challenging the Republican Presidential nominee's qualifications as a military expert yesterday, Flynn said:

"If a layman can make such a decision in such an offhand way as Mr. Willkie did, it is rather remarkable. He implies that he will effect the change when and if he is elected President. It does seem to me that Congress determines such matters."

Johnson Swamps Opposition; Virtually Assured of 5th Term

Veteran Californian Recently Criticized By Roosevelt Nominated by 3 Parties; Bilbo Defeats White in Mississippi

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—Hiram W. Johnson's clear-cut three-party victory over a whole string of opponents in yesterday's primary virtually assures the silver-haired Senator a fifth term.

Only recently referred to by President Roosevelt as neither a liberal nor a progressive, Johnson received almost twice as many votes as the combined tally of the ten other candidates for the Republican, Democratic and Progressive nominations. His only opponent in the general election will be the Communist nominee, Anita Whitney, unless in the meantime others go on the ballot by petition or by the write-in process.

To the President's remark that he could not at present be regarded as either a liberal or progressive, Johnson replied, "The same old sham, the same old stiletto."

He won renomination on his own Republican ticket by getting almost five times as many votes as the other three in that race.

He took the Democratic nomination in a six-sided contest which apparently gave him more votes than the other five contenders received.

Republican totals in 12,976 of the 13,540 precincts gave Johnson 578,519; Lieut. Gov. Ellis E. Patterson, 51,786; John Anson Ford, Los Angeles New Dealer, 43,209, and Assemblyman Samuel W. Yorty, head of California's "little Dies committee," 31,909.

In the Democratic contest, 12,952 precincts gave Johnson 480,144; Patterson, 194,908; Ford, 168,452; Yorty, 72,365; Otto, 16,973, and James D. Meredith, 23,431.

All of California's 19 incumbent Representatives survived the primary. Four of the Democrats also won Republican nominations and seven Republicans likewise captured Democratic nominations.

Democratic Representatives Havenner, Tolan, Voorhis, Thomas F. Ford, Geyer, Sheppard and Izak will have Republican opposition in November.

In the Eighteenth District, where the seat was vacant, former Representative Byron Scott won the Democratic nomination and Ward Johnson the Republican nomination.

Bilbo Winner

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 28 (AP).—Senator Theo G. Bilbo's majority over former Gov. Hugh L. White in yesterday's Democratic primary for renomination to his second term passed 25,000 late today and White telegraphed congratulations.

"Being a good Democrat, I bow to the will of the majority," White said in a statement.

Unofficial returns from 1,531 of the State's 1,667 precincts tonight gave Bilbo 86,923 votes to White's 61,053. This included returns from every county, most of them being complete. Nomination is tantamount to election.

Representative A. L. Ford, the only Representative who had opposition for renomination, piled up more than a 2-to-1 vote over Kendall G. Rayburn in the Fourth Congressional District. The vote from 190 of 202 precincts was Ford 11,024, Rayburn 4,487.

S. C. Wants Prohibition

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 28 (AP).—Late returns today from the State's Democratic primary indicated a majority of South Carolinians desired to return to prohibition.

Unofficial returns from 1,347 of the 1,523 precincts showed that 162,540 voters favored discontinuance of the present law for legal sale of liquor and 110,994 wished it retained.

Five Congressmen who had opposition won renomination. The returns:

First District (193 of 198 precincts)—Mendel Rivers, 18,580; Alfred H. Von Kolnitz, 15,347.

Second District (234 or 248 precincts)—Representative Fulmer, 34,867; A. J. Bethea, 10,114.

Third District (312 or 327 precincts)—Representative Hare, 39,933; John Taylor, 20,116.

Hull Defends Trade Plan; G. O. P. Elated at Johnson's Victory

Secretary Assails McNary's Figures As Misleading

Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday defended his reciprocal trade program in a sharply worded rebuttal of criticism aimed by Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee.

As Democratic notables gathered in Des Moines for tonight's acceptance speech of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, New Dealers picked the McNary speech for points of conflict with the views of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard bearer.

Hull's first campaign fire was confined to McNary's trade program shafts. He called McNary's figures "misleading" and assailed "the theory that farmers can be saved by embargo tariffs."

Republican leaders in Congress meanwhile hailed the McNary speech as a potent bid for the farm vote, then rose in chorus of jubilation as Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, assured his reelection by running off with the Republican, Democratic and Progressive nominations for Senator in his home State's primaries.

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, Republican national chairman, said in Johnson's renomination "President Roosevelt's first purge attempt in the 1940 campaign has suffered ignominous defeat." Martin's G. O. P. colleagues saw the Johnson victory as "pointing the Republican trend."

Chairman J. William Ditter, of the National Republican Congressional Committee, said the California primary showed "that the strong tide of fundamental Americanism, which found expression in the 1938 Congressional elections, still is gaining momentum." Ditter said his analysis indicated a gain of eight Republican seats for California in the House, while all incumbent Republican members were renominated by comfortable majorities.

Senator Johnson himself, busy acknowledging the congratulations of Republican and Democratic Senators withheld public comment.

Administration Democrats meantime were gleefully holding a field day of comment on McNary's acceptance remarks and Republican leaders were just as noisy in its praise.

In the House, Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn offered to place McNary's speech in the Congressional record as a Democratic document if no Republican did so, but a Republican beat him to it.

In New York, Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn called it "one of the best Democratic speeches of the campaign thus far" and facetiously suggested that instead of debating the President, Willkie debate with McNary on the reciprocal trade program which McNary opposed and continued Federal hydroelectric power development which McNary approved.

Capper Praises Talk

Republican Senate colleagues of McNary vigorously denied there was any conflict of views. Typical of G. O. P. comment was a statement by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, who called it "a great speech and one which will be generally approved by the farming people of the West." Capper said he failed to see any divergence between Willkie and McNary on the reciprocal trade issue, stressing that "both want to hold the American market for the American farmer."

Some conservative Democratic eulogies mixed with the Republican praise of McNary. Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, said he considered McNary's address "the best made in this campaign," though he differed with him on his trade stand.

Secretary Hull, who has consistently remained aloof from politics, broke from cover on the trade issue in his press conference. Replying tartly to McNary, Hull said:

Hull Criticizes Embargo Tariffs

"I am sure it will be a matter of disappointment to the country to see that Senator McNary, instead of dealing with the existing acute problems and conditions in a modernized and constructive manner which is so urgently demanded, complacently falls back on antiquated and discredited nostrums such as the theory that the farmers can be saved by embargo tariffs. The Senator and his associates some years ago led the farmers into bankruptcy under the slogan of embargo tariffs."

Hull said that under Republican farm leadership, cash farm income fell in 1932 to the "ridiculously low level of $4,700,000,000, and declared farmers will remember that their income rose in 1939 to $7,700,000,000, exclusive of benefit payments. He quoted Wallace's remark that farmers are not "foolish enough to trade dollars for quarters" by cutting off imports.

Refugees Land, Tell of Radio Warnings Daily

American Legion's Captain Says, 'We Didn't See Any Mines'

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 28.—The United States Army transport American Legion, overloaded with 897 American refugees, royalty and diplomats, arrived safely home today after a voyage from Scandinavia marked by German radio warnings of mines in her path.

"But we didn't see any mines," said the ship's veteran skipper, Capt. Bror E. Torning in describing the voyage from Petsamo, Finland, past Northern Scotland and across the Atlantic.

"Germany gave us plenty of warning daily from the 17th of August until noon yesterday, when we heard the last broadcast which said we had run short of fuel and food and that the Navy had come to rescue us."

Broadcast Amused Princess

He said the broadcasts amused Crown Princess Martha of Norway, who, with her three children, was a passenger.

"None of us got excited," the captain added, "we have 10,000 pounds of food in the ice boxes now and fuel enough to carry us to Petsamo and back again."

Because the course ordered by the United States Department took the ship through areas reputedly mined by Germany in her attempt to blockade Britain, there were two lifeboat drills a day. A double lookout was on duty 24 hours a day and Capt. Torning himself stayed round-the-clock on the bridge until two days ago.

The voyage was considered more perilous because Germany disclaimed responsibility for her safety on the course taken. The State Department, however, refused to change her route, contending the belligerents had been advised of her course and had assured her safe conduct.

Conveyed By Destroyers

The Norwegian royal family was taken off the American Legoin by a Coast Guard cutter down the bay—destroyers had convoyed the ship the last 500 miles—and greeted by a handful of persons at the Battery Rain made the greeting probably the most dismal New York had ever tendered visiting royalty.

The crown-princess said she had no idea where she would live. Tomorrow she will go to Hyde Park, N. Y., to visit President Roosevelt, who personally invited them to this country about four weeks ago.

"We made our escape from Norway in the very early morning," she related. "We went to a flying field near Hamar. It was a most harrowing experience, as we were bombarded en route. Of course, the King and my husband had more harrowing experiences than we."

She said she was convinced that Norway would be independent and free again.

Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, United States Minister to Norway who also was a passenger, praised the conduct of the American Legion's officers and crew. She said she might go to Washington tomorrow to report to the State Department.

Train Overturns, Eight Injured

Milbank, S. Dak., Aug. 28 (AP).—An attempt to detour a local passenger train of the Milwaukee Railroad around a wrecked freight ended in a derailment 20 miles west of here early today and injuries to at least eight persons.

Seriously injured were two transients, Roscoe Lecount, of Ligonier, Ind., and Dane Miller, of Mischawaka, Ind., who were caught between the cars when the engine, mail car and all but one of the passenger coaches overturned.

Three of the injured persons were released after treatment today, but five others remained at hospitals in Milbank and Webster.

Gems Found in Home Of Doomed Md. Slayer

Snow Hill, Md., Aug. 28 (AP).—Following a tip that "hidden gold" would be found in the former home of Arthur Collick, Stockton Negro, under sentence of death for killing a Worcester County farmer, Sheriff J. William Hall, said today he found approximately $150 worth of assorted jewelry.

Collick, 28, has been sentenced to be hanged at the State prison September 13. He was convicted of shooting to death Harvey W. Pilchard, 61, during a robbery last February.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills

34,000 Idle Rail Men Ready For Defense Jobs, Says Board

By Edward Ryan

Nearly 34,000 skilled railroad workers are ready to look for jobs in defense industries, the Railroad Retirement Board reported yesterday.

Their report was based on a questionnaire sent out shortly after the defense program started to 210,000 persons who had applied for railroad unemployment benefits.

They were questioned about their experience, education, citizenship, and also about their willingness to aid for jobs in key defense industries. Nearly half of the first 73,000 persons who sent in returns showed skills which might be valuable in the defense program, and most of them were willing to take a defense job anywhere in the United States.

The skilled group included 566 professional men and supervisors, 19,479 men with experience in mechanical crafts including nearly 4,000 machinists, and 13,682 transportation crafts, engineers, firemen, brakemen and trainmen.

The material has been turned over to the National Defense Commission, the report said. It added that since the railroads themselves are important for defense purposes, there was no intention to shift workers already employed by them to other industries.

Ships, not homes for the shipbuilders, must be constructed with the Navy's defense millions, the Comptroller General's office has ruled, it was learned yesterday.

Acting Comptroller General Richard N. Elliott ruled that the Navy speed-up bill, approved June 28, does not authorize the Navy to provide housing for its own personnel out of current appropriations. He added that it would not be legal for the Navy to have housing constructed by private shipbuilders using Government funds, who would collect the rents and credit them to the cost of warships.

His ruling was handed down after Secretary Knox asked whether housing for workers was authorized by a section of the Navy speed-up bill giving him authority to build and operate "necessary buildings, facilities, utilities and appurtenances" for the Navy's expansion program.

Elliott said that while the language of the act gave Secretary Knox "broad and comprehensive" authority, it did not disclose any legislative intent "that appropriations made for the construction or procurement of naval vessels, aircraft and other equipment and supplies for national defense should be available for building houses to be rented to workers engaged in the production of such national defense needs."

He pointed out that the same act set up methods for getting defense housing, by cooperation between the Army, Navy and United States Housing Authority. He added that a $100,000,000 item is pending in the second supplemental defense bill for the President to allocate for Army and Navy defense housing.

David K. Niles and Victor Sholis, aides of Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, intend to leave their jobs with their chief, it was reported yesterday. Niles, formerly with Hopkins at WPA, and Sholis, Chicago newspaperman, came into the department shortly after Hopkins was appointed in December 1938.

Jobs. New Civil Service exams have been opened up for the following positions: assistant marketing specialist (fruits and vegetables, canned or frozen), $2,600, and junior specialist, $2,000, Agriculture Department; specialist in conference planning, $4,600, Office of Education; physical director, $2,000, Veterans Administration; physiotherapy aide, $1,620 and $1,800, for the Public Health Service, Federal Security Agency, and Veterans Administration; senior scientific aide with experience in taxidermy, Smithsonian Institution; under mimeograph operator, $1,260, under laboratory mechanic for work with arms and munitions at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., $1,260.

Senate Passes Conscription Bill, 58 to 31

Also Votes to Draft Arms Plants Which Refuse U. S. Contracts

in the Army at any one time.

By the terms of the industry-draft amendment, power would be granted to the Army and Navy to take over factories necessary to the national defense in case they are unable to come to terms with owners as to arms orders.

Sponsors of the motion, Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, declared it was designed to guard against recently reported instances of contractors refusing naval orders to take British contracts because the former carry a profit limit of from 7 to 8 per cent.

The proviso states that "whenever the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy determines that any existing manufacturing plant or factory is necessary for national defense and is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of such plant or factory for its use or operation by the War Department or the Navy Department" the Secretary may institute condemnation proceedings against it and take over the plant immediately.

"With such provision as this in the law," Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declared, "you can go out in peace time and take over any business. The business interests of the country would have constantly hanging over their heads the threat that unless they complied with every thought and every wish of the Secretary of the Navy or the Secretary of War their business would be taken over."

Wheeler said that ordinarily he would strongly oppose such a plan, but that when you "pass peacetime conscription and say to the young men of this country you have got to give up the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness guaranteed by the Constitution" there can not be any excuse for not voting the same power over business.

Maloney Fears Fascism

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, called the vote the "most extreme delegation of authority we have ever given" in that no restrictions were placed on the Army and Navy heads or rules laid down limiting their discretion. Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, also opposing the move, declared:

"The next step is conscription of labor, and when we do that it is pretty useless to try to preserve democracy."

In the debate, Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, urged that Congress not only should grant the power to take over factories if they refused defense orders but also vote authority for the President to use the press and radio for propaganda purposes in time of war.

"We must fight the modern dictators with the same weapons which they use," he stated. "They use propaganda. If we are ever called upon to fight them I want to have every weapon they have—dive bomber, tanks weighing 90 tons and enough propaganda to keep our people strong."

Senator Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky, challenged Lee's statements, declaring the Government should "tell the people the truth."

Amendments Beaten

Successively during the day the Senate voted down amendments to delay conscription. One would have postponed any draft until Congress declared an emergency and was defeated, 55 to 27.

Another proposed by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, would have set up draft machinery, including the registration of men, but delayed any actual draft until January 1. During this interim an intensive campaign for voluntary recruits would have been conducted to fill the Army's quotas.

This was defeated 50 to 35. A somewhat similar proposal by Senator Hayden (Democrat), of Arizona, providing a delay of 60 days, gave Administration leaders a scare.

Majority Leader Barkley taking the floor to oppose it, noted that the 60-day postponement would delay any actual conscription until after the November elections. He called upon Senators to be "courageous" and reject a plan which others declared could not possibly operate to prevent the draft. It was defeated by two votes.

Profit Limits Imposed

Just before the bill was passed, the Senate amended it to apply the profit limitations of 7 and 8 per cent, now affecting the Army and Navy plants and shipbuilding, to Army ordnance contracts. This was agreed to by voice vote, after Administration leaders accepted it. Legislation repealing such profit restriction, backed by the Administration, is now pending in the House.

Senator Russell, in urging adoption of his proposal to draft industry, noted that a more far-reaching provision, applying only to the Navy, is already on the statute books. Written into the naval shipbuilding "speed-up" bill, passed June 28, it would give the Secretary of the Navy power to take over factories under similar circumstances and authorizes him through the courts to fix the compensation for the plant.

Senator Maloney said this measure was put in the bill by a joint conference committee "under, to say the least, peculiar circumstances." Others noted that a repealer of the proviso is carried in the $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill which comes before the Senate today.

Duding the debate over the proposal, Senator Wheeler told his colleagues to "watch the howl" of the "New York financial crowd backing the bill" when they hear about its adoption.

Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, termed the measure "socialistic" and Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, asked if American businessmen think they "can keep the orthodox patterns of business and escape the impact of war."

"I believe they do," replied Senator Taft, "but they are wrong."

Conscription Bill Sentiment Stirs Capitol Hill

GOLD STAR MOTHER HECKLED—While Mrs. G. W. Williams, of New Bedford, Mass., former president of the Gold Star Mothers, told Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, yesterday why she favored the draft bill, another woman "mourning" because of the prospects of conscription, stood above her on the steps of the Capitol and heckled. Asked by police to leave, she identified herself as Mrs. Olga Macomber, of Philadelphia, of the National League of Mothers of America, an organization which has been keeping a "death watch" on the conscription bill. Top—Meanwhile, Congressmen, determined to find out what the man on the street thinks about the measure, turned "inquiring reporters." nounced yesterday, the propaganda ministry before dawn started gathering foreign correspondents to take them to the damaged places.

Numerous searchlights which authorities said would have picked up the raiding planes at moderate height failed to light them up. At times, dozens of searchlights followed the courses of the planes as indicated by sound registering devices.

Many Flares Dropped

During the raid, most of Berlin's population of 4,000,000 took to shelters.

The rumble of heavy AA guns in the suburbs sounded like thunder. The noise kept up the entire time the fliers were over the city. Most guns in the heart of the city remained silent, however.

The raiders dropped many flares, some of which, in the west end of the city, promptly were obliterated by antiaircraft gunners.

Italy Again Bombed

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 28.—British bombs thundered upon Italy and Germany and parts of enemy-occupied France during Tuesday night as Royal Air Force raiders hammered the Fiat Works at Turin, the Marelli Magneto Factory at Sesto San Giovanni and German naval docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven as well as other factories and oil plants in Germany and France, according to an Air Ministry announcement tonight.

A large number of R. A. F. planes were believed assigned to the night's widespread raids, which included perilous 1,600-mile flights across France and over the Alps to Italy, but only one failed to return home, London officials said.

As on previous occasions, last night's attacks on Italy—the second within 48 hours—were made under bad weather conditions. Extremely low temperatures caused ice to form on the wings of the raiding planes and one bomber became so hampered with that extra weight that it was forced to call off its journey and return homeward.

Over Sesto San Giovanni cloud and ground haze increased the difficulties of the raiding flyers but they managed to locate the Magneto factory and hit it with high-explosive and incendiary bombs.

One pilot assigned to bomb the Fiat works at Turin had better luck. Upon his arrival there soon after midnight he saw a small fire burning in one of the main buildings which enabled him to identify his target. He dropped two salvoes of bombs, and according to his later reports, hit the chief part of the plant. Soon afterward other British raiders dropped incendiary bombs all through the area and a large fire broke out at once. The fire was clearly visible from a height of 15,000 feet, the air ministry said.

Besides the docks at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven, targets in Germany included a transformer station at Kelsterbach, near Frankfort, a Messerschmitt airplane factory at Augsburg and oil tanks and supply depots at Mannheim. Other points visited by the R. A. F. included oil tanks on the Gironde Estuary, near Bordeaux, at Tauillac, near Brest, and at Cherbourg.

Oil Stores Believed Hit

The air ministry said terrific explosions at Kiel resulted in tremendous fires which gave off clouds of black smoke indicating an oil storage field had probably been hit. Raiders arriving after the first wave had released their loads said they saw five separate blazes.

[The Germans said minor damage was caused to "apartment houses" at Kiel, only mention made of British raids in the Berlin communique.]

Fires were reported also during aerial attacks on oil tanks at Bec d'Armes, near Bordeaux, and at Pauillac, near Brest.

Job Security An Issue in Draft

all. Is this amendment constitutional?

Local lawyers and court officials expressed widely divergent views.

Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association, said that while he had made only a superficial study of the amendment he believed its constitutionality was questionable.

The proviso threatens with prosecution employers engaged in "inter-State commerce." It is debatable whether these employers could be prosecuted because the job-guarantee is unilateral in character and there is a "grave question" relating to employers in "intra-State commerce," he declared.

Henry I. Quinn, past president of the Bar Association, said the amendments should be effective if only from the standpoint of moral suasion.

Pointing to demobilization experiences of this country after the World War, Quinn said business heads reemployed the majority of their employe-service men from a sense of patriotism.

The same phychology exists today, the attorney declared, and would be even more persuasive when buttressed by the threat of prosecution.

Hill took occasion to reassert the Bar Association's support of selective service. Many members have volunteered to serve on the advisory legal boards necessary for classification, he said.

Asked if he foresaw an expansion of his office because of the increased case load, United States Attorney Edward M. Curran reserved judgment pending a study of the amendment and its effect on the District dockets.

An employer who asked his name be withheld said he would make every effort to reinstate employes who should be called up but declared there will be many cases when "it just won't work." He affirmed Hill's argument that special State statutes will have to be enacted if enterprises which do all their business within the bounds of a single State are to be made subject to the job guarantee.

Meanwhile, selective service experts pointed to other financial implication of the conscription bill.

Credit retailers would be barred from repossessing goods sold on the installment basis, except after court action, should conscripts be unable to meet payments. Violators would be subject to fines, imprisonment or both.

In actual practice, the courts would undoubtedly see to it that the vendor sustained as little loss as possible. The automobile retailer probably would be allowed to repossess a car upon refund of installments paid at the time of conscription, for example.

Trainees divorced or separated from their wives but who are paying alimony actually required for the wives' support would be exempted from the draft under the dependency section.

cruits will follow in the next two months. In the meantime, on November 15, from 66,000 to 75,000 guardsmen will be ordered out, and early in December 40,000 men.

The program calls for the mobilization of 12 National Guard divisions of a total strength of about 250,000 men. Three will be in contonments at Camp Dix, N. J., one on the Massachusetts military reservation at Falmouth, and a third at Fort Lewis, Wash. Others will be quartered in camps in Texas, Alabama, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Florida, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Under the act, guardsmen and servists below the rank of captain may apply for discharge if they have dependents, and all guardsmen under 18 will be discharged. The others may go into Federal Courts for redress if their employers fail to reinstate them, with loss of security, after the completion of their tour of duty.

Churchill Blamed For Chad Revolt

Vichy Admits East' African Colony Fights for Britain

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Aug. 28.—The French government acknowledged for the first time today the existence of a rebellion in French East Africa, and blamed it on British Prime Minister Churchill.

The extent and military significance of the movement, however, was not made clear.

The government charged the movement was fomented by Churchill with the aid of the "renegade" French Gen. Charles de Gaulle, London leader of "all free Frenchmen."

De Gaulle announced yesterday that Col. de Larminat, governor of Chad, French territory in the heart of Africa, had notified him Chad would fight on at the side of Britain. At the same time Churchill pledged economic aid to any French territory which keeps on fighting Germany.

A French government communique said today that "necessary measures" had been taken to meet the situation, but did not explain what they were. It added that "this is not the first time Great Britain has sought to extend her influence under the guise of economic collaboration . . . Churchill is seeking means to justify the blockade to which he has condemned the French civilian population, depriving them of their colonial products."

The government's statement said De Larminat went to British West Africa, after communicating with De Gaulle, and there issued a call for rebellion in French possessions.

It was not made clear whether the Chad rebellion had spread to other regions of French East Africa. Disorders were acknowledged in New Caledonia, French possession in the South Pacific, where the governing council was reported to have sided with deGaulle.

Reports of dissension in French Indo-China could not be confirmed here.

(The German radio reported today that Italian colonial authorities made light of the Chad developments, pointing out that the entire white population of Chad is less than 300 and that 1,000,000 primitive natives are not trained for war; also that Chad is only one of the four provinces of French Equatorial Africa, with no natural advantages recommending it as a base for military action against nearby Italian Lybia.)

D. C. Area Pilots Take Off Today To Aid British

JOIN CANADIAN AIR FORCE—Perry Boswell, jr., Hyattsville (Md.) civilian pilot, and Milton E. Anders (inset), of Washington, will leave today to join the Canadian air force. Both have received commissions as lieutenants and will probably be instructors

Commissioned as lieutenants in the Royal Canadian Air Force, two young flying enthusiasts from the Washington area will leave today for their new posts.

The pilots are Perry Boswell, jr., 24, of Hyattsville, Md., son of a former president of the Prince Georges County Commissioners, and Eddie Anders, 28, of the Maryland Courts Apartments, Washington.

Boswell, until recently, was associated with his father in the real estate business. A graduate of the Ryan School of Aeronautics, San Diego, Calif., he also attended Mercersburg Academy, Alabama Polytechnical Institute, University of Maryland and George Washington.

Anders is branch manager of the Jefferson Adjustment Bureau in the Standard Oil Co. Building. Both men own planes and have more than 500 hours of flying time to their credit.

Boswell said they expected to be assigned to the instruction staff after completing a six-week course in gunnery, radio, navigation and the rudiments of military aerial tactics. They will report to New York City today for instructions and then probably will be sent to Ottawa or Toronto.

The State Department, Boswell said, had assured them there was no danger of losing their citizenship so long as they did not swear allegiance to the British Crown or enter the combat zone.

2d British Ship Reported Sunk By Nazi Raider

'Armed Tanker' Victim; Guns on French Coast Hit 2 Subs, Berlin Says

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 28.—The sinking of the second British merchantship within a week by surface raiders operating in distant waters was announced today by the German high command, which said the 6,901-ton "armed" tanker, British Commander, had gone down in the Indian Ocean.

(Radio reports received in New York Monday from the British Commander said she had been stopped and shelled north of Madagascar by an unidentified ship.)

The high command announced last Saturday that a raider had sunk the 8,706-ton steamer Turakina in the Tasman Sea, between Australia and New Zealand, (announced two days earlier by the New Zealand government).

The distance between the two sinkings is some 7,000 to 8,000 miles.

The high command also reported the sinking of two British submarines in the English Channel by German naval artillery firing from the French coast, and huge fires started from bombings of British aircraft and motor works at Birmingham and Derby, and numerous ports.

Activity yesterday was extremely limited, it was said. Two British planes and one German were said to have been shot down.

German planes bombed an unnamed British airport at the mouth of the Thames today and eight British and three German aircraft were shot down in the battle that ensued, DNB, official German news agency, announced.

A great number of airplanes standing in front of hangars were the special target of the Germans who dropped explosives in their midst, DNB said.

"The airport was a scene of devastation," the agency added.

A British air raid on the naval base of Kiel resulted in the damaging of a number of apartment houses, the high command said.

Italy Reports Bomber Raid On Port Said

East African Post Of Italy in Flames, British Assert

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 28.—Vital Port Said, at the northern entrance to the Suez Canal and guarded by the British fleet, was bombed for more than an hour today by Italian warplanes.

The British Egyptian naval base at Alexandria, likewise, was raided, but it was declared that no bombs were dropped there.

The raid on Port Said, the first of the war, was acknowledged in a British communique which asserted that there were no casualties and no damage.

Nothing was said as to any Italian losses.

The British command also announced that a mechanized British patrol of Sudanese troops two days ago successfully raided the Italian frontier post of Adardeb in East Africa, inflicting "many casualties," and leaving the post in flames.

The official communique said an Italian raid on Haifa, Palestine, yesterday caused "negligible damage" with "a few casualties among civilians but none of them fatal."

In Rome, the Italian high command declared Fascist fliers violently attacked Haifa, hitting the railway station and a new oil refinery and causing large fires "everywhere."

Italy acknowledged, however, damaging British air raids from northern Italy to Ethiopia.

Fascists admitted the British bombed Derna, Libya, "in large numbers," hitting an Italian timber-carrying ship, and raided the northern Italian provinces of Piedmont and Lombardy.

A native hospital in Harar, Ethiopia, and a garrison hospital at Desaye were hit, the Italians said, as was a prison in Massaua, Eritrea.

Longest and Most Intense Air Raid of War

northeast town and 20 bomb explosions were counted in one southeast England point. The bombers raided at least ten towns in England, and were reported over Wales, as well.

The raid filled London's night with the crash of bursting bombs and the clang of fire engines rushing to blazes started by incendiary bombs.

After six hours of the drumfire of death and destruction, activity slackened a bit. However, Nazi planes kept playing hide-and-seek with searchlights and the air raid alarm remained in effect.

The continuous sound of German planes at the height of the raiding indicated clearly that the luftwaffe was sending over relays in greater force than ever before.

In mid-London, the crash of bombs was plainly audible from one direction after another, with continuous explosions heard from the north.

Thunder, Metal Hail

The whole scene was like a multiple thunderstorm—with a hail of metal from the A-A shells.

London's defense was the most spectacular of the war. The greatest concentration of searchlights ever seen here laced the sky with 100 beams, and antiaircraft fire resounded throughout the city.

Bombs were loosed upon at least two southeast towns and on one in the industrial Midlands. Reports from outlying sections reaching here clearly indicated that raiding Nazis were over these islands in the hundreds.

For one southwest town which bombs fell it was the sixty-second raid of the war.

Just before midnight four consecutive explosions from bombs were heard in the London area.

A deep, rolling series of heavy explosions was heard in one part of the city after searchlights had pursued a single raider across the sky.

There was a few moments of silence; then a second series of explosions rumbled from another sector, and brilliant flashes lit the horizon.

Within a few moments there again was silence and Big Ben could be heard chiming the hour of midnight.

Nazis Ahead of Schedule

The Germans came ahead of their self-set evening schedule. All the city's sirens howled a little before 9 o'clock last night about a half hour earlier than Tuesday night, and they were preceded by a 20-minute alarm in one outlying London area.

Just befort the alarm the air ministry, in a communique, stated that 24 German planes had been shot down up to 8 p. m., compared with British losses of 12 fighters. Four British pilots, however, were said to be safe.

The same communique said the raiders had tried to penetrate the central defenses all yesterday afternoon, but that their only important damage had been to a Thames Estuary town. The morning, also, had witnessed constant attacks in this pathway to London.

The Germans struck, too, in other areas of Britain yesterday but it was between the region of Dover and the Thames Estuary that their supreme efforts were made.

In a 30-mile wide corridor alive with shell and flame they centered the offensive, and along the Channel coast there occurred the first incident to suggest that the Germans in that offensive were not operating alone.

In the late afternoon a pilot baled out of a crippled attacking plane and as he fell slowly into the Channel watchers saw that his parachute was red and white and green—the colors used by Italian fliers.

The British officially announced that the attacks were "heavy," but made no mention of damage, except in one town on the Thames Estuary, where "some damage was done and a small number of casualties."

The Germans struck at England methodically yesterday. Early in the afternoon two waves of Nazi attackers—one of 18 and the other of 21 planes—broke through coastal defenses and howled away in the direction of London.

Formations Smashed

They were split and broken up, the British said, in two engagements, one of which roared on for half an hour from Middle Kent to the Thames. The residential section of a town was bombed in that fight and an apartment house was hit, but only three persons were hurt.

Other waves followed at intervals and at dark one Kent town had six times been attacked.

At least 10 persons were reported killed and one German plane brought down by antiaircraft in Tuesday night raids which ranged from Scotland to Wales, causing two air raid alarms in London, and hitting particularly four towns in the southeast and northwest.

Great numbers of incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped, but the government said damage was done only to houses, and that the attacks were "indiscriminate."

Billion WPA Funds Won't Last Year

July, employment in many lines has jumped, bringing the total 130,000 above June figures, a contraseasonal gain.

Defying summer slump traditions, factories have added 5,000 people, whereas last year they laid off 31,000 in July. In the construction industry, employment in July was up 75,000, in transportation and utilities the rise was 30,000, in mining 7,900, in aircraft 7,000, in plants making engines 3,100, in machine tools plants 1,600 and in the aluminum and explosives industry 1,000.

WPA, on the other hand, expects to employ 1,700,000 persons next month, 1,800,000 in October and 2,000,000 in November, reaching a midwinter peak of 2,300,000 in February, after which all their money will be gone.

Part of the reason for this, it was said, is that 65 per cent of WPA workers are unskilled, 16 per cent are semi-skilled and only 12 per cent are the skillled type in demand by defense industriaes. WPA is trying to remedy this by giving training and refresher courses in technical skills.

WPA officials have emphasized, in answer to attacks by Wendell L. Willkie, that the expected rise in the rolls this fall has nothing to do with politics.

The rising rolls during the coming months are in line with testimony presented to Congress as long ago as last April, Howard O. Hunter, acting WPA Commissioner, declared earlier this week.

"It is expected that if there is a continuance of the large number of eligbile persons awaiting assignment to WPA, further seasonal increases will be made in November, December and January, which is also in line with Col. F. C. Harrington's (Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA Commissioner) testimony," Hunter's statement said.

Present conservation activities would be continued and new stress would be laid on construction of emergency air fields.

To avoid conflict with similar training activities under the National Youth Administration a division is being worked out which would concentrate NYA training largely around the large industrial centers.

Legislators handling the Congressional end of the negotiations said that while some legislation may be needed, the conversion will be largely a matter of appropriation. How the plan would be financed has not been finally determined, but new appropriations of $200,000,000 each for the CCC and the NYA have been independently suggested. If legislation is needed to place enrollments strictly on a voluntary basis, without a relief need showing, it will be offered. Sponsors pointed out that with the rise in the industrial curve, CCC relief applications have been less heavy.

Contact man with the President's defense advisers on the move has been Representative James G. Scrugham, of Nevada, chairman of the House Democratic Steering Committee, although a number of House Appropriation Committeemen of both parties interested in the CCC have figured in the conferences, it was learned. Among those advising have been Edward R. Stettinius and Sidney Hillman, of the President's Defense Commission; Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, National Youth Administrator Aubrey Williams and CCC officials.

Stressing the value of mechanical training of youths of CCC age (17 to 21), Congressional sponsors pointed out that many of the youths would soon graduate into draft age, and whether they were called to posts of industry, Army or Navy, their training would be in demand.

It was pointed out that ten mechanics are required to maintain a single plane and a similar number for tanks, and that such basic mechanical training of youth enabled the Nazi tanks to break through in the battle of Flanders and France.

Rumania Clears Russian Border Zone

mors of a Russian note threatening to invade Rumania in "self-defense" should King Carol's government submit to Hungarian and Bulgarian demands for cession of territory.

[Submission to such demands, the Russian note was said to have declared, might force the U. S. S. R. to occupy the crest of the Carpathian Mountains, eastern border of the Transylvania province Hungary is demanding from Rumania.

[The Russian note, it was said, was being carried to the Vienna conference of foreign ministers of Italy, Germany, Hungary and Rumania.]

[All wire communications between Bucharest and various northern Rumanian provinces have been cut, the official Hungarian radio said tonight in a broadcast heard in New York by the National Broadcasting Co.]

Charges Magyar Attack

Preoccupied with Russia in the east, Rumania also had trouble in the west and formally accused the Hungarian air force tonight of "real acts of hostility," and announced that a Hungarian bomber had been forced down by antiaircraft fire after it had made a bombing and machine-gun attack on a Rumanian civil airport.

This incident, described in a sharp official communique as but one instance of repeated violations of "Rumanian national air space," occurred at Satu-Mare in Transylvania, the area demanded from Rumania by Hungary.

The government, saying it had adopted a policy of "force" to repel Hungarian incursions, likewise took responsibility for an attack on another Hungarian bomber yesterday.

That plane was declared to have crossed the Rumanian frontier at Sacueni and to have been crippled by a Rumanian pilot.

[On both sides of the disputed border of Transylvania, the country-side bristled tonight with infantry, tanks, artillery and bombers.]

The Rumanian government's communique—issued as Hungarian and Rumanian representatives prepared to meet with German and Italian mediators at Vienna tomorrow in the Axis' effort to settle Balkan affairs—was far from diplomatic in tone.

"Lately," it said, "Hungarian military planes on several occasions have violated Rumanian national air space . . . in spite of all our energetic protests . . ."

"In the face of this attitude measures have been taken to avoid by force these incursions. Yesterday at 12:25 p. m. a Hungarian bomber passed the Rumanian frontier at Sacueni and was engaged by a Rumanian fighter.

". . . the Hungarian plane was obliged to withdraw badly damaged and with the pilots wounded.

"Today flights were repeated by Hungarian planes which executed real acts of hostility. At 10:15 a. m. a Hungarian bomber F-225 used machine guns and dropped six bombs on the civil airport at Satu-Mare and damaged a hangar. There was no material loss because the airport had been evacuated.

"This plane tried to get back to Hungary but was forced by intense antiaircraft fire to come down on our territory near Carie. Hungarian aviators Capt. Janos Gyenes and Lieuts. Vietz Gutori and Gyula Foldes were arrested."

Rail Center Reported Bombed

[Diplomatic quarters in Bucharest reported that Hungarian planes also had bombed the city of Arad, a railroad center about 18 miles from the Hungarian-Rumanian border to the south, the United Press said. The railroad runs to the Hungarian city of Szezed across the frontier.

[If Hungarian bombs fell on Arad they endangered more the lives of Hungarians rather than Rumanians, because three-fourths of the city's 80,000 population is Hungarian.]

Earlier in the day a mixed Rumanian-Russian commission began an investigation of a frontier clash between Soviet and Rumanian troops said to have left hundreds dead in northern Bucovinia, the Rumanian province taken by Russia from Rumania by ultimatum some two months ago.

At the same time the Rumanian government confirmed reports that a Russian plane, in reconnaissance over Rumania yesterday, had been shot down. In still another aerial engagement of yesterday, two Soviet planes were reported shot down by Rumanian fighter craft.

These developments cast a new troubled light on relations between Rumania and her great neighbor to the east whose demands she sought to appease in June by ceding Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

Russia was reported to have intensified the strain by closing the frontiers of the occupied territory to prevent any return of Rumanians except under strict control. Thousands had fled before the advance of Red armies of occupation.

Rumania was said to be preparing a 'new proposal to meet Hungary's demand for return of war-lost Transylvania.

Balkan Diplomats Gather in Vienna

knowledged that any serious Rumanian-Russian frontier clashes would make quick settlement of the Balkan situation urgent from a German point of view.

Preservation of productive peace in southeastern Europe, where Germany has important trade treaties for war supplies, is a keystone of German policy.

In Rome, foreign observers believed fear a Rumanian-Hungarian conflict would open the way to Soviet expansion was one of the underlying causes of the swift diplomatic initiative of the Axis.

Hitler received Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano, who had flown from Rome, at a "preliminary" conference in the Fuhrer's Bavarian chalet, near Salzburg, today, and an imposing list of diplomats prepared to take part in the talks tomorrow.

Participating in a luncheon after the conference were German Foreign Minister Von Bibbentrop, Field Marshal Keitel, Reich Press Chief Dietrich and Italian Ambassador Alfieri.

Ciano, Ribbentrop, Alfieri and Hans Georg-Vixton Von Mackensen, German Ambassador to Rome, then took a plane to Vienna to meet Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu, of Rumania, and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky, of Hungary, and their aides.

It will be the Axis powers' second attempt to settle Balkan problems.

Following a round of individual talks among Balkan and Axis leaders last July, it was stated authoritatively in Berlin that Rumania and Hungary had been given instructions to negotiate and to settle their problems as expeditiously as possible.

But these negotiations, undertaken at Turnu-Severin on the Danube, broke down last Saturday after ten fruitless days. There followed immediate tension, with both nations stepping up defense preparations. The Russian-Rumanian clash occurred at the height of the tension.

German sources said the Turnu-Severin negotiations showed the Rumanian and Hungarian viewpoints were as diverse as the two poles and that "no immediate, direct understanding" could be reached—something which the highest interests of the Axis powers demand because they want to devote undivided attention to England.

The Hungarians demanded restoration of practically everything Rumania took away from her as a result of their World War treaty, or approximately five-sixths of Transylvania.

On the other hand, German sources say, the Rumanians wanted to begin with shifting their respective national minorities and then later to consider the cession of a narrow strip of territory.

Authoritative sources emphatically denied that Rome and Berlin intended to "arbitrate" this dispute.

Rather, they said, Germany and Italy will urge energetically that the two countries find a solution and will make suggestions for concessions until a concrete result is achieved.

Which Season is Best at The Homestead?
IT'S a matter of course with many families to spend Easter at The Homestead. Others come just as regularly for over Thanksgiving. But every day, all summer long, old and new friends arrive at this luxury hotel in the cool Alleghanies.
So we say, come when you can. In August and September you'll find all sports in full swing—and, incidentally, summer rates prevail until October first. Just let us know when to expect you.
If you will tell us what your sports interests are, we can give you a pretty comprehensive idea of the cost of your stay. There are few of the usual "extras," for The Homestead prides itself upon the utter completeness of its service.

Rex Beach Melodrama Has Lost Screen 'Punch'

"Flowing Gold," at Metropolitan, Finds Difficulty in Remaining on Straight Track To Susceptibilities of Current Audience

"FLOWING GOLD." Warner Brothers picturization of the novel by Rex Beach, adapted to the screen by Kenneth Gamet, featuring John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien, with Raymond Walburn, Clif "Ukulele Ike" Edwards, Tom Kennedy, the late Granville Bates, Jody Gilbert, Edward Pawley, Frank Mayo, William Marshall, Sol Gorss, Virginia Sale and John Alexander. Directed by Alfred Green. At the Metropolitan Theater.

HAD NOT THE WARNER BROTHERS so definitely allied themselves with Samuel Goldwyn in the matter, one might suspect that their new screen version of Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold"—first fabricated in celluloid by the same company some 16 years ago—had been made with the preconceived purpose of supplying the second half of any standard double-feature bill. Most certainly it is not Grade-A cinema. It is, however, easily first-class second-rate.

BELL

As everybody must know by now, the Beach fiction concerns the scramble for liquid wealth in the Texas oil fields. Its principal protagonists are two old rivals of the drilling grounds, each with his own gang of riggers and vagabond adventurers, intent upon plumping themselves, eventually, into the big money that spouts out of the ground once the drills have reached their proper and profitable depth. There is, of course, the stereotyped love affair between "the girl" and her dad's foreman and the fugitive from justice who performs yeoman's service on both sides of the land-lease battle, before the law catches up with him. But the whole thing lacks homogeneity and that singleness of purpose essential to strong dramatic fiber and consistent appeal to the risibilities of an audience, no matter how eager to be entertained.

"Flowing Gold" has a difficult time trying to make up its mind whether to be a comedy or an explosive sort of melodrama akin, more or less, to "Blackmail," the recent similar vehicle in which Edward G. Robinson dared the roaring blasts of a flaming oil gusher to salvage his fortune and bring retribution to his pet adversary. Some of the way the current picture is lightly amusing. Some of the rest of the way it is flamboyantly thrilling. The two elements, somehow, do not mix very much better than oil and water.

The cast of the new manifestation of the Rex Beach penchant for red-blooded action is composed of players who look better on paper than they act. Top honors, by every dictate of justice, go to Pat O'Brien, as the case-hardened foreman, who does not get the girl. That girl happens to be Frances Farmer, robbed by long absence from the cameras of something of the effectiveness she should possess. As the fugitive from the law, John Garfield has a part that permits him to exercise again many of the qualities he has displayed in earlier assignments. Even so, he does not quite succeed in making his character ring true—and this despite the fact that Miss Farmer is completely for him. In lesser roles, but still of prime importance to the unimportance of the play, are Raymond Walburn, Cliff Edwards, Tom Kennedy, the late Granville Bates, Jody Gilbert and numerous others who fail jointly to weld "Flowing Gold" into a film that is either golden or smoothly flowing.

American aviation is given a double shot in the arm in the supplementary features of the bill opening yesterday at the Metropolitan Theater.

The foremost auxiliary of the program is "Young America Flies," dealing exhaustively and in interesting fashion with the course of training that was planned to develop 10,000 aviators from our collegiate institutions in a year. Leland Stanford is selected as the typical school and an inspiriting story is evolved from its activities by a cast of professional players, headed by Jean Parker, Donald Woods, William Lundigan and Henry O'Neill. The second lap of the aerial inspiration is run in the newsreel, where heartening revelations are made of the progress being made in equipping the United States with a flying force that might give any potential enemy pause in his plans for attack. The two major party Presidential candidates also come in for their share of attention in the clips of the week's events.

The only other subsidiary on the new bill is "Patient Porky," a Looney Tune cartoon comedy that at least is not mechanized with all of the oil well machinery that clanks so persistently through the major feature.

The Young Lady Takes the Title Seriously

DANA DALE,

one of the Warner Brothers' youthful aspirants for screen note, assumes that frivolity is out and relaxes at the brink of a Hollywood swimming pool. Miss Dale is appearing in the screen version of "No Time for Comedy," the S. N. Behrman whimsy that served Katharine Cornell so well on the stage last season, and seems to have taken her author's titular word for it

Louella O. Parsons' Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 28 (INS).—Dorothy Lamour no longer needs a sarong to get people into the theaters. She's won her spurs on her own merit and that couldn't be more evident than it was today when Darryl Zanuck borrowed her from Paramount to play the role of Albany, the bareback rider, in "Chad Hanna." This is Dorothy's second appearance on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot. Remember she was the gangster's moll in "Johnny Apollo?" And a very good performance she gave, too. She'll have for her co-starring partner Henry Fonda with the beauteous Linda Darnell, Jane Darwell and John Carradine in featured roles.

PARSONS

Greta Garbo is buying a house in Hollywood and from a close friend of hers I learned that all of her money was by no means deposited in Sweden, that she has a tidy sum right in the U. S. A. She has taken out her first papers, as everyone knows, and will soon be an American citizen. I also learned from that close friend that her next picture is a comedy planned with an eye to the American public. Sixty per cent of the money formerly received from her pictures came from abroad. In her next movie she plays two roles. One a serious-minded young woman and the other a charmer. Sulka Viertel, her close friend, is preparing the script, and George Cukor has been engaged to direct. The starting date is set for as soon as the Swedish moviegale gives her approval.

After a bad siege of flu, Jimmy Roosevelt is now well enough to talk about his movie plans. He is in New York with his film, "Pastor Hall," and wires that he has borrowed Jimmy Stewart for "Pot of Gold." That's a very great feather in young Mr. R's. hat, for Jimmy is tops at the boxoffice. On the other hand, the affable Jimmy R. must have a good story or Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wouldn't lend their fairhaired boy. The picture gets going October 1 and will be followed by "Martin Eden," by Jack London. The London story is really Jack's autobiography and a search is now on to find the right actor.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Richard Greene is aboard the S. S. Samaria on his way to England to enlist. The time of sailing is naturally kept secret; Tom Kelly, who takes such pretty fashion pictures of our stars, has gone to San Francisco to photograph the Grand Duchess Maria; Binnie Barnes is in the Cedars of Lebanon, suffering from ptomaine poisoning; Fritz Feld, 'tis said, will soon be a bridegroom; Mickey Rooney and Dolly Thon whispering sweet nothings at the Hollywood Tropics.

Pat O'Brien and Perc Westmore went fishing, but the only fish they found were in the Del Mar Grocery Store; Lola Lane and Dick Purcell dunking doughnuts at the Gotham Cafe; Bob Taplinger teaching the girl friend's (Ruth Foran) two little boys how to swim at the Beverly Hills Pool; Hedy Lamarr and John Foster, British consulate, are continuing to see each other; William K. Vanderbilt and his daughter were the luncheon guests of Elsa Maxwell. He arrived in a private car and remained only a few days, going on to Pebble Beach; Hal Wallis caught another 103-pound swordfish and immediately sent it to the Nazareth Home for Boys.

Mrs. Jessie Donahue and her son, Jimmy, are at the Beverly Wilshire; Alice Calhoun, silent picture star, is dieting with the idea of going into the movies; Luise Rainier's movie plans have fallen through, and she is reading a play; Alice Faye is no longer seeing Sandy Cummings seven nights a week; Burgess Meredith and Elizabeth Earl, Warner English actress, visiting Slapsie Maxie's Cafe; Dana Dale and Jeffrey Lynn may soon make an announcement; Mrs. Mildred Zukor Loew, Adolph's daughter, is in town visiting friends; Rosalind Russell is off for the East to attend her sister's wedding. She is a bridesmaid.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Hollywood, Aug. 28.

Now that Metro's definitely put "Osborne of Sing Sing" out of Clark Gable's way, they're actually starting "Comrade X," a remake of "Clear All Wires" in which Tommy Mitchell starred on Broadway. Studio is now busy looking for another title. The present one has a Communistic flavor, and that is taboo in Hollywood.

HOPPER

George Murphy may get that leave of absence he wants—to do a Broadway play. It all depends upon the picture "Little Nellie Kelly." If it's hot, he'll go right into another picture. If it's not so hot, Broadway gets him. We're generous, we are!

After all the red tape, reports and counter reports, Maurice Chevalier and Jean Gabin will not leave France, even though Hitler has taken over. Nor will Leslie Howard leave England, although he's turned down half a dozen pictures. If you get up early enough, you'll be able to hear Leslie over a short wave radio every morning from London.

This time, we're told, Richard Greene will actually don a uniform before returning to Hollywood. It might be just his bad luck that the army wouldn't want him.

Besides their other contributions, Myrna Loy and Gary Cooper have signed over the checks for their next radio appearance to the American Red Cross. Salary is $4,000 each.

When Bill Gargan was being bidded in New York's "21" about how it felt to play love scenes with Clark Gable's wife, he said, "The same way a rookie pitcher might feel against the Brooklyn Dodgers."

Now that Dottie Lamour is a hit in San Francisco, she wants to do more, and is trying to get Mack Millar, who handled the tours of Bob Hope and Tony Martin, to accompany her. Her gravy is $5,000 a week.

Jack Oakie's chauffer, Jacob Dubinsky, was born in Dublin, Ireland, and speaks with a thick Irish brogue. He served with the French Foreign Legion, but is not a full-fledged American. The only fly in his ointment is that when he eats at the Oakie home he doesn't get kosher cooking.

Labor Day Week-end Brings Films, Gayety Opening, 'Barn' Plays

"BOOM TOWN." Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr and Frank Morgan open at the Palace Theater tomorrow morning in this story of oilmen and their vicissitudes. Boasting the most star-studded cast since the same company's "Dinner at Eight" and "Grand Hotel," this M-G-M release was directed by Jack Conway. The story traces the numerous risings and fallings endured by Gable and Tracy as friendly, then rival, oil tycoons. Miss Colbert plays Gable's wife and Miss Lamar is an international eavesdropper who profits by the ups and downs of oil.

Earle

"HE STAYED FOR BREAKFAST." Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas star in this crackpot comedy of a politically conscious waiter and the estranged wife of a pompous banker. Eugene Pallette plays the banker, about whose little finger centers much of the action. Una O'Connor and Alan Marshall also are in the cast. Sammy Kaye and his orchestra headline on the Earle stage, presenting the "Swing and Sway" music and personalities that have made them radio and night club favorites. Tommy Ryan, Charlie Wilson, Jimmie Brown, Clyde Burke, the Three Kadets, the Three Debs, Criss-Cross and others are in the group. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"YOUNG PEOPLE." Shirley Temple's twenty-second and final film under her Twentieth Century-Fox contract is her first musical in two years. Five songs are blended in the plot concerning a stage couple who decide to retire to a New England village. Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Oakie, Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery have the other leading roles. Phil Regan returns to the Capitol stage to headline a variety revue with Betty Jane Cooper, musical comedy dancer. The screen and radio tenor will sing "Democracy's Awake," a new composition by Gene Ford and Sparty Donato. Sandy Grant, trainer of the Capitol's Rockets, will make her first appearance on the Capitol stage in a ballet adapted to Debussy's "Claire de Lune." Christy and Gould and Leon LaFell are the other entertainers. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"LUCKY PARTNERS." Ginger Rogers and Ronald Colman remain for a second week on Fifteenth street in this comedy adapted from the French of Sacha Guitry. It concerns an engaged young lady who entices a young man to share a sweepstakes ticket with her and then is forced to go off with him on a pre-honeymoon journey. Walt Disney's latest Donald Duck release is also on the bill.

Columbia

"THE GREAT McGINTY." This surprise film comedy, both written and directed by Preston Sturges, returns to F street after a critically cheered week at the Capitol. The story tells how misfortune came equally to a man who does a first good deed in a dishonest life and to one who is dishonest for the first time in an honest life. Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff and Muriel Angelus are the leads.

Trans-Lux

"SPOILS OF CONQUEST." This latest "March of Time" release concerns Japan's ambitions for the wealthy Dutch East Indies. "The Story of Optical Glass" and Donald Duck in "Put-Put Troubles" are the other short subjects at the newsreel house. Opens tomorrow morning.

Gayety

"FUNZ-A-POPPIN'." The burlesque theater opens Sunday afternoon for the fall season with this new production and Vickey Welles as an added attraction. The comedians on the inaugural bill will be George Murray, Frank X. Silk and straightman Chick Hunter. Elaine, display beauty; Singer Bobby Burns, Ford Mason, the Burns Brothers and Elaine Hubert head the cast of 50.

Cross Roads

"SMILIN' THROUGH." Elizabeth Winburn will play the leading role in the Virginia barn players' revival of this poignant and popular play, final production of the Cross Roads season. The revival opens a two weeks' run Monday evening. Catharine Ryan continues through this Saturday evening in Paul Osborn's comedy, "The Vinegar Tree," the blonde star's final vehicle of the summer season.

Roadside

NEXT WEEK—"EAST LYNNE." All summer the Maryland barn players have been poised for this time-worn announcement. They mean it in all seriousness, for Monday evening the peerless melodrama revivers will offer their first production of the lachrymose classic. Betty Gray, Larry Lawrence, Norman Rose, Edna Evans, Lois Alexander, Ralf Nicholson and Ted Tiller are the players. "The Virginian" continues through Saturday evening.

Sylvan

"RIP VAN WINKLE." Postponed from Tuesday evening, the Joseph Jefferson play adapted from Washington Irving's classic story of the Hudson River valley will be played tonight on the Monument Grounds by the Washington Players. Curtain is at 8 o'clock and the company includes Harry Welker, Frances Brunt, S. Carlton Ayres, John Van Sikken, Thomas M. Cahill, Mabel Georgi and Wade Robinson.

Wilson Line

THE MOUNT VERNON, cruise steamer of the Wilson Line, offers daylight and after-dark trips down the Potomac, sailing at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. every day for Marshall Hall amusement park with a two-hour-and-a-half stopover at Mount Vernon. Every evening, except Mondays and Tuesdays, the steamer leaves its Seventh street wharf at 8:30 for a moonlight cruise with McWilliams' orchestra aboard for dancing.

The New Yorker

Phil Spitalny, conductor of the popular all-girl orchestra, is taking over today for Leonard Lyons.

SO I'M CONDUCTING "The New Yorker!" It would be much simpler if I could do it with a baton instead of a typewriter. That's where I've got it over Leonard Lyons, I think. In my band I've got two pianists to hammer the keys but he has to hammer his own keys.

SPITALNY

As a matter of fact, you probably think I'm really in an enviable position as a gossip columnist. They say that women gossip a lot more than men and there's even that old joke about the three fastest means of communication: Telephone, telegraph and tell a woman. And I've got 35 girls in my band!

NATURALLY, then, when I was asked to write a guest column for Leonard Lyons, I sought help from the girls. I asked them for any of their choice bits of gossip. Here's what I got:

"Don't breathe it to a soul but that new hat Rose is wearing—the one she says is imported—actually was made right here in New York!"

"Don't ever say I told you but Linda has been out with that trombone player from watsisname's band for three evenings steady."

"I wouldn't want it to get back to her but when Jennie says she can cook—well—I happen to know that cake she said she made came right out of the delicatessen!"

NOW WHAT KIND of help is that for a poor band leader who suddenly has to write a column? None at all, say I, so I guess I'll have to forego the gossip and tell a few musician stories I believe are amusing.

One is about a girl saxophone player who worked for me a few years ago. She was obsessed with the fear of getting fat and was always trying out new kinds of diets and exercises. We had a weighing machine just outside our rehearsal hall and she weighed herself there faithfully every day. And to her horror, no matter how much she'd diet, her weight kept going up.

When I noted that she didn't look any heavier and, in fact, seemed to be getting weak and wan, I decided to investigate. I checked up on the scales and here's what I found out. One of the other girls had been secretly adding lead weights every day.

It's a good thing I learned about it when I did or the "fat" girl might have starved herself to death!

ONE OF MY FELLOW maestros, whose name I won't mention here, has an instinctive prejudice against girl musicians. He says a first-rate girl player can't even equal the third-rate men. I happen to know this isn't true but there are some fellows who just naturally can't be convinced.

But I thought sure I'd be able to convince this fellow. One day I heard that his lead trumpet was sick and he needed a replacement in a hurry. I arranged to send the girl who was then playing lead trumpet for me around to his rehearsal. She washed off all the rouge and lipstick, put on one of her brother's suits, and borrowed his Homburg hat, sticking all her hair up in it. She would be able to keep her hat on all during rehearsal, of course, because that's a custom among a great many men musicians—probably afraid if they take off their hat somebody will sit on it or steal it.

SO THIS GIRL sat in and she was getting away with it fine. Presently she had to stand up and take a solo chorus and the work electrified the maestro. "Young man," he said, "that was really a beautiful piece of work—but terrific. I wish I could have you in my band all the time. Take a bow."

Without thinking the girl grabbed the hat off her head and made a sweeping bow. Naturally her long, blond hair came tumbling down and the leader was speechless.

FINALLY WHEN HE got his voice back he shouted, "So! Tricks you're playing on me! Now get out, you female, and take with you the trumpet. Better music I could get out of a fog horn!"

As I said, you just can't convince some people!

WE HAVE A RULE in our organization against girls getting married. I'm not the meanie that I've sometimes been pictured and it's definitely not true that I threaten to cut out the heart of any young woman who comes around with a husband. But I think the rule is a pretty sound and necessary one and that in music, as well as any other line of business, a single girl who has to support herself is more likely to take her work seriously than a wife who can relax and depend on her husband for support.

Because of this rule, it's not uncommon for young men to come and beg me for the hands of the girls in holy matrimony. You'd think I was their father!

THERE WAS ONE young fellow came up with that soulful, dying-calf look and confessed that he was in love and the object of his affection was in my band.

"Well," I asked, "Who is it? Whom do you love?"

"I am in love," said he, "with the saxophone section."

Little

The Hamlet of 1937 and the Duse of Warner Brothers are costared in the Little Theater's revival of "It's Love I'm After," a madcap comedy of three years ago. Leslie Howard and Bette Davis are the stars with Olivia de Haviland and Eric Blore topping their support.

In this day of tip-top "escape" comedies, it would be a pleasure to say that "It's Love I'm After" holds its own as a mirth-provoker. But it doesn't. This reviewer has no way of knowing how funny "It's Love I'm After" might have been in the days before "His Favorite Wife," "I Love You Again" and "Lucky Partners," for he missed its first showings. Today it has, of course, a few laughs, but on the whole it's pretty tedious material with Leslie Howard eternally before the camera which you keep wishing would switch to Miss Davis.

It's story is that of the matinee idol, whose public idolizes him and who idolizes his public. This thespian's leading lady is long-suffering Bette Davis who doesn't treat the boor half as badly as he should be treated. He attempts to straighten out a young girl who has a passion for him and manages to get too playful with her. It's slowly achieved and the supposedly humorous picture of the serious dramatic artist (Howard) acting kittenish is merely boring. Miss Davis is far better. The yet-to-be-Melanie is pleasant enough in her cloying role of the idol worshiper.

Eric Blore is given plenty of footage for his well-known worrying and supplies most of the laughs. Patric Knowles, Bonita Granville, Spring Byington and George Barbier are the supporting players. A Warner Brothers patriotic short, "The Monroe Doctrine," and "The Mad Maestro," an M-G-M cartoon, complete the bill. R. L. C.

Open-Air

"THE COWBOY AND THE LADY." Gary Cooper and Merle Oberon are costarred in this revival of the Samuel Goldwyn comedy. Also on the bill at the drive-in auto theater on the Richmond Highway is Charlie McCarthy as "Charlie McCarthy, Detective."

THE AMUSEMENT PARK is in the final ten days of its 1940 season, planning now to close at midnight Sunday, September 8. Last quarter addition to the 50-odd attractions is a photograph studio to supplement the popular small coin photo machines. Paul Kain's music continues in the Spanish Garden ballroom through Saturday evening, September 7.

Dance Student

Mary Howard, who made her theatrical debut as a dancer in the "Ziegfeld Follies," has once again enrolled in a dancing class. For the last few years the actress has concentrated on straight dramatic roles, but has now decided to perfect her dancing technique once again.

Konoye Bans Nazi System For Japanese

Outlines New Setup Combining Fascism And Democracy

By Hugh Byas

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 28.—Premier Konoye today announced the basic principles of the new national structure of Japan are designed to give Japan the strength of a totalitarian organization without the oppressive totalitarian machinery of single-party rule.

The precise form of the new structure is to be determined by the preparatory committee Premier Konoye addressed. The success or failure in establishing the new system will decide the nation's fate, he said, and except for stating in the broadcast terms the principles which should guide its 26 members, he left them a blank sheet.

Premier Konoye evidently hopes that the committee's labors will give Japan something combining the merits of fascism and democracy on the purely native lines suited to this country. The future will reveal whether the result will be a modernized national constitution or a paper scheme helping the government over its immediate problems.

No Single-Party Plan

Any expectations that the committee would draft a single-party plan on Nazi-Fascist lines were dispelled as the premier condemned the single-party system as "that system which considers the state and party one and the same thing, and in viewing opposition to the party as a revolt against the state, renders permanent the ruling position of one party, with the head of that party a permanent wielder of the governing power.

"No matter what brilliant results such a system might have reaped in other lands, it is unacceptable in Japan because it is contrary to the basic principle of the national policy of one sovereign over all.

"In Japan it is the privilege of all His Majesty's subjects to assist the throne, and that privilege cannot be monopolized by either a single individual of a single party.

"If Japan is to bring the China affair to a successful conclusion," he said, "she must concentrate on this task the total power of the nation. . . . To this end Japan must perfect a national defense structure of the highest degree."

Permanent Structure

Konoye declared that the new structure must be a permanent one "rendering possible the powerful pursuance of any policy when the necessity arises."

The devising of means whereby the army and the government would pull together was given first place in the items the committee is expected to consider. The premier pointed out that when the people's participation in a government consisted of voting only once in every four years they became indifferent.

Canada Has Four Divisions Under Arms, Two in England

Twice the Number as in Comparable Period In Last War; Three Equipped With Motor Transport; Planning for 'Future Offensive'

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 28.—Double the number of Canadian divisions—four against two—are under arms compared to the same period in the last war, Defense Minister Ralston told a press conference today.

There are two divisions in England where a Canadian Corps is being organized. The third division will be concentrated on the Canadian Atlantic coast by October. The first three divisions are now equipped with mechanized transport, artillery and machine guns, and the fourth division will be fully equipped by December 15.

The first Canadian division, Col. Ralston revealed, has been selected for special service in England, the nature of which he declined to make public. He indicated, however, that the present phase of the Battle of Britain would soon be followed by an offensive in which the Canadians would take part.

Vatican Paper Slated to Suspend

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Rome, Aug. 28.—L'Osservatore Romano, semiofficial newspaper of the Vatican, is scheduled to cease publication early next month, to be succeeded by a small newspaper in the hands of the Jesuits called the Corriere Vaticano.

Once the most widely read newspaper in Italy, L'Osservatore will be 91 years old September 5. In recent months, prior to Italy's entrance into the war, its circulation was hampered by Fascist attacks, and since the entry into the war it had to modify its contents.

N. Y. Butler Gives $1,000 To Bundles for Britain

New York, Aug. 28 (INS).—A 65-year-old butler dug deep into his earnings today to aid his native Britain.

He mailed a $1,000 check to Bundles for Britain, Inc., an American-sponsored group which is sending clothing and medical supplies to Great Britain. Accompanying the check was a note, which said:

"I was 3½ years in the British army in the last war, but am a little too old for service now. I am a butler by trade, but feel I should give all I can at this critical time. . . ."

Poor Health Plagues Finnish President

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 28 (AP) (Via Radio).—The Finnish Radio News Service announced today that President Kyosti Kallio of Finland, would withdraw from official life for some time on account of poor health.

Not 'Gute Nacht' But 'Bolona' Now

Berlin, Aug. 28 (AP).—It's no longer "gute nacht" in Berlin; it's "bolona."

Churchill Sees Seven Planes Fall in Battle

A Southeast English Coast City, Churchill, on an inspection trip Aug. 28 (AP).—Prime Minister to coastal defenses today saw some of the fiercest skyfighting of the war in which seven planes fell in flames.

He ordered his chauffeur to speed to the site where one flaming wreck crashed and it proved to be a German Messerschmitt fighter.

Junkers Help Fund To Buy Hurricanes

London, Aug. 28.—Junkers bombers shot down over England are being increasingly helpful in raising money for British planes. As part of its drive for the Hurricane fund a business firm near London is exhibiting a Junkers side by side with a Hurricane damaged in combat. The company has undertaken to double every individual contribution to the fund, whether it be a penny or £1,000.

Another Junkers is being shown by a sugar refinery to assist in its efforts to raise £17,000 for a bomber. Fourteen thousand pounds have already been contributed.

British Learning To 'Tell' Nazis

London, Aug. 28.—Some of the British home guards are taking German lessons in preparation for eventual contact with German airmen and parachutes. They have been taught mainly such phrases as "Hands up"—"hoende hoch" and "Put that revolver down"—"pistole ablegen."

Reunion In Vienna

The haste with which Germany and Italy rushed in to prevent an open clash between Hungary and Rumania over the Transylvanian issue shows how anxious they are to keep the Balkans quiet at this time.

There are good reasons for this anxiety. Because of Britain's stout resistance, coupled with her demonstrated capacity to carry the war to her enemies, the hope of Hitler and Mussolini for a total triumph before autumn may be shattered. The Axis powers now have to envisage the unpleasant possibility of the war extending into another winter.

Such a development would be bad enough for Germany and Italy in any case. It might be disastrous if, in the meantime, the Balkans become engulfed in war. That might conceivably provide Russia with another opportunity to take over additional slices of southeastern Europe. The Soviet would then stand in the way of a German or a German-Italian thrust in the direction of the Dardanelles and the oil wells of the Near and Middle East. Even if Russia can somehow be kept in line a war in the Balkans could have serious consequences for the Axis.

Because of the British blockade, such nations as Rumania and Hungary are among the few remaining sources of foodstuffs and essential raw materials such as oil still open to the Axis belligerents. Were the Balkan states embroiled in conflict, these reservoirs of food and raw materials would be cut off. To be sure, Hitler and Mussolini might intervene by force of arms to stop the fighting. But that would involve the employment of troops and planes and resources they need in the fight against Britain.

It is understandable, therefore, why the Axis powers have summoned the conference which meets in Vienna today for the purpose of forcing a solution of the Rumanian-Hungarian dispute. Both Hungary and Rumania are now satellite states, although Hungary's link with the Axis is of much older standing. This does not mean, however, that Messrs. Ribbentrop and Ciano will espouse Hungary's cause.

The gratitude of dictators is less than skin deep. If it will suit their purpose to crack down on the Magyars and compel them to postpone their 20-year-old dream of regaining the region lost to Rumania, they will not hesitate to do so. Indeed, the fact that Rumania is showing a disposition to fight rather than relinquish too large a part of Transylvania may persuade the dictators to restrain Hungary's demands.

Rumanian oil, rather than the inherent justice of either the Hungarian or Rumanian case, may thus prove the deciding factor in the Vienna deliberations. The Axis needs that oil and needs it badly. It is far more important to Hitler than is Hungarian gratitude or the belatedness of King Carol's conversion to totalitarian ideology.

Propaganda Curbs

Representative Martin Dies states that many German-Americans are engaged in distributing Nazi propaganda designed to prevent adequate national defense and arouse opposition to our policy of aiding Great Britain. According to Mr. Dies, many local distributors of this literature, which is sent tax free into the United States, have been impressed into service through fear that a refusal to cooperate would bring vengeance upon the heads of their relatives in Germany.

As a means of suppressing such activities, Mr. Dies advocates enactment of a law forbidding the operation of any foreign-controlled organization in the United States. The remedy proposed might prove worse than the disease.

Congress should not be slow in investigating the problem presented by this type of undercover propaganda. In drafting protective legislation, however, great care will have to be taken.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is already cooperating actively with industry to track down those foreign agents who are serving as spies and saboteurs. The task of dealing with the saboteur who seeks to influence public opinion to the detriment of the country is equally important. But it is also an extremely delicate undertaking.

Accredited agents of foreign powers are sent here for the purpose of influencing public opinion favorably toward the governments they represent. It is not easy to draw the line between legitimate persuasion of this recognized sort and undercover propaganda calling for protective action. But such a line may nevertheless have to be drawn with due precautions against a one-sided and arbitrary kind of censorship.

We are certainly under no obligation to permit foreign-controlled agencies to flood the country with insidious propaganda distributed through underground channels. If evidence of abuse is uncovered, especially evidence that coercion has been employed to build up a distributive organization within the country, drastic measures may be justified to put an end to such oppressive and dangerous practices.

Better Be Safe

All doubt that Congress will order compulsory military training to build up a substantial army seems to have passed. The attitude of the Senate was clarified as soon as it began voting on the numerous crippling amendments to the Burke-Wadsworth bill. Then last night the Senate passed the bill by a vote of nearly 2 to 1, after rejecting numerous amendments to delay the effective date of the draft.

On the House side the Military Committee has taken steps to bring its bill into closer conformity with the Senate measure. There are many indications that the House will follow the lead of the Senate in recognizing the necessity of a large-scale military training program. And certainly it will take less time to debate the issue.

The Senate came to the support of the Burke-Wadsworth bill reluctantly. It is not an easy task for legislators to approve conscription of men for the Army in the midst of a political campaign. No doubt that is why leaders in the Senate were so lenient in permitting the debate to continue long after every conceivable argument for or against the draft had been made. When the test vote came, however, the majority bowed to the necessities of the present emergency.

The majority in the Senate has simply recognized the fact that the comparatively peaceful world in which the United States was able to get along without compulsory military service has crumbled about us. Today we face an entirely new situation. Without in any way becoming hysterical about the dangers that threaten, we must settle down to the essential task of preparing to meet any threat that may come from the ruthless forces running riot on other continents.

There are many different opinions in Congress as to the imminence of the perils against which we are arming. But there is also widespread agreement that it is better to be safe than sorry. That is a common-sense viewpoint. Indeed, wherever there is doubt as to our national security that doubt must be resolved in favor of adequate preparations for defense.

The Senate has gone as far as it could, moreover, to remove objections to the Burke-Wadsworth bill. It voted a limit of 900,000 on the number of men who may be drafted for training at any time while the United States is at peace. While that amendment would permit the Army to carry out its contemplated program during the next four years, it would not allow great expansion of compulsory service without additional authority from Congress.

By an overwhelming vote the Senate also restricted use of conscripted troops to American territory, the Western Hemisphere and the Philippine Islands. That amendment is merely a gesture. When conscripted men are trained, future Congresses will decide when and where they may be used in defense of the United States and its interests. At present, however, this limitation serves to reassure the country that conscription is not designed to raise an army for participation in any war on other continents.

Detailed provisions are less important, however, than dispatch in enactment of the bill. The foremost consideration is to begin the training of men for military duty without further delay. Now that the issue has been fully debated and the final decision appears to be no longer in doubt, prompt action in the House should be brought to the aid of sound judgment.

Real District Budget

With Budget Bureau control of the District estimate restricted to items in which the Federal Government has a direct interest, the responsibility for preparing Washington's 1942 budget falls squarely on the shoulders of the Commissioners. There can be no buck-passing this year; at least not before the budget reaches Congress.

Recognizing the Board of Commissioners' new responsibility, Chairman Hazen has suggested to his colleagues that municipal department heads be given a large measure of discretion in deciding how their preliminary estimates shall be cut to conform to departmental allotments. Mr. Hazen rightly believes that the department heads are better qualified to decide how an allotted amount of money can best be spent than are the Commissioners.

This plan already has been tried with some success in the final preparation of the school estimates. The Commissioners decide how much money will be available in the approaching fiscal year for new construction, land purchases and other expansion. The Board of Education then determines what projects are to be included in the budget.

The extension of the same privilege to other municipal departments should make for greater flexibility and more effective fiscal planning in the District. It is obvious, for example, that no one is as well qualified as the health officer to judge how an additional $100,000 allotted to the Health Department can be spent.

Washington's civic and trade spokesmen who testified at the budget hearings this week appear to be in agreement that the District should keep within anticipated revenue during the fiscal year 1942. Yet, as in past years, they hope that some of the improvements they ask for may find their way into the estimates.

Fortunately, the expected revenue for the next fiscal year exceeds that anticipated for this year by an estimated $800,000. The Commissioners consequently will be able to meet some of the more pressing needs and at the same time keep the District within its current income.

Repudiating The Bigots

In profanation of his clerical garb, Charles E. Coughlin has for years fanned the fires of racial and religious intolerance in this country. His tirades have not infrequently had more than a passing resemblance to sentiments expounded by Hitler and Goebbels.

In sharp contrast, Wendell Willkie has throughout his career fought bigotry and championed civil and religious liberties. He has never forgotten that it was the denial of these very liberties which led his forbears to leave their native land and emigrate to the United States.

It is thus wholly characteristic of the Republican standard bearer that he has minced no words in repudiating the unasked-for support of the bigots. Commenting on a leading editorial in Social Justice, the weekly magazine of the Coughlinites, in which the Elwood speech was praised highly and Mr. Willkie's candidacy was supported, the Republican nominee declared:

"If I understand what his (Father Coughlin's) beliefs are, I am not only not interested in his support—I don't want it. If I understand correctly, he is opposed to certain people because of their race or religion. I have no place in my philosophy for such beliefs."

And he added: "I don't have to be President of the United States, but I do have to keep my beliefs clear, that is, in order to live with myself. I am not enough interested in being President of the United States to compromise with my fundamental beliefs."

This was well and plainly spoken. The bigots who have been seeking to climb on the Willkie bandwagon will find no welcome there. Americans of all parties will applaud Mr. Willkie's courageous words and forthright action.

Gay Go Down

The famous old church of St. Giles Cripplegate, reported to have been seriously damaged in one of the recent London air raids, is the burial place not only of John Milton—as was mentioned in all the dispatches—but also of the redoubtable Martin Frobisher. Thus for Londoners the bombing of this particular church must have had a special irony. For Frobisher was one of the admirals who helped beat off the greatest assault ever launched from one of the "less happier lands" against the realm of England.

On reading how, during the blackout, a bomb fell so close to the statue of Milton as to upset it from its pedestal outside the church many doubtless recalled the familiar line:

> In darkness and with dangers compass'd round.

The designation "Cripplegate" arises from the legend that the good and gentle St. Giles suffered from lameness. Accordingly, he was deemed the patron of the lame and the halt and the maimed. The church bearing his name is said to have been established at the edge of medieval London for the convenience of his pilgrim clients.

St. Giles was also the patron of lepers, who presumably would not have been permitted to enter the city. It was for the benefit of lepers that the even more ancient church of St. Giles-in-the-Fields was established in the countryside beyond London in the early years of the twelfth century.

It is not precisely clear which of these churches is referred to in the strange and vaguely sinister nursery rhyme, "Gay Go Up and Gay Go Down to Ring the Bells of London Town." But in either case Londoners must find this old jingle not without a certain grim and sardonic humor under the circumstances:

> "Bulls'-eyes and targets,"
> Say the bells of St. Mar'grets.
> "Brickbats and tiles!"
> Say the bells of St. Giles.

"Many a young man is getting married to avoid conscription—just another case of hiding behind a woman's skirt," declares an editor. Oh, well, a man who can hide behind the currently styled skirt is too small for military service anyway.

According to present indications the Presidential race will be so close that Gallup may lose it.

Over 23 And Under 30

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A good soldier is an athlete. The age limitation of draftees under pending legislation should recognize that simple fact.

Athletes are at their best at from, say, 23 to 30. Practically all athletic records are set by persons in that age bracket; they are not set by youngsters. Pugilists are "old men" at 33.

A youth of 18 or 21 is usually still soft—for him, at least. In those years he is especially likely to collapse under the physical and nervous strains of the field. If he is on guard duty half the night, if he sleeps cold or wet on ground or floor, if he is forced to make really hard marches, if meals are missed or grub is bad, or even if drinking water is changed, he may simply go hors de combat.

He lacks the physical strength and nervous fortitude for the man-killing tasks of the march, the camp or the battle. Tiring easily, he becomes prone to colds, dysentery or whatever offers. Then, instead of pulling his own full weight, he becomes a serious burden to his outfit.

Napoleon covered all this by saying that a man's bones do not harden under 35.

In our first draft, particularly, youngsters should not be called. From this first army must come officers and non-coms to train and command the armies to be drafted later. Judgment and initiative in commanding men and in planning the countless details of Army life rarely comes in youth. What soldier in our other war does not recall expensive and ludicrous blunders by youthful "shavetails?"

For our first Army, no lad under 23 should be drafted, but men over 30 and under 45 should be left free to volunteer. MILITIAMAN.

Scents Profiteering

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During a careful perusal of the Burke-Wadsworth bill one will find the following wording relegated to the back pages of the bill: "to have done such printing, binding and blankbook work in such public or private printing establishments or binderies as he may designate . . ."

This brief wording may not awaken much in the minds of most persons, yet it contains a great deal of significance. For years private printing establishments have attempted to take from the Government Printing Office some, and eventually all, of its work. Laws have been passed stating that all Federal printing and binding shall be done at the G. P. O. Yet now the Administration is attempting to change these laws and to give this printing and binding to private concerns who undoubtedly will lower the standard of living of the persons engaged in this work.

This may seem to some to be a small matter, yet it shows a definite trend toward war profiteering. War profiteering during wartime is a heinous crime but during peacetime it is even worse.

This bill is without the slightest doubt a travesty on our democracy. This bill coupled with the excessive taxation for "defense" is a definite drawing away from the principles of Jefferson and Paine and an attempt to set up the principles of naziism and fascism.

The Cost Of Unpreparedness

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of August 24 I saw an article in reference to the activities of the so called "death watch" of the Congress of American Mothers in which the following quotation appears: "We are definitely for defense of this country, we are not pacifists, but we won't send our sons to fight for another nation." Coming from such a group of fine American women this statement is worthy of serious thought and it demands a truthful answer.

I have been a physician and surgeon for the last 33 years and have seen much of human suffering. I have been present at well over a thousand childbirths and I know of the great pain and the intense suffering that many mothers go through in order to give life. Yet I cannot understand their present attitude and am sure it must be based on misinformation and half truths.

In the first place, not one-tenth of 1 per cent of our population wants to send any American boy over seas to fight for any foreign country, and not one sane American wants any war at all. But we, who have been in war, do know that it would be the most unfair and inhuman thing on earth to sit quietly by and await the day of actual need, and then, in the hysteria of actual war and attack, rush millions of untrained and untried boys into a life and death struggle with a highly trained and thoroughly equipped army of veterans.

This would be truly a heartless waste of the human life these mothers of America suffer to give to this world.

If we are to keep our boys from actual war it is only by real and prompt preparation to meet on an equal or better footing any power-mad nation that may attack us. Remember well this statement, for Hitler and his kind respect nothing in this world except might.

Our only hope is in full and complete preparedness, and this does mean the draft and from 18 to 64, with the active Army drawing those from 21 to 45 and the others classified to help in the best way they can. Anything short of this is not full protection and will not give us security.

When I was a boy it was my pride that I could take care of my mother and my sister and protect them from harm, and surely this must be the true feeling of every worthwhile boy in America. If this is not so, then we have drifted a long way down the road that leads to moral, mental and national decay and we may even deserve the fate that surely awaits us if we do not at once prepare to defend to the limit all we hold dear in this land of ours.

Now if you must ask Congress for anything, please, for the good of your country, for the welfare of home and family, demand of Congress that they stop playing politics and pass a registration and draft law and thus give your boy a chance to defend himself, you, his sister and his country. You may be Democrat, you may be Republican, but in this time of national danger please be true American and stand squarely back of your President in his desire to do what is right and necessary in protection of this land of ours.

Should there be a change at the White House next January then give that same loyal help to the next President. W. B. CARR, M. D.

Destroyers For Holland

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the event that a substantial portion of the United States fleet is removed from the Pacific it seems reasonably certain that Japan will attempt to secure the Netherlands East Indies.

The Netherlands East Indies have gallantly attempted to build up their defenses so as to forestall any attack which might be made upon them, but despite the heavy additions to naval and air equipment made by them it cannot be expected that they will be able to withstand any serious attack by the Japanese. In view of the fact that the Netherlands East Indies are such an important source of many raw materials, it is certainly to our interest to do all within our power to maintain their independence.

One way of aiding them would be through the sale of destroyers in return for such products as crude rubber, tin, palm oil and tapioca, all of which are necessary war materials. An addition of 50 destroyers to the Netherlands East Indies fleet would greatly strengthen their defenses, and while such an addition might not entirely forestall a Japanese attack it would make possible the infliction of heavy damage upon any attackers.

By the same token it would also seem to be a wise investment for this country to supply the Netherlands East Indies with as many airplanes as possible.

Delegation Of Power

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of the methods used by the New Deal, it is considered not to be the Democratic Party. Can the Republican Party remain the Republican Party if it, too, adopts New Deal principles and methods of administrative action?

This observation does not refer to the reforms of the New Deal with which the Republican candidate, Mr. Willkie, has expressed agreement, but to the adoption of New Deal methods which, surely no good Republican will indorse.

Mr. Willkie recently called for the immediate delegation of power by the Executive to the Defense Advisory Commission to enable it to hasten its work.

Let us be frank, even if it hurts. Is not that the very sort of undemocratic proceeding for which the President has been excoriated by the Republicans for seven years?

How, indeed, can the Republican Party indorse Mr. Willkie's proposal and face the country after all that has been said and written about the delegation of power by the President to irresponsible boards?

Representative System

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his letter to The Post, S. H. suggests that important questions like conscription be voted upon by the people rather than Congress.

The fallacy of this proposal will be revealed by one quick perusal of the Constitution, which provides that in a republican form of government such as ours the duly elected representatives of the people act for the people with regard to the laws of our land. If a Congressman does not truly represent his constituents, he will fail of re-election when his two years are up.

S. H. says, "The people are against conscription." He apparently has no faith in the Gallup Poll, which showed 66 per cent of the cross-section interviewed in favor of conscription. G. R. C.

The Post Impressionist

Fieldiana

THE FIRST national political convention which Eugene Field attended was the Democratic conclave in Baltimore in 1872. He was then in his twenty-second year (born September 2, 1850), and only recently a college student. Of the Democratic convention, Field later wrote that he "received the impression that everything must have been fixed beforehand."

Known as a wit and paragrapher, and immortal as the author of poems of childhood, Field was frequently a political commentator—and satirist—in his 300 agate line column in the Chicago Record (the newspaper was named the Morning News when he went to work for it in 1883), although he later declared, in a personal memoir: "I dislike 'politics,' so called."

Nevertheless, for the conductor of "Sharps and Flats," which ran for six years without interruption, and was published irregularly during the following six years, the political scene provided plenty of copy. With satiric pen he wrote of national figures, but in good humor, never maliciously. A practical joker as well as a poet, Field began his gags early. In 1874, at the age of 24, and a reporter, he accompanied Senator Carl Schurz on a political trek from St. Louis, Field's native city, through Missouri. At one meeting the local light scheduled to introduce Schurz failed to show up. Observing his impatience, Field volunteered: "I'll introduce you, Senator." A nod of assent and the reporter arose, dignity personified.

"Ladies and chentlemans," he began, "I haf such a severe colt dot I cannot make me a speedg donight." The face of Lincoln's friend clouded behind him. "But," continued Field, "I have die bleasure of to introduce to you by prilliant young chournalistic gompanion, Mr. Eucheene Field, who will shpeak in my place." He turned and waved to the amazed statesman. Schurz got to his feet indignantly and explained the joke to the assemblage, which laughed heartily at young Field's impudence.

According to Slason Thompson, friend, colleague and biographer, Field was "a rock-rooted Republican," probably because his formative years were spent in New England. In 1856, when Field was six, his mother died, so he and his older brother, Roswell, were sent to her cousin in Amherst, Mass. Eugene went to Williams College in the Bay State in 1868-69, and later to Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., and to the University of Missouri. Always he considered himself a Westerner.

The year after the "rock-rooted Republican" joined the staff, the Chicago Morning News supported Grover Cleveland for the Presidency. There was discord from "Sharps and Flats." Its conductor ridiculed the New York candidate and lauded James G. Blaine, the Plumed Knight of New England. Benjamin F. Butler, who sought the Democratic nomination in 1884, was the subject of a parody of Whittier's "Maude Muller" on July 11:

"Ben Butler, on a summer's day,
Stood in a convention, making hay."

But Judge Nomination rode away; the burlesque concluded:

"And of all sad words of tongue and pen
The saddest are these: 'He wouldn't have Ben.'"

Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, was alleged by the humorist to cover the embassy in Paris in the event of Blaine's election. In a poem called "Parlez-vous Francais" Field represented Medill as preparing for his mission by French lessons daily. After Cleveland's victory was certain, Field devoted another piece to the Tribune publisher, resigned to remaining "what I have been through all my life—Gee Swee Zamericane!"

Field, himself, in a shroud composed of newspapers, stretched out on the floor of the News city room and summoned all Democrats, Mugwumps, Greenbackers and Equal Rights Suffragists to trample upon his unregenerate Republican "corpse."

President Cleveland's marriage to Miss Frances Folsom, June 2, 1886, evoked from the poet a delightful series celebrating the domestic felicities of the happy White House pair. The group included "The Tying of the Tie," "The Cutting of the Cake," "The Passing of the Compliment." One related the President's osculatory powers:

"He did implant a smack
So lusty that the walls around
Gave back an echo to the sound
As they had like to crack."

In 1892 Field prophesied: "About four years hence Maj. McKinley will find the country ready for him and his Presidential candidacy." Theodore Roosevelt was "the great American firecracker" in 1891, and Field, shortly before his death in 1895 discerned in Roosevelt major "a distinct heartiness and vigor."

"I should like to have the privilege of voting extended to women," Field asserted in the Auto-Analysis of 1894. Five years earlier he had boomed Mrs. Mary Logan, wife of his friend, Gen. John A. Logan, for a post in President Benjamin Harrison's Cabinet. "In the honoring of such a woman," Field declared, "there would seem to be a wisdom, a justice—yes, a lofty pride, to which every manly heart must be keenly sensible."

This recommendation, Charles H. Dennis, author of Eugene Field's Creative Years, points out, "probably marks the earliest serious advocacy of a woman as a Cabinet officer of an American President."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

American Security Is Sea Power

MANY A MAN has been wondering whether the United States could not be defended more easily if we were not interested in defending so many places over such a large area of the earth's surface. There is a certain apparent logic in the argument that American security could be insured with fewer warships, less airplanes and a smaller army if we did not commit ourselves to defend Canada and South America, if we took no interest in China, the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, if we decided not to care what happened to the British Isles, or at Gibraltar, in Greenland, in the Azores, in the Cape Verde Islands, or in the harbors and airfields on the west coast of Africa. The argument is that by taking an interest in so many places we have assumed burdens that compel us to arm more heavily than would be necessary if we decided to defend only the actual territory of the United States.

The argument is as plausible as the notion that the earth is flat, and for many the answer is as difficult to grasp as the proof that in spite of appearances the earth is not a flat surface, but a globe. Yet it is the truth that the easiest defense of the United States, for the least expenditure of military effort, is defense based upon control of the two oceans in the midst of which lies the great island continent of the Americas. The great fallacy of the isolationist Senators, most of which come from the central interior region of our continent, is that they do not see that much the best defense of America is to control the seas. Because they do not grasp the fundamental fact that America can most readily be defended on the oceans, they think quite sincerely but mistakenly that we are adding to our burdens, instead of diminishing them when we take an interest in everything that affects the control of the two great oceans.

CONSIDER, for example, our commitment to defend Canada, and let us ask ourselves whether in making it we have increased or have reduced the difficulty of defending the United States. Suppose that as isolationists we had the courage of our convictions and were to declare that Hitler may, if he can, defeat Britain and conquer Canada, that so far as we are concerned we shall fight only if he sets foot on our soil, sends warships into our territorial waters and bombers into our air. Suppose then that he does conquer Britain, sinks or captures the British navy, and with no fleet to oppose him transports five armored divisions and two thousand planes to Canada. Remember that as isolationists we do not object, that as isolationists we do not "entangle" ourselves in other people's wars. Remember, too, that if that is our policy and if Britain is defeated, it is fully as easy for a European army to come to Canada as it is for a Canadian army today, or was for an American army in 1917, to go to Europe. The ocean is not a one-way street. If armies, tanks, planes can go from the Americas to Europe, they can come from Europe to the Americas.

So on the theory that we can defend ourselves most easily by defending only our own territory, a Nazi army is allowed to establish itself in Canada. It conquers the country, seizes the Canadian factories, puts the Canadians to work making munitions and fortifications and air bases at well selected points along the 3,000 miles of our northern frontiers, and in the Great Lakes it places submarines and mine fields. Do we need more soldiers or less, more tanks or less, more airplanes or less, more warships or less to defend Alaska and the Pacific Coast and the New England Coast and the inland cities and towns from Duluth and Chicago to Detroit and Cleveland and Buffalo? By not defending Canada did we make our own defense easier or harder? Obviously, we made it much harder. For had we defended Canada before it was invaded and conquered, we could have defended ourselves at sea and at worst on the narrow Canadian beaches and the few Canadian ports where a landing is feasible. By not defending Canada, by waiting to fight until our own soil is threatened, we did not lighten our military responsibilities; on the contrary, we committed ourselves to standing guard against surprise attack along a new, and at present undefended, frontier that is three or four thousand miles long.

Surely, it is obvious that the Canadian commitment, though it appears to enlarge our responsibilities, does as a matter of fact make it easier to defend the United States with a much smaller expenditure of military force. It is no less obvious that it will be still easier to defend the Canadian approach to the United States if the British fleet continues to rule the Atlantic Ocean from its distant base in the British Isles. For then no enemy can even start to attack this continent, and when no one can even start to attack it, a nation enjoys the maximum security at the minimum cost.

THE SAME fundamental reasoning will be found to apply to the defense of South America. There is not space today to pursue the argument but it will be found, I believe, and that the abandonment of South America would not diminish and simplify but would in fact augment and complicate the difficulty of defending of the Panama Canal and the Caribbean area. For to permit hostile powers to establish land bases in South America is to confront ourselves with a new, long land frontier that we have never before had to defend.

With some modifications the same reasoning applies in the Far East. Our concern with the resistance of China, with the preservation of British and French bases in the Southwestern Pacific, with the maintenance of the Netherlands Indies, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand, rests on the very simple fact that as long as the Japanese navy is not the undisputed master of the other side of the Pacific, it is unable to concern itself with Alaska or South America or any place on our side of the Pacific. If there were any way of coming to a genuine and honorable agreement with Japan for a partnership in the Pacific, the outlook would no doubt be still better. But as long as Japan is engaged in conquest, we risk less by increasing her difficulties in Asia than by removing them.

FOR US the easy defense always is the defense of the oceans. We are an island, a very big one, but nevertheless an island. Being an island, we have perfect security if the seas are in friendly and reliable hands; if not, we have lost our natural security and must resort to the militarization which every land power must undergo.

For that reason our natural allies are the British, with whom we now share the control of the seas, and along with the British all the peoples who face the two oceans—the French, the Scandinavians, the Latin Americans, the Canadians, the Australians and New Zealanders, and the Chinese. For when these people fight for their own independence, they help greatly to preserve in the hands of the free nations that control of the seas on which our own security depends.

A Needed Expose

SEATED LAST NIGHT at the typewriter, idly tapping the keys, I wondered what would happen to a newspaper publisher who, under the obligations put upon him by the privilege of a free press and in patriotic good faith, decided to investigate an organization which he had reason to suspect of subversive activities or affiliations and, to that end, assigned a reporter to join the group, if that group happened to be the American Newspaper Guild.

Now, this American Newspaper Guild is a detached auxiliary, or transmission belt, of the Communist Party and, by all the traditions of American journalism, should be investigated from the inside and exposed to the public in the same manner that the Ku Klux Klan was investigated and exposed by the old World. Yet it enjoys the status of a labor union in the C. I. O. and, under the Wagner Act, any employer, in this case a publisher, who assigns a man to join it and reveal its secrets in the public interest would surely be convicted of unfair labor practice. He probably would have young Bob La Follette all over him for anti-labor espionage as well.

OF COURSE, this hypothetical employer has a number of staff men on his pay roll who are members of this Stalinist group—some willing, others under compulsion—but they are not available for investigation, because, being bona fide members, they are bound not to betray any secrets of the lodge and might be chased out of the newspaper business for good if they should squeal.

The man for this task would have to be a nonmember, and he would have to join with his fingers crossed for the purpose of obtaining evidence on the communistic leadership, control and policies of the guild. There are plenty of former members around who remember speeches and incidents in guild meetings which would bear on the secret subject, but, unlike the Communists, who are always blabbing in print for a little money the confidences which they received in party meetings, these non-Communist former members wouldn't tell.

Still, it is a duty of the American free press to expose the inner workings of organizations which operate under the protection of American law in the interests of foreign conspirators, and here we have a case in which a publisher would be severely punished by his own Government for doing his professional and patriotic duty.

THE COMMUNIST bosses of the guild deny that they are Communists, but, of course, they would, and their denials are just so much skywriting.

A real expose would require diligent, intelligent work by a good newspaper reporter who would take plenty of notes and spend a lot of time lushing around with the Muscovites so as to win their confidence and back up his revelations with their conspirational small talk.

The reporter himself would have a problem, too, because the guild naturally would insist that he had no right to cross his fingers and would blackball him from all future employment in the business as a traitor.

It is one thing for some Nazi front to bar a G-man from future membership after he has obtained his evidence and taken the witness stand to tell all in court. The G-man need have no further truck with the Nazi front, but the newspaper reporter in this case is not a Government employe and, on the contrary, would get no sympathy from any of the Government agencies having to deal with his case.

THE LABOR BOARD certainly would hold that in doing his journalistic duty as a reporter on assignment, even though he proved convincingly that the guild was an auxiliary of the Communist Party, he had deserved the guild's revenge. The publisher would get his lumps for making the assignment, and the reporter would get his for performing a legitimate and patriotic mission.

This is one reason why you never see anything in print which tells exactly what goes on in the meetings of this organization and that, incidentally, shows that the Newspaper Guild is sitting pretty with an absolute Government protection against expose.

There are several other C. I. O. unions dominated by Communists which should be similarly investigated, and the same legal and extralegal or illegal protection runs for them, but I am confining my discussion to the Newspaper Guild, because here is a Stalinist conspiracy tunneling away under the foundations of our building, and our Government would give us hell if we should send a man down to find out what goes on.

Rains Still Needed By Far West Crops

Rains during the last week improved crops in many localities from the Middle Atlantic States to the Eastern Great Plains, the Weather Bureau said yesterday, but water shortage was causing shipments of livestock out of the Dakotas, Wyoming and Montana.

The bureau reported that from the Great Plains westward through the central and northern Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast the ranges needed soaking rains. Continued dry weather in the Great Plains, from Oklahoma northward, damaged dry-land crops.

Cotton made good to fair progress in most of the belt and conditions varied from locally poor to fairly good.

SENATOR BYRD

Mr. Roosevelt's retort to the Senator's charges of delay in the rearmament program is analyzed below by Mark Sullivan

Defense Of Defense

By Mark Sullivan

President Blames Congress

BEFORE LEAVING Washington for a week, President Roosevelt devoted his last press conference to defense of defense. That is, he defended the progress of the armament program against charges of slowness made by Democratic Senator Byrd, of Virginia, and charges of inefficiency by Republican Presidential Candidate Willkie.

Mr. Roosevelt used many figures—about airplanes made and airplanes ordered; about contracts made, and work begun in anticipation of contracts on the basis of what Mr. Roosevelt called "letters of intention"; about orders merely given, and actual work being done on orders; about a 33 per cent increase in the number of men working in navy yards, and so on.

To compare Mr. Roosevelt's figures with Senator Byrd's; to distinguish between Senator Byrd's actual figures, which Mr. Roosevelt more or less conceded, and on the other hand what Mr. Roosevelt called the incorrect "implications" from those figures; to arrive at a sound conclusion on the merit of the argument—to do that, one would need to be both a judge and an accountant. One would need to be also, as Mr. Roosevelt said, a lexicographer, for the dispute, so Mr. Roosevelt asserted, is in part a matter of terminology. One doubts whether the streams of figures and technical terms which appeared in the following day's papers carried much meaning to the average reader. They did not carry much to the present writer, who listened to the President's statements, and to his answers to questions. So far as this writer knows, the armament program may be going well enough or it may be seriously lagging. I got a notion, which Mr. Roosevelt did not say, but which seemed to be in the background. It seemed as if some of the confusion may be due to the fact that many manufacturers have two kinds of contracts—contracts to make armament for Britain and other contracts to make armament for the United States. It is a fair question of policy whether we should ask or require manufacturers to drop contracts for Britain in order to hurry contracts for us.

BUT ONE ASPECT of Mr. Roosevelt's self-defense had real importance. He put the blame, so far as he admitted any blame, on Congress. His allusions to Congress were prudently guarded, and some of his remarks he asked the newspapermen not to print, for he seemed to have a real desire to preserve propriety of appearances as between the executive and legislative branches. But he said that a large number of contracts for war supplies had been ready for signature on June 8, whereupon Congress made a change in the law, thereby necessitating change in the contracts. He said that the contracts for many of the airplanes are involved in an appropriation bill still pending in Congress, and cannot be made until the bill is passed. He said that many contracts cannot intelligently be entered into by businessmen until business knows the details of the bill having to do with amortization, excess profits taxes and profit limitations generally, which bill is only just starting through Congress. When asked whether the delay in Congress could be charged up against political opposition in that body, Mr. Roosevelt replied that he could not be in the position of criticizing Congress.

Now the point is—not that Mr. Roosevelt blamed Congress—that he did not blame business. On the contrary, and rather surprisingly, he defended business. When asked the direct question whether, as has been charged, business is practicing a sit-down strike against limitation of profits, Mr. Roosevelt answered, almost warmly, no. He said that the policy about profits is that this preparedness drive shall not create a new crop of war millionaires. And Mr. Roosevelt added, with emphasis, that every businessman he knows holds this conviction as strongly as himself. He defended, again warmly, businessmen who want to know what the profit limitation law will contain before they go ahead. Businessmen, Mr. Roosevelt said, are entitled to know where they are going.

THIS BRINGS us to the heart of this whole situation. Within the New Deal are several varieties of hostility to business. There are critics of the kind America has always had, who work, often usefully, to reform business, but have no thought of destroying private business as an institution. There are others, extreme radicals, who do not believe in the American system of privately owned industry and would gladly see some form of collectivism or government ownership substituted. There are others, more dilettante, who merely think privately owned business is doomed in America as in other parts of the world.

From the different varieties of these, and with their differing motives, come charges against business in connection with the preparedness program. From sources chargeable to radical New Deal inspiration come assertions that private industry will not or cannot prepare America for war, that industry must be taken over by Government. To the more radical, preparation for war brought opportunity. It gave them opportunity to promote their dogma that the conduct of war must be "total"; that all business and industry, every activity, must be regimented. It is not farfetched to assume that a distant motive was in their minds; that if they could achieve "totality" for war, they would not let it lapse when the emergency ends.

From all such, Mr. Roosevelt separates himself for the time being at least. In the past he has identified himself with some of them frequently, almost continuously.

The Once Over

Talk About A Tradition Buster

Mr. Wendell ("Firpo") Willkie,
The Willkie Debating Corp.,
Elwood, Indiana.
Dear Wendell:

I read the other day where you refused to pose for newspaper pictures perched atop a hay wagon, steering a tractor, milking a cow or having any truck with a harvesting machine, and you could knock me over with a dairy bucket. You talk about Roosevelt being a tradition breaker—what about you, Wendell? Don't you know it is one of the oldest traditions that any candidate for any office who has ever been near a pile of hay must be mugged for the press in all those fake poses?

"Anything I do on a farm is okay but stunt pictures are out," you told the cameraman, causing a couple of dozen to faint dead away. But what was worse, you also refused to put on overalls or cowhide boots, or go near a piece of farm machinery. Where does this leave American Presidents and Presidential candidates of the past, eh, Wendell? Ain't you got no reverence for customs? I'll bet you would even refuse to pose shearing a sheep, branding a calf or driving home the cows. It is only a step from that to refusing to be snapped running a locomotive, playing a swordfish or joining the Blackfoot Indian tribe.

You don't seem to have the first notion of what a candidate for the Presidency must do in this country to have a chance of election. A candidate has got to be identified with something like farming, fishing or horseback riding, even if he don't know nothing about them. We have had candidates who had been away from the farm so long they couldn't tell a heifer from a mule, but at the call of the camera boys they lost no time jumping into their overalls and doing a character act that would do justice to Denman Thompson. Some of 'em looked about as much at home pitching hay as Brenda Frazier would look digging a well, but did that stop 'em? It did not.

I remember one President of the last couple of decades who, after posing for dozens of pictures on a farm tractor, finally turned to his campaign manager and asked, "What the devil is this apparatus, anyhow?" But custom is custom. These are days when traditions ain't what they used to be and when they is broke it don't cause the shock it once did, but a candidate who has a real farm and won't work it for all it's worth in the press and newsreel pictures is practically a revolutionist.

Of course, there is always a chance I am wrong. It may be that the people are fed up with bunk, baloney, applesauce and banana strudel. There is just a chance they know a fake picture when they see one. Maybe they will welcome a candidate for public office who is for honesty in snapshots. If you keep it up and don't even pose in Indian headgear you may be a sensation at the polls. I ain't any too sure. But I am certainly surprised. Yours, ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—Don't go into any trout brooks wearing a derby hat and a business suit, either.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Yankee Accountant

ALMOST 30 years ago Stuart Chase's father took Stuart, just out of college, to Washington to help set up a new Federal budget procedure. President Taft had appointed the elder Chase, a consulting engineer to New England textile factories, a member of the Commission of Economy and Efficiency. Stuart Chase tells the story in his new book, "Idle Money, Idle Men" (Harcourt, Brace, $2).

Harvey Chase said the old budget did not make sense; it dealt only with cash receipts and cash disbursements. It did not allow for capital items. No business kept its books on such a primitive basis. So, with President Taft behind him, Harvey Chase tried to formulate a capital budget. He ran into a stonewall of Treasury officeholders, orthodox economists who said that a budget system that had been good enough for Alexander Hamilton was good enough for them. The project failed. We still budget on the old system, and it still doesn't make sense.

In the course of time Stuart Chase became a certified public accountant, and a good one, employed by big corporations. He also became a writer, and a good one, with a knack for translating figures into homely realities, for seeing general principles in terms of honking automobiles and kitchen soap. He developed a unique gift for making economics readable, even entertaining. He kept his native whittling Yankee's folk-accent in and out of print. And the primary gospel of his new book is this Yankee's discovery that a penny saved isn't always a penny earned; sometimes it is just a penny hoarded. As an old-fashioned Yankee, he is still afraid of idle men—unemployment. As a new-fashioned Yankee, he denounces "oversaving." He is our frankest and most persuasive philosopher of government spending.

From a Minnesota bank president he takes what he calls the "potato principle." If a hundred farmers produce a million bushels of potatoes and issue a thousand claim checks, for potatoes, to a thousand families who have worked on the crop, and the thousand families turn in their claim checks within the year, the system works. If some of the families save up their claim checks for a time, it still works. If too many save them too long, some of the potatoes rot; and the farmers, noting a decline in demand, will plant fewer potatoes for the next year. The community will have less to eat. Some of its members will be out of work. The potato economy will drop into a depression spiral. If members continue to save, the economy will collapse.

From the testimony of Owen D. Young, of General Electric; Alfred P. Sloan, of General Motors, and Edward Stettinius, of United States Steel, before the Temporary National Economic Commission, Stuart Chase draws some analogous pertinent observations. He notes two startling economic trends which contradict some old-fashioned orthodox economic and business assumptions. Going concerns increasingly find the money for their capital improvements—plant and equipment—from their own savings, especially from the funds prudently set aside each year and earmarked "depreciation." Industry, as Mr. Chase puts it, is rolling its own; it doesn't need to go into the capital market and borrow from the commercial banks in the manner described by the old sound economic textbooks. Accordingly, the investment banker—as well as a lot of plain folks—is unemployed. One result of this is, Mr. Chase notes, that the "money trust" and the "money power" are fading as a financial force. The radicals will have to think up some new hobgoblins to attack. Another result is that we need more government spending to balance our economy.

A SYSTEM of taxation which encourages rapid spending is good for business, Mr. Chase says. And, as an accountant, he is hard on those who think in terms of Alexander Hamilton's budget. No businessman, building a Boulder Dam or a Grand Coulee, would dream of writing off the expense as mere outgo. He would recognize it as a productive capital investment. (Stuart Chase loves dams. He compares our Age of Dams to the Egyptian Age of Pyramids, and finds huge cause for contentment that he lives in the former.) The essence of capitalism, in his view, is its debt structure; and a government which wants to preserve the essentials of private enterprise had better not be afraid of an unbalanced budget.

There is a great deal of what, to one who studied economics before the first World War, under Frank W. Taussig and Edwin F. Gay, sounds like humpty-dumpty economics. But Mr. Chase sees no other way than his own to explain the unorthodox success of the German, Italian and Japanese governments in continuing to live and operate despite violation of all the old rules of the game. And his Yankee habit of mind—of beginning with an analysis of what happens rather than with deduction from accepted general principles—is extraordinarily convincing, and lively reading to boot. The title of the book is the same as that of an article which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post for June 17, 1939, by one Wendell Willkie. But I do not gather that Mr. Chase will vote for Willkie next November.

Aliens' Trek to D. C. Postoffices To Register Gains Momentum

Nearly 700 Listed and Fingerprinted Here In First Two Days of Drive; Equipment Lack Slows Work in Few Instances

With the exception of isolated difficulties due chiefly to inability of the manufacturers to deliver fingerprinting equipment on time, the Federal Government's drive for registration of aliens began to pick up momentum last night.

The increased tempo was reflected in Washington where registrations at the City Postoffice and 19 substations ran more than 50 ahead of Monday's total.

Postmaster Vincent Burke said the total for the day was more than 355, which would bring the number registered in the first two days of the drive to nearly 700.

Only Few Delays

Of the 7,300 first, second and county seat postoffices at which registrations are being taken throughout the country, not more than three or four were forced to delay the job due to lack of equipment.

One of these was Alexandria, Va., where officials attributed the delay both to absence of registration forms in adequate amounts and fingerprinting apparatus. Nearly 50 Alexandria aliens are waiting to be registered, local officers reported, while officials at the Department of Justice gave assurances that all necessary equipment will be delivered in time to start registration today.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and San Antonio, Tex., also were without materials for taking fingerprints, officials explaining that there simply had not been enough time for the Philadelphia manufacturer to deliver all of the 7,300 printing sets before deadline.

When the registration job is finished December 27, the print sets probably will be turned over to the Postoffice Department, officials said. They pointed out that the equipment would be useful in enrolling Army conscripts should the draft bill pass.

No official reports on registration progress will be available here earlier than today, but officials quoted Solicitor General Francis Biddle as being "extremely well pleased" with results.

Windsor's Aide Denies Duke Plans To Visit U. S.

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug. 28 (AP).—Capt. Vyvyan Drury denied today a New York report that he had been making quiet preparations for the Duke of Windsor to visit the United States and Canada.

Drury, one of the Duke's two aides de camp, flew here today from Miami after visiting in Canada and the United States. He said he had no knowledge of the former British King's intentions.

(It was reported in New York that Drury disclosed to close friends that he had been arranging quietly for the Duke's projected trip. The Duke had said in Bermuda, on his way to Nassau, that he thought he would pay another visit to New York. Such a journey undoubtedly would include a stop at the Duke's cattle ranch in Canada.)

D. C. School Patrol Leaders to Get Camp Training

One hundred and fifty safety patrol leaders of Metropolitan Washington schools will leave the District Saturday morning for Camp Ernest W. Brown at Scotland Beach, Md., where they will undergo a ten-day training period.

Artist Chandor and Texan Wife Pay Brief Visit Here, Then Slip Out of Town

Portrayer of Roosevelts Leaves For Atlantic City on Way to New York After Breakfast With Representative Rayburn

By Hope Ridings Miller

WHEN DOUGLAS CHANDOR, noted British artist, and his attractive American-born wife come to town, their arrival usually is a signal for a round of partying. They have a host of friends here, and no matter how far you look you can't find a more delightful pair to fete.

But after a very brief visit here early this week, the two slipped out of town early yesterday en route to Atlantic City and will go from there to Southampton, Long Island, to spend this week-end.

Hope Ridings Miller

They came up from their home in Weatherford, Tex., and expect to stop in for a few days at their place on New York's fashionable Fifty-seventh street before heading South again next month. But short as their Washington visit was, they did find time to look up a few friends. They had breakfast with Representative Sam Rayburn on Capitol Hill yesterday morning, and the evening before, they dropped in for a visit with George Abell, whom they have known for years. The latter recently returned from Mexico City, where the Chandors have spent much time.

Friends here have been very much interested in Mr. Chandor's most recent portrait—a study of Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President. A gift from her to her son, the canvas is to hang in his library at Hyde Park.

President's Portrait Now in Texas Capital

Painting a Roosevelt is not a new experience for Mr. Chandor. A number of Washingtonians can recall that he came here a few years ago to do the President's portrait. Calling one day at the White House, he had difficulty in getting past the door.

"What have you got there," asked the guard, pointing suspiciously to a pack of materials the artist had under his arm.

"Why that," said Chandor, "is my easel."

"Well, you can't carry no animal in there," he was told.

But fact is, the "animal" did get in; and Chandor along with it. Not once but several times. And the resulting canvas later was purchased by the Texas Legislature and now hangs in splendor on the walls of the State Capitol.

Wouldn't Be Portrayed A 'Grinning Old Lady'

Mrs. Roosevelt, the President's mother, posed at the Chandor studio in New York. Her only stipulation was that the picture must not portray her as "a grinning old lady." She sat five times, for a period of half an hour each, while Mrs. Chandor played Debussy selections and all three enjoyed a pleasant round of talk between times. The portrait shows her in a pensive mood—nothing of the grinning old lady there—and critics invited to a private showing the day after the study was completed pronounced it the best ever done of her.

In recent months Mr. Chandor has not devoted all his time to painting. Friends report that he has turned his talented hand to writing and that he recently completed a play which may be produced on Broadway. And for recreation, he has been putting a few finishing touches on the Japanese garden near his studio, White Shadows, in Weatherford. Just how plumed beds of chrysanthemums and gardenia hedges can be induced to grow in West Texas, I don't know; but I understand they are all part of a landscape marvel that is a show spot in that section of the State.

Many Celebrities Have Sat for Him

A portrait painter who looks the part, Mr. Chandor is long and lean, has an ascetic face, dark hair and dreamy eyes, and generally accents his observations with contemplative puffs on a briar pipe. For more than a decade he has lived in this country, but his "a's" are still as broad as the Thames and his devotion to his native land—to all things British in fact—grows more marked with the years.

In the late 1920s Mr. Chandor made his first trip to this country to do the portrait of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury at the commission of Lord Duveen. What was intended to be a three months' visit lengthened into six years, and before he knew it he was calling America "home." A Texas girl can be credited with that, and she is now his wife. She is the former Mrs. Ina Kuteman Hill and her home town of Weatherford is now Chandor's permanent address.

To go back a bit—at the age of 23, Chandor was well on his road to fame. His portrayal of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales won wide acclaim, and commissions from the great and near-great soon were pouring in from all parts of the globe. Since then, scores of international celebrities have sat for him. And ever so often he comes back to Washington to add another portrait to his collection of famous Americans.

Is Authority on Charm and Beauty

Incidentally, having painted representative women in many countries, he is something of an authority on charm and beauty. The former he defines as "a harmony between personality and appearance." I remember his saying "Some of the most charming women I've ever put on canvas were not pretty at all; some of the prettiest weren't at all beautiful. You see it's this way—a woman doesn't have to be beautiful to be charming, but she has to be charming to be beautiful."

Furthermore, he is convinced that cleverness in large doses is fatal to charm. "American women are generally good conversationalists," he went on, "but the wisest of them are considered good talkers because they spent most of their time listening."

That's exactly what he said. And it does makes sense.

Mrs. W. F. Kelley, Now in West, Will Return Sept. 9

Mrs. William Fitch Kelley, former president of the League of Republican Women of the District of Columbia, will return to Washington September 9 after a summer in the West. During a visit to Iowa, Mrs. Kelley attended a political meeting in Des Moines and met both Mr. and Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie. She also visited Illinois, Missouri and Michigan.

Mrs. Kelley will be at the Wardman Park until November 1, when she will take over her place, The Knoll, on Rockville Pike, which has been rented for the past year.

Mr. Wynne to Marry Catherine Rucker

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rucker, of Fairfax County, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Ann, to Southgate Leigh Wynne, of Norfolk and Fredericksburg.

The wedding will take place September 28 in Dulin Chapel, Falls Church. Miss Rucker was graduated from Mary Washington College in June.

Lorraine Thompson Becomes Bride of Harry W. Proctor

The Rev. Thomas G. Smyth Officiates At Evening Ceremony in Rectory Of Church of Blessed Sacrament

The wedding of Miss Lorraine Janet Thompson, daughter of Mrs. John McQuaid Thompson, of New York, to Harry William Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse T. Proctor, of Washington, took place at 8 o'clock last evening in the rectory of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. The rector, the Rev. Thomas G. Smyth, officiated.

Dr. Frank A. Robey gave the bride in marriage. Her ivory satin gown had a matching finger tip veil trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Jane Keemle was maid of honor, wearing pale green marquisette with a matching hat and cartying peach colored gladioli. Carey Proctor served as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Frank A. Robey, jr., and Robert Shields.

A reception at the bride's apartment followed the ceremony. Mrs. Thompson was gowned in gold crepe with a corsage of rosebuds, and the bridegroom's mother had chosen blue chiffon with a cluster of gardenias.

As her going away costume, the bride chose a Navy blue silk, tailored suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids. After a honeymoon at Virginia Beach the couple will live in Washington.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Carey Proctor, of Pittsburgh; Miss Julia Fallon, of Greenwich, Conn.; Miss Marie Sanchez, of New York, and Leo Van Felt, of Pittsburgh.

The bride attended Immaculata Seminary in Washington and the Katherine Gibbs School in New York. Her husband is a graduate of the University of Southern California and of National Law School and is a member of the District of Columbia bar.

Lady Broderick To Return East

Lady Broderick and her daughter, Miss Sheila Broderick, who are visiting the former's niece, Miss Celina McGraw, in San Francisco, plan to start back east shortly after Labor Day. Having canceled plans to return to their home in Dublin until next spring, they will make a series of visits in the East in the next few months.

They will be with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Broderick in Green Acres, Md., for a few weeks and then they plan to visit Lady Broderick's sister, Mrs. Frederick Tabor, of Aiken, S. C., at her summer place on Cape Cod.

En route to the West Coast, Lady Broderick and her daughter stopped in Denver to see Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bratton, former Washington residents, who moved to Colorado some time ago.

A. degrees from Oberlin College. He is a research technician at the Osborn Laboratory of Yale University.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Will Make Home Here After Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Vinton E. Lee, who were married last Friday, will make their home at the McReynolds Aapartments on their return from a wedding trip to Boston. The bride is the former Miss Janie Ruth Gammon, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Fallin Gammon and the late William Edward Gammon, of Danville, Va. Mr. Lee, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lee, of Hampton, Va., is with a local accounting firm.

The couple were married at noon at St. John's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton officiating. The bride wore a street-length white silk jersey dress with a shoulder corsage of white orchids.

Ann Stohlman Is Married To Mr. Whitty

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Chevy Chase Girl and D. C. Man

In a candlelight setting of white flowers and palms, Miss Ann Stohlman was married yesterday morning at 11 to Richard P. Whitty, jr. The ceremony took place at the Shrine of the Most Blessed Sacrament, the Rev. Thomas G. Smyth officiating.

The bride is the daughter of J. William Stohlman, jr., of 21 Drummond avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., who gave her in marriage, and Mrs. Stohlman. She wore an ivory satin gown made with a sweetheart neckline, a tightfitting bodice shirred at the waist, full skirt and long train. Her full length ivory veil fell from a cluster of valley lilies, and she carried white roses and the lilies with an orchid in the center.

Sister Serves as Maid of Honor

Miss Mae Stohlman, who served as maid of honor for her sister, wore green net fashioned with an embroidered jacket and a standing Queen Anne's collar. She carried an arm bouquet of black-eyed Susans. The bridesmaids, the Misses Anais Harding, Mary Alice O'Connor, Patricia Slattery and Frances Garvey, were similarly dressed in yellow net, with black-eyed susans tied with brown velvet ribbon as headdresses. They carried arm bouquets of the flowers.

Mr. Whitty, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitty, of Washington, had Andrew Mahoney as his best man. The ushers were Edward J. Harding, jr., William Kenealy, Thomas Mahoney and Michael Doyle, jr.

Reception Follows At Women's Club

A reception at the Chevy Chase Women's Clubhouse followed the ceremony. Mrs. Stohlman wore a dress of hunter's green crepe with a velvet turban to match, and Mrs. Whitty was in gray with wine accessories.

After a honeymoon in New England, the couple will live at 5507 Center street, Kirkside, Chevy Chase, Md. When she left for her wedding trip, the bride wore a cocoa brown frock with darker accessories. She studied at Immaculata Seminary and Mr. Whitty attended Catholic University.

Luncheon Honors Miss Whipple, To Marry Lieut. Lang Saturday

Mrs. G. V. Strong Entertains for Bride-Elect at Army-Navy Country Club; Members of the Wedding Party Present

From now until Saturday when Miss Sarah Bailey Whipple becomes the bride of Lieut. Cornelis DeWitt Wilcox Lang, life for the bride-elect is going to be just one party after another.

Handkerchiefs of every description showered down on her from all directions yesterday following the luncheon given in her honor by Mrs. G. V. Strong, wife of Brig. Gen. Strong. The Army-Navy Country Club was the scene of the party, which was attended by members of the wedding party, the mother of the bride-elect and several other friends.

Mrs. John W. Lang, mother of the prospective bridegroom shared honors with Miss Whipple at the luncheon, where covers were laid for 12. Others in the company were Mrs. Sherburne Whipple, mother of the honoree; Mrs. William J. Morton, of Sewanee, Tenn., a cousin of the bride-elect who will serve as matron of honor; Miss Mary J. Hobson, of Fort Benning, Ga., selected as maid of honor; Mrs. Howard Snyder, whose husband, Lieut. Snyder, will be an usher, and Mrs. Sherburne Whipple, jr., sister-in-law of the bride-elect.

Still others there were Mrs. James H. Polk, Mrs. E. M. Watson and Mrs. Charles D. Hartman, who will fete Miss Whipple at another luncheon today at the Army-Navy Country Club. Tomorrow evening Miss Whipple will entertain members of her wedding party at a dinner at the Shoreham, the party to take place immediately after the wedding rehearsal. That same evening Col. and Mrs. Whipple will be hosts at another table at the Shoreham. Their company will include members of the family and out-of-town guests.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Learns of Husband's Casual Infidelities While Expecting His Third Child: What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What would you advise a young married woman to do, when she is pregnant and has two small children, and learns that her husband is being promiscuously unfaithful to her? I am that woman. I lost my love for my husband long ago, because of his selfish, callous, unsympathetic nature. But I have never withheld myself from him. I have continued to try to make an agreeable life for us, based (for my part) on an appreciation of certain good qualities he has.

But now that I know about his other women, I have lost all respect for him and I don't see how I can continue to live with him in any peace of mind. On the other hand, I don't see how I can do anything else. I have no money and I know I couldn't get a job and support my children in the way they're being taken care of now.

Also, I have elderly parents, who would find it an almost unbearable shock if I should leave my husband, as I have never shown that I was anything but happy in my ten years of married life. Are there many women who live with their husbands only to have a home for themselves and their children? DISTRAUGHT.

Situation Necessitates Unemotional Compromise

DEAR DISTRAUGHT: I expect there are a great many women who continue to live with their respective husbands for shrewdly selfish business reasons, after every vestige of romance and mutual sympathy has died out of the relationship—supposing they would be relinquishing much material comfort in separating from the man.

And there have been, of course, countless unsung domestic heroines in every generation since marriage began, who remained with morally worthless husbands for a lifetime—"for the children's sake," because it was their stanch maternal determination to serve their children's social welfare ahead of their own one-time hopes of happiness.

It is a fairly recent social phenomenon, that when the domestic sky becomes overcast with storm clouds, husband or wife immediately thinks to take refuge in the divorce court. In ages past, when a woman was confronted by a disillusionment comparable to yours, most often she picked up the pieces of her shattered dream and did what she could—in courage, ingenuity and generally never-say-die spirit — to make something personally and socially acceptable of the remnants. And not infrequently her valorous efforts resulted in a substantial harvest at a later season.

There is much to be said for hewing valiantly to a charted course, regardless of the penalties and disappointments, the heartaches and betrayals encountered along the way. And there is—as many divorcees live to learn—as much selfishness, callousness and lack of sympathy extant in an indifferent world, as ever was encountered in miniature in the heart and behavior of a faithless husband.

In your case, it appears that your husband, despite his deplorable weaknesses, does provide a genuine and, indeed, an indispensable form of social protection to you and the children. Since you are expecting a baby at this time, obviously it is impossible for you to undertake to support yourself for months to come. And if, as you freely admit, you never could hope to support the children on a separate maintenance arrangement as well as your husband can support them under his roof with your collaboration—then it seems a waste of time and breath to be asking, "What shall I do?"

Plainly the only thing to do is to work out some business-like compromise adjustment to his weaknesses, within the framework of the marriage. If you cannot continue to go through the motions of being his wife, while pretending ignorance of his infidelities—then tell him quietly what you have learned and how you feel about it. From that starting point, you may find it possible to shift the relationship to a more honest basis, that will take care of the situation so long as the children need your joint support.

Since you have long since ceased to love him, and since he now habitually seeks consolation elsewhere, it becomes a simpler matter for you to reach an emotionless meeting of minds on the problem under discussion. You may, for instance, agree to go your separate ways, in spirit and recreationally—even while collaborating in the project of maintaining a home for the youngsters you have begot. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Fashion Design Self-Taught

AN INSPIRATION to those who like to draw—the great illustrators who appear in national magazines. If you could only follow in their footsteps!

Perhaps you have even tried to draw like a favorite artist and failed, thinking discouragedly you have no talent. More likely you have been going at it the wrong way.

Following professional methods, many problems that have baffled you become simple. In home study, with the aid of charts and diagrams, you can learn to draw the human figure well.

Instead of trying to do outlines and details all at one time, you learn to analyze the body in simple geometric forms, drawing it section by section as the diagram shows.

First—the oval shape of the head and the column of the neck. Second—the oblong form of the torso, from the line of the shoulders to the waistline. Third—from the waistline to knees, giving the long converging forms of the thighs. Fourth—the tapering descent from knees to ankles.

You practice drawing these "structural" figures in various positions—seated, walking, running—as you would for illustrations. Then you add details; you give "roundness" to your figures by light and shade; you clothe them and compose several together to make them tell a story.

In our 40-page booklet, "A Simple Course in Illustration and Advertising Art," Arthur Zaidenberg gives professional instruction—with 237 illustrations and diagrams—on drawing the figure, adding details of features, clothing, expression. Explains light and shade, foreshortening, perspective, composition, the drawing of horses and dogs.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "A Simple Course in Illustration and Advertising Art," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Tea for Tanning

Hollywood, Calif. — Barbara Stanwyck has such a lovely, even tan that she needs very little make-up for her role in "Meet John Doe." Said tan was achieved with ordinary tea brewed just five times as long as the tea Barbara drinks, then doused over her skin before her sun bath. She says it will also take the burn out of sunburn. The tannic acid does it.

New Straight Line Silhouette Has Variations for Thin Woman

Gloria McGeehee, slender daughter of the Representative from Mississippi, models a patrician dinner dress especially created by American Designer Jo Copeland for the important functions of the fall season. Gloria's auburn-brown hair reflects the interesting copper tones of her crepe gown. Both the dress and sheer wool jackets of matching copper color feature a classic motif of gold braid

Dinner and Evening Frocks Show Many Softening Influences; Simple Elegance and Classic Drapery Prevail

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

IN ADVANCE of Labor Day and the return of Washington's "best-dressed women," a shipment of handsome custom-type clothes has just arrived in town. These are clothes for the discriminating woman who enjoys shopping leisurely, and locally, but who wants her selections to bear a New York air of assurance.

Marshall Adams

The silhouettes in these newly arrived costumes vary sharply, which is fortunate for the tall, very thin woman who can't wear the sheath silhouettte any better than can the tubby little woman wear the flounced dress. The sheath is represented in gowns by the house of Pattullo who have done some masterful black wool crepes with slim jackets of heavier black wool, cut as straight and plain as a die.

Illusion of Height

Among the most perfect illustrations of this straight, thin silhouette is a dinner dress designed by Miss Jo Copeland, the brilliant young stylist for the Pattulos. The original of this dress was bought by Film Star Joan Crawford. The model combines a severe black crepe skirt with a flame-red overblouse, the sole trimming being a collar and belt of black jet.

"Women built along the broad-shouldered, curved lines of la Crawford could easily end their search right here for the dinner dress that would make men admire, other women envious of their figures. Crawford actually is less than 5 feet 5, but due to her correct posture and this type of simple, lean line she has lately been adopting in dress, she looks and feels inches taller.

The flounced silhouette, indorsed by Germaine Monteil, dean of the French-American dressmakers, is a difficult one to wear. Yet, it is surprisingly good on angular women. The flounce, or pleats, which start well below the hipline and which are supported by a tubular jacket, or torso dress, give a softness and prettiness to skinny figures.

Side Drape or Classic Cut

Mme. Monteil interprets this silhouette in black or winey brown wool for suits, in racey plumb or Benedictine colors for wool crepe dresses. Even her cosmetics play up these rich, warm tones. The Monteil dresses are plain, with no more accent than a few jet buttons, a brass studded belt or a wool knit collar inserted in a plain neckline.

The alternate silhouette interpreted by Mme. Monteil is the side-draped one. This is skillfully done in drapeable honey-toned duvetyn, usually with a high-draped neck and squared-off shoulders, cut along a secret pattern and used exclusively by this dressmaker. There is a Grecian classicism of line for fall too, at its best in a Nettie Rosenstein evening gown just arrived in Washington.

It is not a dress for the layman, but for the woman with a well-developed sense of artistic proportions. Of ice blue crepe, a Bacchante touch is felt in the hand-worked borders of seed pearls and gold, simulating grapes and leaves and vines, which twine round the girdle, the sleeve borders and around the false bolero of this remarkable gown.

Taffeta and Organdie

Hollywood, Calif.—Ida Lupino, dancing till dawn, wore a startling long torso evening gown showing a tightly swathed black taffeta bodice and a bouffant skirt in white organdie. Two black taffeta flowers were pinned in her hair.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

End of Summer

Well, Sunday would be the first of September. Why summer was virtually gone! Another summer!

And there were all the things she had planned to do and hadn't—the walks in the woods . . . the swimming and exercises to take those matronly bulges off her figure . . . the digging in the garden . . . the reading up on political affairs . . . the sun-tanning . . . the resting . . . the getting back to nature.

Yes, and the vacation! The little cruise she and Dad had talked so much about, and that someway had been put off from week to week because it never seemed to fit in. Well, there was still time for one week . . . at some quiet spot where she could do a little thinking out of things . . . get organized in her mind and store up a little spiritual treasure to sustain her through the confused whirl of winter.

Yes, they must plan to go off right away. No, wait! Sister would be home from camp in another week! . . . Still, they could run off for a few days—no, Sister wanted to bring two girls home with her for the week-end.

Then right after that Sister and Junior and Buddy would be getting ready for school. And summer clothes would have to be cleaned and put away, the house fixed up for winter.

She looked around. Yes, that crack in the dining room plaster was showing up more, and the paper was fading. And the floors ought to be sanded and scraped . . . and there were the new window shades . . . and the radiator covers. Well, it was a good thing they hadn't planned too definitely on any vacation. Dad could slip away for a few days' fishing and that would be enough.

Then there was the fall shopping. She'd really have to get a new dinner dress—her old black velvet one was getting so shiny she had to back away from people. And then, of course, a few things for the house—linens, bed coverings—she must get the elderdown puffs because Dad hated sleeping under weight—and there were the fall housewares bargains and those iced tea glasses she'd been wanting so long . . . and something really had to be done about the cookstove, unless they wanted to lose Viola. Yet if she got a new coat—oh, well, the cookstove could wait.

It had been that way all summer—one thing after another. Doing the pressing things about the house at the beginning of the season and praying the others would hold over till fall. Then the children home from school and their belongings everywhere. Then getting Sister ready for camp. And helping Junior on his Boy Scout projects. Keeping open house for Buddy's friends. Entertaining the people who wouldn't "last over." Pushing on desperately to get a free week or even a day ahead, then finding herself submerged in a deluge of unexpected things.

Every day the same old futile round—breakfast, lunch, dinner, and between snacks for the children . . . cleaning, mending, replenishing, marketing. Every day swept into oblivion on a tidal wave of trifles.

These seasonal milestones made her feel so futile and baffled. Nothing to show for what she had done. And yet . . . yet . . . after all, was there nothing? To have kept a house running smoothly, a sanctuary for those who dwelt in it, was that nothing? Why, who knew but out of this summer's petty household grind there might not have been created intangible influences, inspirations, impulses that would go on forever? And, anyway, when you got down to it, wasn't it just what she wanted most of all to do?

She walked into the kitchen and looked out with a speculative eye. Yes, a new linoleum and—of course, a new cookstove.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Mrs. Richard W. Deaver, Welcome Wagon Hostess, Greets Most Newcomers Here

MRS. RICHARD W. DEAVER is the first person many newcomers meet when they arrive in town. She is the Washington hostess for the Welcome Wagon, an institution that has flourished here for nine years. Her job is to acquaint new residents with local merchants by presenting them with milk, butter, coffee, baked goods and other useful items.

Mrs. Deaver

"It's really a social call," she explains. "After I've given the woman her basket of groceries, I answer questions about schools, clubs and churches. Sometimes I'm invited for tea, or we arrange to meet later for lunch. I've met some charming people."

At present, with embassy, Army and Navy families descending on Washington in swarms, she averages 10 to 15 calls a day. She learns of her new arrivals through moving companies, real estate offices and apartment house owners. Sometimes a woman finds out about the service from a friend and calls to ask why Mrs. Deaver hasn't been to see her. "We try not to miss any, but occasionally one gets by," she says.

Post photographers had a hard time persuading employes at the General Accounting Office to pose for the recent "Our Town in Pictures" section. The difficulty seemed to be that they did not want their friends back home to see them in their gingerbready environment; they must keep up the illusion that all Government employes work in marble halls.

Life at the Washington Self-Help Exchange has been brightened lately by five canaries, presented by Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Miss Sibyl Baker and an anonymous contributor. Outstanding singer of the quintet lives in the U street building's dining room, where it provides a musical background for the two meals served daily. At its debut, it started singing merrily just after the workers entered the room. They laid down knives and forks and sat in silence until it finished its song, then burst spontaneously into applause.

TALE OF THE TIMES—A housewife with no sales resistance and a strong-minded husband was out-talked one afternoon by a peregrinating linen salesman. He managed to get into the living room and spread his wares over every available piece of furniture. The woman inspected the linen yearningly, but kept a nervous eye on the driveway, for her husband was due to arirve.

Finally the car appeared. "You must go now," she cried to the salesman. "Here's my husband." Misinterpreting the urgency in her voice, he frantically collected his merchandise and crammed it into his suitcase. The surprised husband thereupon was greeted with the sight of a strange man sprinting out of his home, obviously expecting a rifle shot to ring out any second.

Beauty Secrets

Is Your Face Round?

IF YOU have a round face, consider yourself lucky because you will look youthful for years to come. However, to make the most of this type of face you must pay special attention to your coiffure and make-up.

Here are some "do's" and "don't" to consider that will emphasize your best points and camouflage your bad ones:

Don't slick the hair back severely or coif it in dips or round, flat curls. And don't wear straight bangs.

Do wear your hair waved softly and dressed full above the ears to create the illusion of length.

Don't use a straight eyebrow line or make a thread line of your brows. This makes the features look heavy. Don't use eye shadow that contrasts with the coloring of your eyes.

Don't put rouge on in a circle. It accentuates the roundness of the face.

Do wear your rouge on the outer portion of the cheeks carying it up toward the temple and down to shade the jaw line very faintly. Use a dark complexion—blending tone of rouge. Light rouge accentuates fullness, dark rouge creates shadows and reduces width.

Don't overemphasize your mouth with heavy lip rouge, a high curve or a cupid's bow.

Do make up your mouth delicately, but as wide as possible. Full width of the mouth will reduce the distance from the corners to the jawline.

Big Scale Baking Is Time-Saver For Housewives

If housewives will do big scale baking once a week, they can coast the rest of the t ime with a minimum of actual cooking. This means a lot in scorching weather.

On that big day, stir up a batch of cookie dough and a batch of biscuit mix. Prepare a baked meat or fish loaf and assorted salad dressings. Tuck 'em all away in the refrigerator.

Bake fruit or nut bread loves, berry muffins, loaf cake or gingerbread and a coffee ring. Store carefully and you are set for days.

STAFFORD LOAF, a new bread, is delicious. It keeps moist several days, when wrapped in waxed paper and kept in the bread box. Mix together 2 cups flour, 1½ cups graham or whole wheat flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup dark brown sugar, ¼ cup molasses, 1 egg, 1 2-3 cups buttermilk (or sour milk), 2-3 cup chopped candied orannge peel and 2 tablespoons melted fat. Pour into a greased loaf pan and let rise 15 minutes. Bake an hour in a moderate oven.

Red Is the Word For Decorations This Autumn

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

The latest color news for fall decoration is red—fine lusty shades of it like cherry red, crimson, wine red, flame red and vermillion. The rosy-rusts are in again, too, in such tints as brick and terra cotta, dusty rose and cocoa. Among the blues, turquoise, periwinkle and grape-blue, slate, ice blue, French blue, powder blue are the shades we'll be seeing. The yellow-greens are the things with chartreuse, lime, almond, green and on toward emerald green as the specific colors in question.

Yellow in the deep golds as well as in pale shades is increasing in importance. Beiges are first among the neutrals, with gray in warm tones also being used, especially with incisive contrasts such as flame, lemon yellow or coral. Pastels will continue to predominate but they'll be highlighted with a positive dramatic color.

Damask has a new lease on life with new yarn combinations and variations in weaving. Patterns break away from the hackneyed old motifs, branching out in fresh florals, leaves, ferns and feathers as well as laurel garlands, architectural details, scrolls.

Leathers are going to be a really new innovation for drapery as well as upholstery for they are available in qualities supple enough for draping, tucking, quilting, embroidering and in novel markings such as tortoise shell, and in all colors and tints.

Embroidered muslins, organdies, nets and voiles are in high vogue for curtains. Stripes are more popular and versatile than ever, while florals and prints are rampageously ornamentaal. Fiberglas, that new glass made of glass thread is now perfected to the point where it can be printed in all sorts of smart patterns and in any subtle color.

Eating and Lounging, Not Going Without Girdle, Cause Spreading of Figures in Summertime

By Ida Jean Kain

There's a popular notion that going without your girdle in the summer is the ruination of your figure—but, believe me, it's the subversive combination of lounging around and eating that does the damage.

Girdle or not, it's keeping your muscles in tone and exercising reasonable restraint at the table that holds your figure in check. Relax caution too much and no amount of lacing will do more than make you look well corseted!

There's a limit to waistline if you are to appear smart in dress-up clothes. An old rule allows you 25 inches of waist for 5 feet of height with an extra half-inch of waist for each additional inch of height. But with the current trend in figures this allowance is a whit liberal. A much better rule is scaled to your structure: The waistline should be around 8 inches less than the normal bust circumference. This proportion is lovely, provided weight is normal.

Here is the type of exercise that will give you a perfect foundation for your girdle:

Lie on the back on the floor, legs straight down, arms stretched up on the floor overhead. Now, the idea is to arc the body sideward while keeping arms, shoulders, buttocks and legs on the floor. Work the arms and legs around to the side to form a semi-circle. Relax and repeat the arc to the other side. Continue for eight counts. This is a good stiff exercise and one that will take you down by inches.

Still on the back on the floor, raise the legs straight up in the air to right angles with trunk. Now, shuttle legs, knees straight, back and forth eight times. This exercise gets one set of abdominal muscles—to get the other set, flex the knees and hold feet off the floor as you lie on your back. The exercises is to separate the knees as wide as possible, then bring them together. Perform 12 counts.

The third exercise slims the waist, tummy and hips. Lie on the back on the floor with the legs stretched straight down and hands clasped back of head with elbows on the floor. Flex the right knee and twist at the waist to touch the knee cap to the floor on the far side of the left leg. Try to keep the elbows on the floor, the tummy muscles pulled up and in. Repeat with other leg, alternating for 15 counts.

Kellog Pact Ideals Still Hold, Says Hull

Secretary Observes 12th Anniversary Of Peace Move

Secretary of State Hull yesterday marked the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the Kellog-Briand pact to outlaw war by voicing his certainty that peace will be reestablished and prescribing, in the meanwhile, "vigorous and adequate preparation for self-defense."

As war raged in Europe and Asia on the birthday of the pact, Secretary Hull observed that "no human being anywhere can be sure that he or she will be allowed for long to live in peace."

Recalling the high aims of the treaty, Hull said:

"The soundness of its underlying principles has in no way been impaired by what has taken place since then. Sooner or later they must prevail as an unshakeable foundation of international relations unless war with its horrors and ravages is to become the normal state of the world and mankind is to relapse into the chaos of barbarism."

Following is the full text of his statement:

Twelve years ago today, there was signed a solemn treaty outlawing war, to which this country and 60 other countries gave their unqualified adherence. In Article 1 of that treaty, the high contracting parties renounced war as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another. In Article 2, the high contracting parties agreed that "the settlement or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means." In exchanges of views preceding and accompanying the ratification of that treaty, it was accepted as a part of the general understanding that the right of self-defense is implicit in sovereignty and remains with each and all of the signatory and adhering states.

In recent years the renunciation made in Article 1 of the Kellogg-Briand Pact has been disregarded by some of the signatories; and the pledge given in Article 2 of that treaty has been violated by those signatories. Several nations have sent their armed forces into and against other countries. In consequence, destruction of life and of property, of material values and of spiritual values—destruction on a vast scale—not alone in the countries invaded but also in the countries whose armies are the invaders, is going on in various parts of the world.

Some of the invaded nations have been destroyed, some are fighting desperately in self-defense, and every other country, perceiving the manner in which activities of conquest spread and become enlarged as operations of conquest proceed, finds itself forced to arm as speedily as possible and to the utmost of its capacity in preparation for self-defense—toward preserving its own security by preventing war from reaching and crossing its boundaries.

Today no country and no individual is secure against the destructive effects of the existing armed conflicts. No human being anywhere can be sure that he or she will be allowed for long to live in peace. Only by vigorous and adequate preparation for self-defense can any country, including our own, hope to remain at peace.

It was to spare the human race the untold suffering and indescribable tragedy of the kind we are witnessing today that the Kellogg-Briand Pact was signed. The soundness of its underlying principles has in no way been impaired by what has taken place since then. Sooner or later they must prevail as an unshakeable foundation of international relations unless war with its horrors and ravages is to become the normal state of the world and mankind is to relapse into the chaos of barbarism. And I am certain that there are in the human race resources of mind and of spirit sufficient to ensure that these sane bases of civilized existence will become firmly established.

Death Claims W. J. Collins, Senate Press Gallery Chief

Friend of Statesmen And Journalists For Three Decades

WILLIAM J. COLLINS

William J. Collins, 61, superintendent of the Senate Press Gallery and friend of statesmen and journalists for more than three decades, died yesterday at 5:30 p. m.

Death came in his home, 3402 Dent place northwest, to the man who began his career as "Little Willie," a courier who wore out a bicycle carrying copy for his paper. He had been critically ill for a week.

Arrangements were being completed last night for his funeral Saturday morning in the Holy Trinity Church, Thirty-sixth and O streets northwest.

Began Term in 1909

"Willie" Collins, whose name, age and dignity changed to "Bill" and "William," officially served the Senate for 31 years, longer than any man now living save one, Senator Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith, of South Carolina. His official "term" began March 21, 1909, when he first became a member in good standing of the United States Senate Employes' Association and the Marching and Social Club of Capitol Hill and when he took charge of Senate Office Building pressroom during the fight over the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

Actually he became a figure around the Senate as early as 1898 when he rode an iron bicycle chasing copy from the Capitol to the editorial offices of the Evening Star.

Samuel G. Blythe, then chief of the Washington Bureau of the old New York World and one of the literally scores of correspondents, statesmen and even Presidents Willie was to know during his career, made young Mr. Collins an "editor" for the first and last time in his life.

Made "Broom Editor"

Blythe made Willie "broom editor" and put him in charge of the dust pan and other cleaning paraphernalia in the World's offices here. Willie held down the job for eight years and later jokingly boasted that he was the best "broom editor" in the business.

Probably no man in the country saw more news made or was of more help to the men who wrote it than William Collins. He was in the Senate press gallery when the Nation went to war in 1916 and he was at his desk about two weeks ago while the legislators were fighting out the draft bill to prepare the country for another emergency.

Guarded Press Conferences

He shared with William Donaldson, House press gallery superintendent, the duty of watching over the President's press conferences to see that none but bona fide newspaper men were admitted and to cry "all in" when the last of them had filed into the executive offices.

He had looked in on most Presidential press conferences from Wilson to Roosevelt, and in his home in Georgetown he had autographed photographs of every Chief Executive from Roosevelt to Roosevelt.

He was in charge of the press at the funerals of President Harding and the Unknown Soldier in the rotunda of the Capitol, and traveled with Herbert Hoover in 1928 and again in 1932.

Mr. Collins became assistant press gallery superintendent in 1913. He followed James D. Preston as superintendent when Preston resigned to become Senate librarian in 1931.

He was born in Washington September 23, 1879, and attended, first, St. Matthew's School, on K street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, and, later, the Force School on Massachusetts avenue.

List of Survivors

Mr. Collins is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Gertrude Collins; three daughters, Mrs. P. C. Darcey and Mrs. Raymond Hindley, Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Edward R. Duffey, Washington; two brothers, Maurice, Washington, and Edward Collins, Newark, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. Charles Pugh, Brooklyn, N. Y., and five grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Joseph Wills, Harold Beckley and Harry Dawes, his assistants in the Senate press gallery, and William J. Donaldson, Chester R. Thrift and Anthony P. Demma from the House press gallery.

Capt. Bowie, Geophysics Expert, Dies

Holder of Scientific Awards Had Been U. S. Geodetic Survey Chief

Capt. William Bowie, 68, internationally known engineering and geodetic authority, died yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital after an illness of several weeks.

CAPT. BOWIE

Chief of the Division of Geodesy of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey from 1909 until his retirement in 1937, Capt. Bowie was executive secretary of the Society of American Military Engineers and editor of its magazine at the time of his death.

He had won a number of awards, here and abroad, for his engineering and scientific attainments, and was the author of numerous scientific books and articles. His development of the theory of isostasy (theory that each unit column of earth from surface to center is approximately of the same weight) gained him international recognition.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Eighteenth and Church streets northwest, with burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Bowie; a son, Clagett Bowie, of Baltimore, and two brothers, John Bowie, of Grassland, Md., and Maj. Edward Bowie, of Berkeley, Calif.

During the World War he served as a major in the Army Engineer Corps, assigned to the mapping division in the Chief of Engineers Office at Washington.

He was a member of committees of a number of other scientific and engineering organizations.

Knox Denies Program Is 'Bogging Down'

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox yesterday joined the chorus of Administration officials who are assuring the country that the national defense program is not "bogging down."

The War Department added its voice by placing orders for 800 more planes, to cost $14,410,233. Of these, 850 will be trainers and 20 transports.

The Republican Cabinet member joined the argument over defense progress by making the following disclosures:

The Navy has 1,631 combat planes, 1,489 training planes and 21 miscellaneous craft under contract, but not yet delivered.

Construction of smaller war vessels is from ½-month to 8½ months ahead of schedule.

Employment in navy yards has increased 30 per cent.

Construction of temporary barracks and training stations is ahead of schedule in all instances.

Annapolis will take in 2,396 midshipmen at its opening September 13, the largest class since 1923, and the next class will be graduated February 7, 1941, four months earlier than usual.

Reply to Byrd

Secretary Knox's figures on Navy plane orders were offered in rebuttal of statements by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, that the Army and Navy have ordered only 343 planes in the last 100 days.

The Navy Secretary's statement followed President Roosevelt's assertion Tuesday that 10,015 planes are under construction for the Army and Navy. The President said that Byrd's actual figures were correct but his inference was dead wrong.

According to Knox's figures, the preponderance of the planes ordered by the Navy are for training and this, said Knox, is for obvious reasons.

The Navy chief termed "unintelligent" criticism of the preponderance of training planes. Senator Byrd's statements emphasized only combat plane orders and made no mention of contracts placed for trainers.

Secretary Knox explained that the military services are engaged in training manpower to operate the fleet of 25,000 planes which they hope to have in 1942.

Answering Byrd's charges directly, Knox said that during the specific June 1 to August 15 period mentioned by the Virginia Senator the Navy had contracted for 1,686 planes, of which 243 were combat ships, 1,401 trainers and 11 miscellaneous.

Byrd's charge last Saturday had been that the Navy "in the last 100 days" had ordered 243 combat planes and he displayed later a letter from Secretary Knox to prove it.

Naval Building Sped

Citing the speed of naval construction, Knox told his press conference that all of ten submarines on the ways are ahead of schedule, one being eight and one-half months ahead.

Of seven destroyers on the rush list, all are from one-half to three months ahead of schedule.

Two seaplane tenders are three and four and one-half months ahead, respectively, he said.

The Virginian said yesterday he had been "confirmed" by the President and he demanded that an "accurate picture" of the defense situation be placed before the public.

'Queen' to Appear At Cruise Tonight

Marcy Morgan, queen of the President's Cup Regatta, will make her first public appearance tonight in the Gold Cup Cruise aboard the Wilson's Line's Mount Vernon. The cruise is one of a series of activities being held to raise funds for the regatta, scheduled for September 14-29.

Curtiss Develops Dive Bomber Able to Carry Greater Loads

By International News Service

New York, Aug. 28.—Development of a new all-metal dive-bomber with unusually heavy fire power and a greater bomb-carrying capacity was disclosed tonight by Curtiss-Wright Corporation officials.

The new low-wing ship—to be known as the Curtiss XSB2C-1—is powered with a 1,700-horsepower Wright double-row cyclone 14-cylinder engine. The United States Navy, whose trial board soon will receive one of the bombers for test flights, cooperated in its development.

The bomber is designed to operate off aircraft carriers and to provide the American Fleet with a maximum offensive power by carrying formidable machine-gun armament and increased bomb loads at high speed over long distances, officials revealed.

The War Department announced yesterday a contract with Atlas Powder Co. for construction of a $14,215,000 ammunition loading plant near Ravenna, Ohio, about 15 miles from Akron.

The plant will be built by Atlas with Government funds, will be operated by Atlas and will be owned by the Government.

Construction will begin immediately on a tract of 17,000 acres being purchased near Ravenna and the project will require about 10 months.

Witchita, Kans., Aug. 29 (AP).—A $400,000 construction program designed to double production facilities of Beech Aircraft Co. was announced today by company officials.

Included in the work will be an assembly plant, a storage and parts building and an office building.

Officials said the expansion was necessary to handle a recent $3,500,000 Government contract for training planes.

Another D. C. Welfare Fund 'Found'

2d Discovery Brings Total to $73,879, Pulling Budget Rise in Jeopardy

Disclosure of a second unexpended balance in the 1940 direct relief, raising the unused "surplus" to $73,879, added to the embarrassment of District welfare officials seeking an increase in the forthcoming relief appropriations.

On top of the $29,000 left over from the direct aid funds, revealed three days ago, there was also $44,879 available for general relief through the transfer of dependent children from the direct relief category to the home care classification, which is covered by social security funds contributed equally by the Federal and District governments.

Welfare officials are frankly worried that the "surpluses" may be used to block their attempts to raise the present $900,000 direct relief fund to $1,200,000 for 1941-42 because of continually increasing requests for aid.

Welfare Director Robert E. Bondy pointed out that despite the defense program decreasing unemployment, applications for aid to unemployables in the District are more numerous today than ever. Many families on relief are getting less than their minimum needs, he said.

Two days ago The Post revealed that $29,000 had been left over in the direct relief fund through a mixup between the auditor's office and the public assistance division of the welfare department. Yesterday, Auditor Daniel J. Donovan added that $44,879 could have been similarly used had the dependent children been transferred to the social security rolls. Neither "surplus" can be used for future relief but must go into the general District treasury.

Bondy explained that the Welfare Department had been making transfers of eligible cases from the aid for dependent children account to the home care fund since last January. The failure to make all possible transfers, he indicated, was due chiefly to the lack of an adequate number of case workers.

The machinery for making the transfers is now working smoothly, he said, and as a result the auditor's office estimates that $45,000 more additional money will be available for general relief this year than last.

Capital News In Brief

'No Tickee, No Washee,' What's More, No Fooling

"No tickee, no washee," Sam Moy, 51, told a customer yesterday in his laundry at 432 Sixth street northwest.

The customer became insistent. He had paid for his wash, he said, and was going to get it, tickee or no tickee.

"No tickee, no washee," said Moy.

Whereupon the customer became irate, pulled out a penknife and slashed at Sam, pinking the laundryman on the hand.

It was Moy's turn to become irate. As his wife and five children watched, he picked up two ping-pong paddles and a tin horn and drove the irate customer from the shop.

Peace Group Dances Despite Draft Passage

The Senate's passage of the conscription bill last night failed to dim the festivities of 150 members of the Washington Peace Mobilization. They staged a dance at Stansbury Hall, 5832 Georgia avenue northwest, to celebrate the departure of an expected 200 delegates to a convention of the national organization over Labor Day weekend in Chicago.

Outlining plans for a petition to "Keep America Out of War" and "Keep America Democratic," a spokesman commented:

"Now we'll just have to concentrate on the House."

2 D. C. Women Win Letter-Writing Prizes

Two women of the Washington area were awarded cash prizes yesterday as winners in letter-writing contests.

Miss C. Eleanor Fox, of 323 North Oxford street, Arlington, a buyer for S. Kann Sons Co., won $200 when her letter was selected as best of 812 entries in a corset-sales contest sponsored by W. B. Foundations, Inc., of Newark, N. J.

True Story Magazine presented an award to Mrs. Mary Veihmeyer, of 3130 V place southeast, for her letter, "I'll Never Forget," presented in a national radio contest.

D. C. Red Cross Ships Huge Bundles to Britain

The District Red Cross yesterday shipped 20 packing cases of surgical dressings and garments, a total of 32,000 articles, to Great Britain for war-relief use. Thirty layettes, consisting of 900 baby garments, were sent to Charleston, S. C., which recently suffered from a severe coastal storm.

Physician Hit by Car On Way to Patient

Hurrying to attend a patient, a Providence Hospital staff physician was struck by a car yesterday and taken to his own hospital with a broken arm and leg.

D. C. Holdups Increase 30% In Six Months

Record Better Than U. S. Average in Some Crimes, FBI Reports

If Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, throws his chest out a little farther this week, who can blame him? For three of the four classifications of crime reported on the increase in the Nation by the Department of Justice actually decreased in the District.

By the same token, however, the police chief can hang his head. For one particular crime—robbery—reported lessened during the first six months of this year by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, showed a 30 per cent increase locally.

Crime statistics disclosed by the Uniform Crime Reports bulletin released by the FBI yesterday showed that aggravated assaults, larcenies, burglaries and automobile thefts increased throughout the country as much as 6 per cent. The figures were taken from records supplied by more than 4,000 law enforcement agencies, it was said.

The bulletin revealed a decrease in three major offenses—murder, rape and robbery—while local statistics showed that murder, assault, burglary and larceny were not as numerous here as during the first six months of 1939.

Automobile thefts, reported on the rise by both jurisdictions, increased 5.1 per cent in Washington. The average increase throughout the country was reported as only 1.2 per cent.

The FBI reported that more arrests of persons 19 years old were made during the period covered than any other single age group. This condition, it was said, has been the same since the first Uniform Crime Report was published ten years ago.

Women in crime were represented by 8.2 per cent of the arrest records examined, the report disclosed, an increase of 1.1 per cent over the comparable period of 1939. Thirty-three per cent of 298,423 fingerprint records examined by the G-men were taken from persons under 25 years of age.

District Schools and Colleges Set Dates for Fall Reopening

Only 20 more shopping days before school begins—and less for those who attend private or parochial institutions.

Junior and Jane, just back from camp, are being hurried down and outfitted with school togs. Older brothers and sisters are preparing for the fall semester at universities and colleges. Stores selling school supplies are mobilizing their forces for the rush that will come with the advent of September.

All of the schools under the Board of Education will open September 23. Students of the junior and senior high schools and of Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges may register any time after Labor Day. The principals and secretaries will be in their offices at the school buildings daily. Elementary pupils will enroll Friday, September 20, from 8:30 to 10 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m. and, on Saturday, September 21, from 8:30 to 10 a. m.

Classes will also open September 23 at George Washington University. Freshman registration will be September 18 and for other students September 19 through September 21.

Freshman orientation week at American University opens September 20 for the undergraduate school. Registration will be September 23 and 24, with classes opening September 25. For the downtown center, 1901 to 1907 F street, registration will be from September 16 through September 24, with classes beginning September 25.

Classes at National University open September 23, with registration the week of September 16.

Georgetown University will have freshman registration September 16; junior and sophomore, September 23; seniors, September 25, and classes will begin for each group the day following registration.

Catholic University's registration will be September 14 through September 21, with classes for freshmen starting September 28, and for other students September 24.

Columbus University will have registration September 16 and 17 and classes September 23.

The National Catholic School for Social Service opens September 25, with registration the previous day.

Trinity College, a Catholic girls' school, has set September 19 for the opening of freshman week. Registration of new students will take place September 23, of others September 24, and classes start September 25.

Dunbarton College, also a Catholic school for girls, begins its freshman week September 10. Registration will be September 12, 13 and 14, and classes open September 16.

Washington College of Law will have registration September 16-17 with classes starting September 18.

Southeastern University has set registration for September 3 and classes September 16.

Benjamin Franklin University, where registration is now in progress, will open September 18.

Howard University, a coeducational institution for colored students, opens registration September 13 and classes September 16.

Chevy Chase Junior College—Registration for new students, September 23 and others, September 24; classes, September 26.

Fairmont School—Registration and openings, September 23.

Gunston Hall—Boarding pupils report September 24; classes, September 26.

Holton-Arms—New day pupils of upper school register, September 24; old day pupils, September 25; resident students of upper school, September 26; lower school, September 27; primary, September 30.

King-Smith—Boarding students register October 3; classes, October 7.

Mount Vernon Seminary—Registration, September 25.

National Cathedral School—Classes start September 27.

Other private schools are:

Curran Calls Green Guard To Inquiry

Subpenas Members After One Asserts Group's Motive Is Profit, Not Defense

Subpenas were issued last night for "several" members of the Green Guards of America, Inc., to appear at the offices of United States District Attorney Edward M. Curran for questioning in connection with Curran's investigation of the green-uniformed organization of women national defense trainees.

The District attorney began a "thorough" investigation of the organization yesterday following a conference with Mrs. Frank A. Werner, whose resignation as president of the Washington branch launched an intraorganization row Monday.

Present at the conference was Detective Sergt. Richard K. Felber, of the police department's check and fraud squad, who has had the Green Guard organization under surveillance for more than a week.

Profit Motive Denied

To Mrs. Werner's assertion that the organization was as much for profit as it was for patriotism, Mrs. Virginia Nowell, national president, replied last night by disclosing arrangements for Mrs. Werner's "court-martial."

Mrs. Werner has been asked to appear before a "court" of five judges, chosen from members of the organization, and to present evidence in support of her contention that the group is "profiteering," Mrs. Nowell said.

If the contention cannot be substantiated, Mrs. Nowell declared, Mrs. Warner will be subject to a "dishonorable discharge" from the guards.

"We are women troops, and everything we do is military," Mrs. Nowell declared when asked to explain how a "court martial" was to be accomplished outside the regular armed forces.

The "court martial" is scheduled for 8 p. m. tomorrow at 1747 Church street northwest, Mrs. Nowell said. Mrs. Nowell lives at that address.

"It will be a regular trial, and if Mrs. Werner fails to appear—she has been notified by registered letter—the trial will go on anyway," Mrs. Nowell stated.

Husband Floored Nazi

Mrs. Nowell said that the "trial" would be "legal in every possible way" and that the organization had been advised as to the legality of its conduct by an attorney whom she did not name.

Mrs. Werner's husband, an automobile mechanic, exchanged blows last Armistice Day with Peter Riedel, air attache at the German Embassy and champion glider pilot, after he found Riedel's car parked in his backyard flower garden.

The scuffle became an international incident when Riedel, who was knocked down by Werner, who weighs 130 pounds, protested to the State Department through the embassy. The incident was dropped when Riedel failed to complain to local authorities.

U. S. Military Heroes Just 'Laugh Off' Medal Stories

HAS HIGHEST MILITARY HONOR—Lieut. John McCloy (left), U. S. N., retired, is the only man with two Congressional Medals of Honor. Fred Kochli, possessor of the Distinguished Service Cross, with whom he is pictured, is vice commander of the Legion of Honor, in convention at the Willard Hotel.

One Says He Got Award for Being Handsome; Another for Being Tallest As Legion of Valor Convenes in D. C.

Lieut. John McCloy, United States Navy, retired, says he got his two Congressional Medals of Honor and the Navy Cross for being the best looking man in the Navy.

Lieut. John Davis, United States Navy, says he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for being the youngest man aboard the cruiser Marblehead at Cienfugres, Cuba.

And another member of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor, holding its fiftieth convention here this week, says he received the Distinguished Service Cross for being the tallest man in his regiment.

In other words, if you want to know how America's war heroes became recognized for their war valor, you've got to ask somebody besides the men themselves.

There are about 300 of them at the Willard Hotel, and each of them wears at least one of the country's three highest decorations—the Congressional Medal, highest military awards in the world, or the Navy Cross or the Distinguished Service Cross, equally second high.

Lieut. McCloy tops them all. He is the only man in the world to hold two Congressional Medals, and he wears a Navy Cross as well.

He won his first Congressional Medal as a cockswain during the Boxer Rebellion in China, in 1900, for four days of extraordinary bravery on the march to Peking. With 2,000 other sailors, he marched 80 miles inland toward Peking against 57,000 Orientals.

The second Congressional Medal was placed on his breast after Vera Cruz in 1914, when he took out a launch to draw the fire of Mexicans on shore, thus locating their position for American ships in the harbor. He was wounded both times.

In 1919 he won the Navy Cross for helping to clean 56,000 mines out of the North Sea. He's been retired since 1928, living in Leonia, N. J.

Lieut. Davis, all joking aside, won the Congressional Medal for being very young. In fact, he was just 17, an apprentice aboard the Marblehead, when he volunteered to man one of the open boats and brave the Spanish machine gun fire in Cienfugres harbor. The party managed to cut two Spanish mine cables and one telegraph cable, drawing them from the water with grappling hooks under three hours of intense fire.

Lieut. Davis was recently brought back from retirement to command the training ship Constellation at Newport, R. I.

Recommissioned last August 24, the Constellation is the world's oldest warship still in service. Originally commissioned September 7, 1797, it is a month older than the Constitution—"Old Ironsides."

Lieuts. McCloy and Davis and the other heroes attending the reunion here participated in a memorial service last night which opened the convention. Today they will lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

The reunion will conclude Saturday.

Painters' Strike Stops D. C. Project

Lafayette Building Scene of Walkout; Labor Trouble Started in N. Y.

A strike of 12,000 A. F. L. painters in New York yesterday reached into Washington and halted work on the Lafayette Building, Fifteenth and I streets northwest, which is to house the Federal Loan Agency.

In accordance with a move of the Brotherhood of Painters and Decorators to call off workers on all projects under contract to members of the New York Association of Master Painters and Decorators, 29 members of Local 368 here were ordered to walk out last night. Painting contractor for the Lafayette Building is the Gladstone Raines Co., of New York.

The strike was called in New York after negotiations had failed, according to Associated Press. The union seeks a pay increase from $1.50 to $1.75 an hour, a decrease in hours from 35 to 30 per week, and a 50 per cent control over hiring.

Joseph P. Hillock, business agent for the painters' local here, said he called out the Lafayette Building painters on orders from international offices at La Fayette, Ind.

With three-fourths of the decoration work completed, there is still five weeks of painting to be done in the Lafayette Building. First and second floors, basement and subbasement have yet to be painted.

Construction of the 12-story building was held up between December 21 and January 4 in a jurisdictional dispute between union laborers and iron workers. A similar tieup was experienced in the summer of 1939 in a quarrel between the truck drivers' and engineers' unions.

The Federal Loan Agency units, including 1,700 employes, started moving into the new building July 29.

E. H. Buchanan Rites Tomorrow In Baltimore

Funeral services for Eldred H. Buchanan, 42, assistant to the president of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, who died Tuesday in Baltimore, will be held there tomorrow. Burial will follow in Arlington National Cemetery.

A native of Washington, Mr. Buchanan was educated in local public schools, including the old Business High School.

He was engaged for several years in the real estate business here, associated with the Perpetual Building Association, and Boss & Phelps.

Mr. Buchanan joined the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1932. At the time of his death he was assigned to the bank's fourth district, covering eight Southern States including Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Buchanan leaves his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Buchanan; a son, Eldred, jr.; a daughter, Miss Ruth Edith; two brothers, Allan and Charles; two sisters, Mrs. Octa Winter and Miss Bessie Buchanan, all of this city.

Eustace Owen, D.C. Hotelman, Dies In Darien, Conn.

Eustace C. Owen, Washington hotelman, died yesterday at Darien, Conn. He was 70.

Former managing director of the Powhatan Hotel and one-time manager of the Raleigh Hotel, Mr. Owen for the past three summers had been manager of Tokeneke Inn, Darien. He was a past president of the Washington Hotel Association.

Surviving are his wife, Elsie, and a daughter, Mrs. Virginia E. Gooding.

Pepco Guards Told to Shoot At Prowlers

Failure to Do So At Buzzards Point Draws Reprimand

Guards patrolling the Buzzard Point plant of the Potomac Electric Power Co. have been "reprimanded" for failing to shoot when prowlers climbed the fence into company property Monday night, James H. Ferry, Pepco chief engineer, disclosed last night.

"The guards chased the prowlers, who got away," Ferry said. "The only mistake they made was that they didn't shoot. They have been reprimanded for failing to use their guns."

Ferry is in charge of the company's program for combatting the menace of sabotage through increases in the guard force, construction of fences and installation of lights at both the Benning and Buzzard Point plants.

Renewed interest of public utility executives in the danger of sabotage of important national defense properties yesterday focused attention on the existence of a District law prohibiting the erection of barbed wire fences.

The law, passed in 1898, banned the use of barbed wire within the limits of the old "city" but gave the Commissioners authority to grant permission for its use in areas beyond Florida avenue, then known as "the county." Barbed-wire fences protect the Benning plant of the power company which is beyond the old limits.

Gen. Lane Says U. S. Must Enter War to Save Self

"This country must enter the European war as soon as possible, not to save Britain or democracy, but to protect ourselves," Brig. Gen. Rufus Lane, of Falls Church, Va., yesterday told more than 50 members of the Arlington County (Va.) Kiwanis Club.

Only by getting into the war while Germany is still occupied with England, can the United States save itself from future invasion, he added.

Kiwanis President Erle R. Kirby announced that a special meeting of the club's board of directors will be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at his home, 1839 North Herndon street, Arlington.

Postlude

By Rav C. B. Brown.

Guy Fraser Harrison conducts the National Symphony Orchestra at the Potomac Watergate Wednesday night. Soloists: Miriam Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simons, dancers. Program: "The Water Musick" (Handel-Harty), "The Enchanted Lake" (Lyadov), "Francesca da Rimini" (Chaikovski), Symphony No. 8 in F major (Beethoven), Polovetskian Dances from "Knaz Igor" (Borodin), Solo and Duo Dances to music by Jarnefelt, Tansman, Reger, Debussy and Guion.

Lowering clouds and a humid air that threatened rain momentarily did not dismay several thousand auditors who assembled last evening at the Potomac Watergate for the last summer concert of the National Symphony Orchestra. The occasion would have been more festive in a balmier temperature under clear skies, but neither the enjoyment of the crowd nor their enthusiastic applause showed any dampening of spirits. The sentiments of all those present were expressed in a brief address by Dr. Florence A. Armstrong, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, who spoke of the pleasure which the series has brought to the public, and thanked the committee of the orchestral association for the opportunities provided for both residents and visitors.

BROWN

Considering the unpropitious weather, one surmises that the size of the audience had a definite relation to the popularity of the guest conductor, Guy Fraser Harrison, and the dancing soloists, Miriam Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simons, who were cordially remembered from the previous summer. The amount of applause directed at them during the evening was generous in the extreme, and it was all justified by the excellent performance of a varied and interesting program that had no tedious spots.

Mr. Harrison, whose engaging podium manner is a compound of energetic briskness and gestural restraint, started off with a highly vitalized reading of the six-piece suite arranged by Hamilton Harty from the "Royal Water Musick" composed by Handel for a festival on the Thames when George I reigned in England.

This peaceful and idyllic music, a page from a fairy tale with a happy ending, was followed by the stormy "Francesca da Rimini" in which Chaikovski translated into tone that unforgettable passage in Dante's "Inferno" relating to Paolo and Francesca.

For the symphony of the evening Mr. Harrison chose the irrepressibly gay eighth of Beethoven, which illustrates the fact that music can be written under the most unfavorable conditions.

Miriam Winslow and Foster Fitz-Simons, who have taken their place as one of the best American dance teams, presented six numbers signalized by choreographic skill and finesse.

Their duo offerings were "In the Fields" to Jaernefelt's familiar "Praeludium," the amusing "Chromo" which they presented here last year, and the effective "Archaisms" arranged to selections from eighth century Japanese music known as etenraku.

Miss Winslow's solos were the satiric "Frail Woman" neatly adapted to music by Alexander Tansman, and Debussy's "La plus que lente" waltz. Mr. Fitz-Simons gave a finely conceived portrayal of a "Crusader" to sturdy and emphatic music by Max Reger.

Pet Dog Helped Crippled Boy Regain Health, 1,500 Veterinarians Told at Conclave Here

Expert Raps Some Dog Foods as Deadly, Lacking in Vitamins

The men who cure the Nation's pets last night were shown a red-haired Irish terrier named Sheila, and a tow-headed youngster she helped to cure of infantile paralysis.

Twelve-year-old George Waeth, of Baltimore, who has gone under the surgeon's knife 41 times and once was thought a hopeless cripple, bounded into the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel to show 1,500 veterinarians the lively pet whose companionship helped him learn to walk, run and swim.

The son of a Baltimore chauffeur, George was stricken with the dread disease eight years ago. For six years he was bedridden, moving in a circle from home to hospital, his education lagging, his life frequently despaired of.

Radio Plea for Dog

Two years ago a radio plea for a dog brought him the energetic terrier.

"He needs something to stimulate his will to walk," the doctor had said.

The next morning, the boy who had not walked in six years and had never dressed himself was up at the crack of dawn, dressed and half way up the block, wobbling along excitedly on shaky legs, exercising his new pet, before his amazed mother awoke.

This was the tale George told last night, his cheeks red, his eyes shining, his lips smiling, showing little evidence of his long, hard struggle for health.

"I'm going to be an aviator now," he explained, as Sheila wagged her tail happily about it all. The boy and dog are hardly parted, except for his few hours in school.

Pets Proved Important

Dr. Cassius Way, president of the American Veterinary Medical Association charged that hundreds of dogs are made seriously ill and others are killed each year by dog foods lacking essential vitamins.

Emphasizing that many commercial products are excellent in quality, Dr. M. L. Morris, of New Brunswick, N. J., declared that "large numbers" of others do not contain "certain important vitamins, without which growth, reproduction, ability to nurse the young and even life itself are impossible."

"Hundreds of poorly nourished, sick dogs are annually brought to veterinarians throughout the country because they have been fed foods which do not contain sufficient amounts of these vital substances."

IT'S REALLY A LOVE MATCH—George Vaeth, 12, wouldn't think of hurting Sheila, the Irish terrier which was his playmate while he was being nursed back to health. Sheila seems to be asking "how do you like this stance?" The boxing gloves were a gift from Jack Dempsey.

At the association's seventy-seventh annual banquet last night, Dr. Way introduced George, Sheila and Miss Rosyln Terheune, of Baltimore, the donor of the dog, at the association's seventy-seventh annual banquet last night.

"This story," Dr. Way said, "proves how important pets can be to children."

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, presented George with a pair of boxing gloves sent by Jack Dempsey, who had heard of the boy's fight for health.

"Oh, boy," said George, "tell Dempsey he's one swell fellow."

Earlier in the day, a past president of the American Veterinary

Text of the Conscription Bill Passed by Senate

By the Associated Press

The following is the text of the military conscription bill (S. 4164), including amendments, as passed last night by the Senate:

To provide for the common defense by increasing the personnel of the armed forces of the United States and providing for its training.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that (A) the Congress hereby declares that it is imperative to increase and train the personnel of the armed forces of the United States.

(B) The Congress further declares that in a free society the obligations and privileges of military training and service should be shared generally in accordance with a fair and just system of selective compulsory military training and service.

(C) The Congress further declares, in accordance with our traditional military policy as expressed in the National Defense Act of 1916, as amended, that it is essential that the strength and organization of the National Guard as an integral part of the first-line defenses of this Nation be at all times maintained and assured. To this end it is the intent of the Congress that whenever the Congress shall determine that troops are needed for the national security in excess of those of the Regular Army, the National Guard of the United States, or such part thereof as may be necessary, shall be ordered to active Federal service and continued therein so long as such necessity exists.

Section 2. Except as provided in Section 5 (a), it shall be the duty of every male citizen of the United States, who is between the ages of 21 and 31, on the day or days fixed for the first or any subsequent registration, to present himself for and submit to registration at such time or times and place or places, and in such manner and in such age group or groups, as shall be determined by rules and regulations prescribed hereunder.

Men Between 21 and 31 Must Register

Section 3 (a). Every male citizen of the United States, and every male alien residing in the United States who has declared his intention to become a citizen, between the ages of 21 and 31 at the time fixed for his registration (other than those excepted from registration under section 5 (a), shall be liable for training and service in the land and naval forces of the United States. The President is authorized, whether or not a state of war exists, to select for training and service in the manner herein provided, and to induct into the land and naval forces of the United States, such number of men between such ages as in his judgment is required for such forces in the national interest: Provided, that any person between the ages of 18 and 35 regardless of race or color shall be afforded an opportunity voluntarily to enlist and be inducted into the land or naval forces (including aviation units) of the United States for the training and service prescribed in subsection (b), if he is acceptable to the land or naval forces for such training and service: Provided further, that there shall not be in active training or service in the land forces of the United States at any one time in time of peace more than 900,000 men inducted under the provisions of this act. The men inducted into the land or naval forces for such training and service shall be assigned to camps or units of such forces.

(B) Whenever the United States is not a war, each man so inducted shall serve for a training period of twelve consecutive months, unless sooner discharged: Provided, that if during his training period the Congress shall declare that the national interest is imperiled, he may be required to remain in service until the Congress shall declare that the national interest permits his being relieved from such service. Each such man, after completion of the service required by this subsection, shall be transferred to a reserve component of the land or naval forces of the United States until the provisions of this act become inoperative, or until the expiration of a period of ten years, or until he is discharged from such reserve component, whichever event first occurs; and during the period that he is a member of such reserve component he shall be subject to such additional training and service as may now or hereafter be prescribed by law. Provided, that any man who completes twelve months' training and service in the land forces in time of peace, as provided herein, who thereafter completes not less than two years' satisfactory service in the Regular Army or in the active National Guard, shall, upon completion of such service, be relieved from further liability to serve in the reserve components of the Army of the United States in time of peace. Persons inducted into the land forces of the United States pursuant to this act shall not be employed beyond the limits of the Western Hemisprere except in the Territories and possessions of the United States, including the Philippine Islands.

To Receive Same Pay As Enlisted Men

(C) The men inducted for training and service as provided for in this section shall, during the period of their training and service, receive the same pay, allowances, and other benefits as are provided by law for enlisted men of like grades and length of service of that component of the land or naval forces to which they are assigned, and after transfer to a reserve component of the land or naval forces as provided in subsection (b) they shall receive the same benefits as are provided by law in like cases for members of such reserve component. Men in such training and service shall have an opportunity to qualify for promotion.

Section 4 (a) The selection of men for the training and service provided for in section 3 (other than those who enlist voluntarily pursuant to this act) shall be made in an impartial manner, under such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe, from all the men between the ages of 21 and 31 who are liable for such training and service.

(B) Quotas of men to be furnished for such training and service shall be determined for each State, territory, and the District of Columbia, and for subdivisions thereof, on the basis of the actual number of men in the several States, territories, and the District of Columbia and the subdivisions thereof, who are liable for such training and service but who are not deferred after classification; credits shall be given in fixing such quotas for residents of such subdivisions who are in the land and naval forces of the United States on the date fixed for determining such quotas; and until the actual numbers necessary for determining the quotas are known, the quotas may be based on estimates and subsequent adjustments therein made when such actual numbers are known; all in accordance with such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe.

Registration Exemptions Are Listed

Section 5. (A) Commissioned officers, warrant officers, field clerks, pay clerks, and enlisted men of the Regular Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Public Health Service, the Federally recognized active National Guard, the Officers Reserve Corps, the Regular Army Reserve, the enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve, and the Marine Corps Reserve; Cadets, United States Military Academy; Midshipmen, United States Naval Academy; cadets, United States Coast Guard Academy, and cadets of the advanced course, senior division, Reserve Officers Training Corps; and diplomatic representatives, technical attaches of foreign embassies and legations, consuls general, consuls, vice consuls, and consular agents of foreign countries, residing in the United States, who are not citizens of the United States, or who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, shall not be required to be registered under Section 2.

No exceptions from registration shall continue after the cause therefor ceases to exist: provided, that any officer, warrant officer, enlisted man of the Regular Army who is excepted from registration under section 2 and who shall have served therein satisfactorily for a period of three years, and any officer, warrant officer, or enlisted man of the active National Guard or a member of the Officers' Reserve Corps on the eligible list, who is excepted from such registration and who shall have served therein satisfactorily for a period of six years, shall be excepted from such registration and further duty in the reserve components of the Army of the United States in time of peace: provided further, that any officer, warrant officer, or enlisted man of the active National Guard who satisfactorily serves as a member of the Army of the United States, in active Federal service for the period of one year, who, thereafter, completes not less than two years' satisfactory service in the Regular Army or in the active National Guard, shall, upon completion of such service, be relieved from further liability to serve in the reserve components of the Army of the United States in time of peace.

Those Eligible For Deferrment

(B) The Vice President of the United States, the Governors of the several States and Territories, members of legislative bodies of the United States and of the several States and Territories, judges of the courts of the United States and of the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia, and other executive officers of the United States and the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia whose continuous service in the executive offices held by them is found to be necessary to the maintenance of public health, safety, or interest, shall, while holding such office be deferred from training and service in the land and naval forces of the United States.

(C) Regular or duly ordained ministers of religion, and students who are preparing for the ministry in theological or divinity schools recognized as such for more than one year prior to the date of enactment of this act, shall be exempt from training and service (but not from registration) under this act.

(D) The President is authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to defer training and service under this act in the land and naval forces of the United States of those men whose employment in industry, agriculture, or other occupations or employment is found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest. No deferment of training and service shall be made in the case of any individual except upon the basis of the status of such individual, and no such deferment shall be made of individuals by occupational groups or of groups of individuals in any plant or institution. The President is also authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to defer the training and service under this act in the land and naval forces of the United States (1) of those men in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders their deferment advisable, and (2) of those men found to be physically, mentally, or morally deficient. No deferment of such training and service shall continue after the cause therefor ceases to exist.

(3) Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to require any person to be subject to combatant training or service in the land or naval forces of the United States who, by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form. All persons claiming such exemption from combatant training and service because of such conscientious objections shall be listed on a register of conscientious objectors at the time of their classification by a local board, and the names of the persons so registered shall be at once referred by such local board to the Department of Justice for inquiry and hearing.

After appropriate inquiry by the proper agency of the Department of Justice, a hearing shall be held by the Department of Justice in the case of each such person with respect to the character and good faith of his objections, and such person shall be notified of the time and place of such hearing.

The department shall after such hearing, if the objections are found to be sustained, recommend (1) that the objector shall be assigned to noncombatant service as defined by the President, or (2) if the objector is found to be conscientiously opposed to participation in such noncombatant service, that he shall be assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction.

If, after such hearing, the objections of any such person are found not to be sustained, the objector and the local board shall be immediately notified thereof, the name of the objector shall then be removed from the register of conscientious objectors, and such objector shall thereafter be liable to training and service as provided by this act. If, within five days after the date of such findings by the Department of Justice, the objector or the local board gives notice to the other of disagreement with such findings, the local borad shall immediately refer the matter for final determination to an appropriate appeal board established pursuant to section 10 (A) (2).

Section 6. The President shall have authority to induct into the land and naval forces of the United States no greater number of persons than the Congress shall from time to time hereafter make specific appropriation for.

Section 7. No bounty shall be paid to induce any person to enlist in or be inducted into the land or naval forces of the United States: Provided, that the clothing or enlistment allowance authorized by law shall not be regarded as bounties within the meaning of this section. No person liable to service in such forces shall be permitted or allowed to furnish a substitute for such service; no such substitute shall be received, enlisted, enrolled, or inducted into the land or naval forces of the United States; and no person liable to service in such forces shall be permitted to escape such service or be discharged therefrom prior to the expiration of his term of service by the payment of money or any other valuable thing whatsoever as consideration for his release from service in such forces or liability thereto.

Certification After Completion of Training

Section 8. (A) Any person inducted into the land or naval forces under this act for training and service or who is hereafter assigned to active or training duty who, in the judgment of those in authority over him, satisfactorily completes the service required under this act shall be entitled to a certificate to that effect upon the completion of such service, which shall include a record of any special proficiency or merit attained. In addition, each such person who is inducted into the land or naval forces under this act for training and service shall be given a physical examination at the beginning of such training and service and a medical statement showing any physical defects noted upon such examination; and upon the completion of the period of such training and service, each such person shall be given another physical examination and shall be given a medical statement showing any injuries, illnesses or disabilities suffered by him during such period of training and service.

(B) In the case of any such person who, in order to perform such active duty or such service, has left or leaves a position, other than a temporary position, in the employ of any employer and who (1) receives such certificate, (2) is still qualified to perform the duties of such position, and (3) makes application for reemployment within 40 days after he is relieved from such service—

(A) If such position was in the employ of the United States Government, its territories or possessions, or the District of Columbia, such person shall be restored to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay;

(B) If such position was in the employ of a private employer, such employer shall restore such person to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so;

(C) If such position was in the employ of any State or political subdivision thereof it is hereby declared to be the sense of the Congress that such person should be restored to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay.

For the purpose of this subsection any person who has been required to leave any position in the employ of any private employer, other than a temporary position, within 30 days prior to the date of the enactment of this act shall be deemed prima facie to have left such position in order to perform the service required under this act.

(C) Any person who is restored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) or (B) of sub-section (B) shall be considered during the period of service in such forces as on furlough or leave of absence; and shall be so restored without loss of seniority; and shall be entitled to participate in insurance or other benefits offered by the employer pursuant to established rules and practices relating to employes on furlough or leave of absence in effect with the employer at the time of being inducted into such forces; and shall not be discharged from such position without cause within one year after such restoration.

Provisions to Enforce Employment Regulations

(D) In case any private employer fails or refuses to comply with the provisions of subsection (B) or subsection (C), the District Court of the United States for the district in which such private employer maintains a place of business shall have power, upon the filing of a motion, petition or other appropriate pleading by the person entitled to the benefits of such provisions, to specifically require such employer to comply with such provisions and, as an incident thereto, to compensate such person for any loss of wages or benefits suffered by reason of such employer's unlawful action.

The court shall order a speedy hearing in any such case and shall advance it on the calendar. Upon application to the United States district attorney for the district in which such private employer maintains a place of business, by any person claiming to be entitled to the benefits of such provisions, such United States district attorney, if reasonably satisfied that the person so applying is entitled to such benefits, shall appear and act as attorney for such person in the amicable adjustment of the claim or in the filing of any motion, petition or other appropriate pleading and the prosecution thereof to specifically require such employer to comply with such provisions. Provided, that no fees or court costs shall be taxed against the person so applying for such benefits.

Personnel Division To Be Established

(E) Section 3 (d) of the act entitled "an act to strengthen the common defense and to authorize the President to order members and units of reserve components and retired personnel of the Regular Army into active military service," approved August, 1940, is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: "And as an incident thereto, to compensate such person for any loss of wages or benefits suffered by reason of such employer's unlawful action."

(F) The director of selective service herein provided for shall establish a personnel division with adequate facilities to render aid in the replacement in their former positions of members of the reserve components of the land and naval forces of the United States who have satisfactorily completed any period of active duty and of persons who have satisfactorily completed any period of their service under this act, and to aid such persons in finding employment elsewhere if such replacement in their former positions is impossible or unreasonable.

(G) The chief of finance, United States Army, is hereby designated, empowered and directed to act as fiscal, disbursing, and accounting agent of the director of selective service in carrying out the provisions of this act.

(H) Any person inducted into the land or naval forces for training and service under this act shall, during the period of such training and service, be permitted to vote in any general, special, or primary election occurring in the State of which he is a resident, if under the laws of such State he is entitled to vote in such election even though he is outside of such State at the time of such election.

Sec. 9. Any person charged as herein provided with the duty of carrying into effect any of the provisions of this act, or the rules or regulations made or directions given thereunder, who shall knowingly fail or neglect to perform such duty, and any person charged with such duty, or having and exercising any authority under said act, rules, regulations, or directions who shall knowingly make, or be a party to the making, of any false, improper, or incorrect registration, classification, physical or mental examination, deferment, induction, enrollment, or muster, and any person who shall make, or be a party to the making of, any false statement or certificate as to the fitness or unfitness or liability or nonliabliity of himself or any other person for service under the provisions of this act, or rules, regulations, or directions made pursuant thereto, or who otherwise evades registration or service in the land or naval forces or any of the requirements of this act, or who counsels, aids, or abets another to evade registration or service in the land or naval forces of any of the requirements of this act, or of said rules, regulations, or directions, or who in any manner shall knowingly fail or neglect to perform any duty required of him under or in the execution of this act, or any person or persons who shall knowingly hinder or interfere in any way by force or violence with the administration of this act or the rules or regulations made pursuant thereto, or conspire to do so shall upon conviction in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment, or if subject to military or naval law may be tried by court-martial, and, on conviction, shall suffer such punishment as a court-martial may direct.

Evaders Face Trial In Local U. S. Courts

In cases of persons subject to this act who fail to report for duty in the land or naval forces as ordered shall be tried exclusively in the district courts of the United States having jurisdiction thereof and this class of cases shall not be tried by the military and naval courts-martial unless such person has been actually inducted for the training and service prescribed herein or unless he is subject to trial by court-martial under laws in force prior to the enactment of this act. Cases brought under this provision shall be given preference for trial by the respective district courts. Precedence shall be given by courts to the trial of cases arising under this act.

Section 10 (a). The President is authorized—

(1) To prescribe the necessary rules and regulations to carry this act into effect;

(2) To create and establish a selective service system, to provide for the classification of registered men on the basis of availability for service and training and to establish local boards no member of which shall be connected with the military establishment and such other agencies, including appeal boards and agencies of appeal, no member of which shall be connected with the military establishment as he may deem necessary to carry the provisions of this act into effect. Such local boards shall have the power within their respective jurisdictions to hear and determine, subject to the right of appeal to the appeal boards herein authorized, all questions of exemption or deferment under this act and all questions of or claims for including or discharging individuals or classes of individuals from induction under this act.

(3) To appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and fix the compensation, at a rate of not in excess of $10,000 per annum, of a director of selective service who shall be directly responsible to him, and to appoint and fix the compensation of such other officers, agents, and employes as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this act: Provided, that any person so appointed whose salary is at a rate in excess of $5,000 per annum shall be appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate;

(4) To utilize the services, information, facilities, and personnel of the departments and agencies in the executive branch of the Government, and of the several States, Territories, possessions and the District of Columbia, and the subdivisions thereof, in the execution of this act, and to require of each the performance of such duties as he directs in carrying out the provisions of this act;

(5) To purchase such printing, binding, and blankbook work from public, commercial, or private printing establishments or binderies upon orders placed by the Public Printer or upon waivers issued in accordance with section 12 of the Printing Act approved January 12, 1895, as amended by the act of July 8, 1935 (49 Stat., 475), and to obtain such office equipment, as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, with or without advertising or formal contract; and

(6) To prescribe eligibility, rules and regulations governing the parole for service in the land or naval forces, or for any other special service established pursuant to this act, of any person convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this act.

President Authorised To Delegate Power

(B) The President is authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to delegate any authority vested in him under this act to such officers, agents, or persons as he may designate or appoint for such purpose.

(C) The decisions of local boards with respect to any matters within their jurisdictional shall be final except where appeals are authorized in accordance with the provisions of this act and such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe. In the administration of this act voluntary services may be accepted. Correspondence necessary in the execution of this act may be carried in official penalty envelopes.

Section —. (Not yet numbered.) The first and second provisos in Section 8 (B) of the act approved June 28, 1940 (public, numbered 671) is amended to read as follows. "Provided, that whenever the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy determines that any existing manufacturing plant or facility is necessary for the national defense and is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of such plant or facility for its use or operation by the War Department or the Navy Department, as the case may be, the Secretary, under the direction of the President, is authorized to institute condemnation proceedings with respect to such plant or facility and to acquire it under the provisions of the act of February 26, 1931 (46 Stat. 1421), except that, upon the filing of a declaration of taking in accordance with the provisions of such act, the Secretary may take immediate possession of such plant or facility and operate it either by Government personnel or by contract with private firms pending the determination of the issue. Provided that nothing herein shall be deemed to render inapplicable existing State or Federal laws concerning the health, safety, security and employment standards of the employes in such plant or facility."

1934 Munitions Act Included in Bill

Section —. (Not yet numbered). (A) All the provisions of Section 3 of the act of March 27, 1934 (48 stat. 505), now or hereafter amended, shall be applicable with respect to contracts hereafter entered into for weapons, ammunition, and other military equipment procured by the Ordnance Department of the Army and by the Bureau or Ordnance of the Navy to the same extent and in the same manner that such provisions are applicable with respect to contracts for aircraft or any portion thereof for the Army and Navy: Provided, that the Secretary of War shall exercise all functions under such section with respect to such contracts for the Army, and the Secretary of the Navy shall exercise all functions under such contracts with respect to such contracts for the Navy.

(B) The provisions of Section 3 of such act of March 27, 1934, as amended, shall, in the case of contracts or subcontracts entered into after the date of approval of this act, be limited to contracts or subcontracts where the award exceeds $50,000.

(C) All determinations hereafter required under such act of March 27, 1934, as now or hereafter amended, with respect to the costs and profits of War Department and Navy Department contracts shall be made by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, respectively.

Section 11 (A) Every person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this act upon publication by the President of a proclamation or other public notice requiring registration.

(B) If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining sections or portions of this act.

(C) Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to repeal, amend, or suspend the laws now in force authorizing voluntary enlistment or reenlistment in the land and naval forces of the United States, including the reserve components thereof.

Section 12. When used in this act—

(A) The term "between the ages of 21 and 31" shall refer to persons who have reached the twenty-first anniversary of the day of their birth and who have not reached the thirty-first anniversary of the day of their birth; and other terms designating different age groups shall be construed in a similar manner.

(B) The term "United States," when used in a geographical sense, shall be deemed to include the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories, and the possessions of the United States, except the Philippine Islands.

Section 13. (A) All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby suspended to the extent of such conflict for the period in which this act shall be in force.

(B) All the provisions of this act shall become inoperative and cease to apply on and after May 15, 1945, unless continued in effect by the Congress, except as to offenses committed prior to such date.

(C) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

Sec. 14. The monthly base pay of enlisted men of the Army and the Marine Corps shall be as follows: Enlisted men of the first grade, $126; enlisted men of the second grade, $84; enlisted men of the third grade, $72; enlisted men of the fourth grade, $60; enlisted men of the fifth grade, $54; enlisted men of the sixth grade, $36; enlisted men of the seventh grade, $30; except that the monthly base pay of enlisted men with less than four months' service during their first enlistment period and of enlisted men of the seventh grade whose inefficiency or other unfitness has been determined under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of War shall be $21.

Pay Schedule Set For Draft Trainees

The pay of enlisted men of the seventh grade whose inefficiency or other unfitness has been determined under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy, respectively, shall be $21. The pay for specialists' ratings, which shall be in addition to monthly base pay, shall be as follows: First class, $30; second class, $25; third class, $20; fourth class, $15; fifth class, $6; sixth class, $3. Enlisted men of the Army and Marine Corps shall receive, as a permanent addition to their pay, an increase of 10 per centum of their base pay and pay for specialists' rating upon completion of the first four years of service, and an additional increase of 5 per centum of such base pay and pay for specialists' ratings for each four years of service thereafter, but the total of such increases shall not exceed 25 per centum.

(B) The pay for specialists' ratings received by an enlisted man of the Army or the Marine Corps at the time of his retirement shall be included in the computation of his retired pay.

(C) The pay of enlisted men of the sixth grade of the National Guard for each armory drill period, and for each day of participation in exercises under sections 94, 97 and 99 of the National Defense Act, shall be $1.20.

(D) No back pay or allowances shall accrue by reason of this act for any period prior to the date of its enactment.

(E) Nothing in this act shall operate to reduce the pay now being received by any retired enlisted man.

(F) The provisions of this section shall be effective during the period September 1, 1940, to May 15, 1945. During such period all laws and parts of laws insofar as the same are inconsistent herewith or in conflict with the provisions hereof are hereby suspended.

Section (A). The benefits of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act, approved March 8, 1898, are hereby extended to all persons inducted into the land or naval forces under this act, and, except as hereinafter provided, the provisions of such act of March 8, 1918, shall be effective for such purposes.

(B) For the purposes of this section—

(1) The following provision of such act of March 8, 1918, shall be inoperative: Section 100; paragraphs (1), (2) and (5) of section 101; article 4; article 5; paragraph (2) of section 601, and section 603;

(2) The term "persons in military service," when used in such act, shall be deemed to mean persons inducted into the land or naval forces under this act;

(3) The term "period of military service," when used in such act, when applicable with respect to any person, shall be deemed to mean the period beginning with the date on which such person is inducted into such land or naval forces under this act for any period of training and service and ending 60 days after the date on which such period of training and service terminates.

Section C. This act may be cited as the "selective training and service act of 1940."

New Navy Submarine Makes Way Up Foggy Potomac to Navy Yard

SUBMARINE SEARAVEN TIED UP AT NAVY YARD

THE U. S. S. Searaven, one of the latest and best of this country's submarines, arrived at the Navy Yard here at noon yesterday from the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard.

SHE was escorted as far as the Virginia Capes by the U. S. S. Abbott, a destroyer, and made her way up the Potomac by herself. The river fog was the only obstacle encountered on the entire course, which was made on the surface, according to the commander, Lieut. Comdr. Thomas G. Reamy.

THE Searaven is 311 feet long, 27 feet in the beam, carries a complement of 54 men and five officers, and has a tonnage of 1,470, which is near the standard for American submarines.

THE submarine is expected to be here until September 4, and made the trip so that officers and civilian personnel of the Navy here could familiarize themselves with her type.

AN example of the vigilance against spies that is being bred into those associated with national defense was given by members of the crew, and the Navy Yard guards, who escorted The Post photographer who made the accompanying pictures. While the pictures had been authorized, random inquiries made by the cameraman were received in stony silence by the men. Or if they spoke at all it was to express their assumed ignorance of any of the answers.

COMMANDER REAMY, who gave the information reported above, said that he could not discuss any of the distinctive features of the craft itself.

TAKING NO CHANCES ON SABOTEURS, NAVY ALLOWS NO VISITORS

Draft Bill's Main Provisions

By International News Service

What the first peacetime conscription bill in history, passed by the Senate last night, means:

12,000,000 men between ages of 21 and 31 are required to register for one year's military training.

Not more than 900,000 may be in training at any one time.

Exempt are members of present armed forces, ministers, divinity students, high Federal and State officials, members of Congress, conscientious objectors, some students and men employed in key defense or agricultural industries.

Draftees will receive $21 a month for first four months, then $30 a month.

Secretaries of War and Navy, with approval of the President, may condemn and take over industries which refuse to reach agreement on production of needed defense materials.

Persons refusing to comply with draft order are subject to $10,000 fine, five years' imprisonment, or both.

Moratoriums made available on fixed obligations in so-called "hardship" cases.

Private employers who refuse to reinstate workers called for service become subject to prosecution under fair labor standards act unless change of circumstances makes it "impossible or unreasonable" to re-employ draftees.

85,000 to See Packers Battle All-Stars Tonight

Hagen, Sarazen Remain in P.G.A. Title Battle

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

This evening at Chicago's Soldiers' Field, the Green Bay Packers can't lose. The final score may be in favor of the College All-Americans, but a little matter of $25,000 will make it a triumph for pro football, the score notwithstanding. The college boys may get the glory, but the gravy is certain to accrue to the pros.

POVICH

The annual affair between the All-Americans and the reigning pro champions is a delectable dish for the pros. It is always in August that the owners of the pro champions cash in on the league title they won the year before. A $25,000 guarantee goes to the pro champs. Charity gets the rest. The college boys are merely out for the ride.

The Packers' owners will net close to $18,000 of the guarantee. The pro players will be paid off at their per-game rate of pay for which they have signed this season. Owners of the pro clubs like this game. It represents a bigger check than they will drag down for most of the games of the regular league season.

Six previous games between the All-Americans and the pro champions at Soldiers' Field have failed to settle the perennial debate about the superiority of pro football over college football's best. Two games have been won by the Pros, two by the Collegians, and two have been ties. When the New York Giants kicked three field goals to beat the Collegians last year, those nine points represented the greatest margin of victory in the six-year series.

One item, however, has been definitely established. Even the best college football teams can't score touchdowns through a professional line. All of the six touchdowns the Collegians have scored in the series have evolved from pass plays. The Collegian backs have bounced off pro lines much like tomatoes off a fence. In line play, the pros have been admittedly superior.

Paradoxically, it has been in the air—at the pros' own game—that the Collegians have been most successful. Each year they have come up with a passer and pass receivers who could hold their own with the pros, even better 'em. The emphasis has been on the college pass receivers. They have been faster than the pros, probably because they are younger.

The All-Star game in previous years has borne out the complaint of Ray Flaherty, Redskin coach, who maintains that the worst feature of newly graduated college players is their tackling. "In the pro league, we invariably have trouble with our new recruits. They don't tackle hard enough; perhaps they don't catch the coaching," says Flaherty, "but I imagine the difficulty is due to the contrast in college and pro rules.

"In college football, the runner is down as soon as he hits the ground or is knocked to the ground. In the pro league, the tackler has to put the runner down and keep him down or he is up and away again. The pros know that, and they hit just a bit harder and a bit more viciously. It's got to be a good tackle in the pro league."

In tonight's game, the college boys will be operating, however, from the vantage point of the college rules which stipulate that a runner is considered down and the ball dead when one knee hits the ground. That is one of the items the pros concede to the Collegians in this game.

The Collegians will be in better physical condition than the pros tonight, little doubt of that. Younger men round into shape faster and hit a peak quicker than the older men of pro ranks. Halfback Ed Justice, of the Redskins, pointed out very eloquently the torture of conditioning after a few years in the big leagues.

"When I was in college," related Justice, "we played a game on Saturday and we were ready to go again on Monday. My first year as a pro, I wasn't ready for another game until Tuesday. My second year as a pro, it was Wednesday before the soreness left me. Last year it was Thursday before I felt up to another tough practice. The old bohes simply weren't what they used to be. Next year it will probably be Friday before I'm right and the year after that I guess I'll be washed up. A fellow gets old, playing football."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 28.—Sportin' around:

Can you name the two biggest sports tournaments in the country? In case you can't, the biggest is the American Bowling Congress, which lasts a month; and next in line is the National Rifle and Pistol matches which will be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, beginning Sunday. Last year there were 4,100 competitors, and in one event alone—the President's Match—there were 2,033 participants. This year there will be many more. The tournament is backed by the War Department and the National Rifle Association. The Army, which is taking more and more interest in this event, will supply any (or all) competitors with either a service rifle or a .45 pistol, teach them how to shoot if necessary, furnish all ammunition needed for practice and in the tournament, and charge them nary a sou. The N. R. A. estimates that there 1,000,000 regular rifle shooters in the country, and the War Department wishes that all of them could make the tournament because it now believes that every man and woman in the country should know what makes a rifle or pistol tick, and should be able to use a weapon with accuracy and not hysteria.

CONSIDINE

Why not a Mel Hein Day, during the football Giants' season? . . . He's got everything those ball players have, and doesn't make near as much dough . . . Gene Sarazen was three hours late for his opening match in the P. G. A. tournament at Hershey. There was no protest. Gene was delayed after an exhibition match with Ed Oliver, the pro who was kicked out of the U. S. Open for starting a match 15 minutes too early . . . Ted Williams pitched a couple of innings for Boston the other day, but he isn't ticketed to follow that other Red Sock's footsteps, Bucky Walters. Walters was a failure at third base; Williams is a great outfielder whose bat is needed in there every day . . . Long Island University's crack basketball team sails Friday for Puerto Rico for a 9-game barnstorming trip. They were down there two years ago and got along okay except that they never became accustomed to receiving the shirts which their beaten opponents would peel off their backs and give to them at the conclusion of each game. It's an old Puerto Rican basketball custom.

Shot Put, suggesting something slow and heavy, was the winner of the two long distance races at Washington Park, and he will be entered in Al Vanderbilt's $50,000 two-and-a-quarter mile race this fall . . . Morrie Arnovich, who flirted with the .400 mark last year with the Phillies, is hitting a medicated .237 for the Reds, now that he is in the thick of a pennant fight.

You see a lot of that in baseball, don't you? Fellows like Klein, Curt Davis, Johnny Marcum and their likes, turning in great performances with hopeless teams and folding when they get the chance they've always waited for. Ball players explain it by saying that there is no pressure on the members of a second division club, and thus they are freer and looser up there at the plate, or get to hit and pitch against the lesser members of the stronger opponents.

No one knows exactly who started the "seventh inning stretch," and an equal mystery is the way some chronic baseball fans resent any mention of a no-hitter, while the would-be no-hitter is in progress. Mel Allen, a fine broadcaster, got some wintry notes from his listeners after last week's Feller-vs.-Yankees game, charging him with jinxing Feller's no-hitter by mentioning (for the benefit of late tuners-in) that Feller had allowed no hits until one out in the eighth.

Pro Champs Favored at 9-5 Odds in Chicago Test

Revenge for 1937 Defeat Packers' Aim; Kinnick in Starting Backfield Quartet

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 28.—The Green Bay Packers, world professional football champions, will be out to salve a rankling, three-year-old gridiron sore tomorrow night at Soldier Field.

Before a throng which may hit the 85,000 mark—and constitute a record for the series—the Packers will meet the college All Stars in the seventh pro-all stars spectacle. And the Green Bay club, holder of more National Pro League titles than any other team in that tough circuit, will have a double-barreled reason for wanting to win.

The Packers' No. 1 incentive undoubtedly will be the 6-to-0 licking they took in 1937 from the All-Star forces. That defeat really hurt, for if ever a team came to town expecting to win easily, it was the Packers of that year.

Series Lead At Stake

Secondly, the Packers must win tomorrow night or see the All-Stars take a lead in the series started in 1933. Each side now has won twice. The Chicago Bears were victorious in 1935 and the New York Giants won last fall, with the All Stars taking the 1937 and 1938 games. The 1934 and 1936 contests were ties. Accordingly, an All-Star triumph would put a dent in the professional's prestige.

[Professional oddsmakers took one look at the incomparable forward passing combination of the National League champions tonight and promptly made the Packers a 9-to-5 favorite to defeat the College All-Stars.—United Press.]

The game, should the turf be dry and fast, may produce one of the most spectacular battles of the series. Green Bay has one of the all-time great passing combinations, with Arnie Herber tossing to Don Hutson and Cecil Isbell. With the Collegians also having such accurate flinters as Nile Kinnick, Ken Heineman and Kenny Washington, the fans may be treated to a display of brilliant aerial warfare.

Coach Curley Lambeau will not announce a starting line-up until the kickoff, scheduled for 8:20 p. m. (E. S. T.), but his opening backfield likely will consist of Larry Craig at blocking back, Arnie Herber and Cecil Isbell at the halfbacks and Clark Hinkle at fullback.

Heavy Duty for Kinnick

The All-Star starting backfield will be Amby Schindler, quarterback; Kinnick and Lou Brock at the halves and Joe Thesing at fullback. Head Coach Eddie Anderson, however, has indicated that this foursome may see the heaviest duty: Kinnick, Frank Emmons, Washington and Harold Van Every.

The Packers, 43 strong, came to town today and headed for a night workout at Soldier Field. The All-Stars held a blackboard session this morning, then went through a final signal drill during the afternoon.

The probable line-up:

All Stars.	Position.	Green Bay.
Fisk (S. Cal.)	L.E.	Hutson
Harvey (N. D.)	L.T.	Ray
Smith (S. Cal.)	L.G.	Lee
Turner (L.-Sim.)	Center	E. Svendsen
Logan (Ind.)	R.G.	Goldenberg
Cuilich (N.W.)	R.T.	Lee
S'kinen (O. St.)	R.E.	Gantenbein
Schindler (S. Cal.)	Q.B.	Craig
Kinnick (Iowa)	L.H.	Isbell
Brock (Purdue)	R.H.	Herber
Thesing (N. D.)	F.B.	Hinkle

Opening kickoff, 8:20 p. m. (Chicago daylight time); forecast, possible showers. Referee, Robby Cahn (Chicago); umpire, William Blake (Lorna College); head linesman, Dr. David Reese (Denison); field judge, Sec Taylor (Wichita).

Washington A. A. Entry Leaves for Track Meet

Washington A. A.'s four-man entry in two Canadian track meets over the week-end will leave the District this morning at 6 a. m. It will drive directly to Toronto, arriving in time to rest up for the first event Saturday. Athletes making the trip are Harry March, James Keyoe, Tommy Fields and Clayton Norris.

Blackhawk Victor in Trot Stakes

Grand Circuit Race Win in Two Heats In 2d Fastest Time

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Del Miller drove Blackhawk, owned by Mahlon Haines, of York, Pa., to a straight heat victory in the $5,825 Geer Stake for 2-year-olds during the Grand Circuit program at the New York State Fair track here today. The race was run on a rainy day cinder track before fewer than 2,000 spectators but Blackhawk's time of 2:05¼ in the second heat was the second fastest record by a 2-year-old pacer this summer.

Honan Crowley, owned by the Poplar Hill Farm of Lexington, Ky., trailed the sensational back winner in both heats with Saratoga, driven by T. S. Berry and owned by the Longacre Farm of Philadelphia, Pa., was third in both.

Little Pat, black gelding owned by the Bierr Farm of Butler, Pa., and driven by Charlie Lacey, paced the fastest mile of the meet when he won the Trotting Club stake in straight heats—clocked in 2:01 in both trials. Chief Counsel, driven by Recor and entered by B. C. Mayo, of Tarboro, N. C., took second in both heats with Dusty Hanover, owned by Sullivan and Nawhinney, of Machias, Me., and driven by Vic Fleming, took third money.

Harry Craig whipped Willie Hope, owned by A. Monzo, of Patterson, N. J., home in straight heats to win the third event, the $863.53 Trotting Club stakes for trotters. Voltina, driven by Will Caton and owned by Jacob G. Land, of Buffalo, N. Y., was second with third going to Amy Jane, owned by the Arden Homestead Stable of Goshen, N. Y., with Fownall in the sulky.

Gunners Sign Coach Kendrick

St. Louis, Aug. 28 (AP).—James R. (Jim) Kendrick, former coach of both college and professional teams, has been signed to direct the St. Louis Gunners of the American Professional Football League, General Manager Bud Yates announced today.

Kendrick, fullback of Texas A. & M. teams of 1918-19-20, was assistant coach at Centre College for three years after his graduation and then was with the Buffalo Bisons and the New York Giants of the National Professional League.

He coached at St. Mary's College, San Antonio, Tex., in 1928 and then entered private business. In the winter of 1934 he suffered the loss of his right arm in a truck accident.

Double Bill Today Pits Newsom vs. Hudson

Rowe Opposes Chase in First Game as Nats and Tigers Muster Top Pitching; Baker Sees Pennant Ahead for Detroit

The best pitching they can muster will take the mound today for the Nats and Tigers in a rain-created double-header that will be the Detroit club's farewell appearance of the year at Griffith Stadium.

Idle for three days and eager to gain ground on the league-leading Indians, the second-place Tigers will toss Schoolboy Rowe and Buck Newsom, their top pitchers, at the Nats.

Manager Bucky Harris will counter with Ken Chase, who will oppose Rowe in the first game, and Sidney Hudson who will engage Newsom in the second. The Hudson-Newsom affair will pit the Nats' prize rookie against the league's leading pitcher for the first time this season.

The Tigers, three games in the rear of the Indians, took the field for a practice session yesterday despite the morning rain which made a mire of the outfield. Manager Del Baker, in civilian clothes, supervised the workout.

Gehringer to Return

In their chase of the Indians, the Tigers were heartened yesterday by their trainer's report that Charley Gehringer may be able to rejoin the line-up today. The veteran second baseman, idle during recent weeks on account of a pulled muscle in his right thigh, was replaced by the light-hitting rookie, Dutch Meyer, bought for $30,000 from the Texas League.

The Tigers have four victories to show against three defeats for their current Eastern swing, with three of their beatings having been administered by the Yankees.

"We haven't been hitting," said Manager Baker crisply. "No complaint at all with our pitching. But I'm not worried, because I know this club can hit."

Asked if he believed the Tigers could win the pennant, Baker nodded. "Why not?" he said. "We have five weeks to do it in."

In today's battles, Newsom will be seeking his sixteenth victory of the season against two defeats, and young Hudson will be in quest of his fourteenth triumph. Rowe has a record of 11 wins and 2 defeats, and Chase has won 11 and lost 13.

A victory over Newsom today would lift Hudson to top honors among Washington pitchers in point of victories. Dutch Leonard similarly has won 13 games thus far.

Second Baseman Buddy Myer, out of the line-up earlier in the week with a bruised thumb on his throwing hand, suffered while sliding, will return to second base today.

Ball Breaks Boy's Nose, Twin Faints

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP).—While twins Robert and Frank Casey, 12, were watching a baseball game at Roosevelt Stadium, a batted ball struck Robert in the face, breaking his nose.

Tears came to his eyes, but he retained consciousness. It was twin Frank who fainted.

Cubs Recall Dizzy Dean

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Aug. 28.—A few hours after his recall by the Cubs was announced, Dizzy Dean was beaten, 9 to 5, tonight by the Tulsa Club. Dean, pitching for Dallas, allowed 14 hits.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, once one of the greatest right-handed pitchers in baseball, is coming back to the Chicago Cubs.

Recall of the lanky hurler from Tulsa of the Texas League was announced today by the Cub manager, Gabby Hartnett, who said he hoped to have Dean ready for duty in the Cincinnati series opening here September 7.

The eccentric, colorful moundsman, who won 30 games to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a pennant in 1934, has been with Tulsa since early in June. He'd asked to be sent there so he could experiment with a new side-arm delivery after he had started five times for the Cubs and completed only one game.

Faces Big Chance

Dean, who cost the Cubs $185,000 in cash and three players in 1938, now faces his great chance to recapture at least a part of the hurling glory that once was his. This will be his final chance with the Cubs, according to Hartnett, who said:

"There won't be any more experimenting with Dean. If he can pitch him we'll keep him. If he can't pitch I'm not even sure he'll be with us at camp next spring."

Dean, who is 29 years old, won seven games and lost one in 1938 and gained six wins against four defeats in 1939. With Tulsa, he has appeared in 17 games compiling a record of 8 won and 6 lost.

Mild Roy Johnson—the man who patiently molded a new Dizzy Dean—trembled a bit when he heard the news.

Fifty Per Cent Better

"Today Dean is more than 50 per cent better than when he came back to the Texas League. Condition, perfect physical condition, has done it. He's trim, hard and far under the weight at which he reported to the Cubs back in the spring.

Giants Tie Cards for 3d With 5-2 Win

Warneke's Eight-Game Winning Streak Ends As Homers Turn Tide

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—The New York Giants climbed up into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for third place in the National League today by whipping the Cards, 5 to 2.

The defeat ended Lon Warneke's string of eight straight hurling victories.

A home run by Jojo Moore with one mate aboard in the third inning and another four-bagger by Tony Cuccinello in the ninth proved the Giants' margin of victory. The other runs were scored in the sixth on Frank Demaree's double, Babe Young's triple and a passed ball.

Ernie Koy's double and Micken Owen's single brought in the Cards' first run in the fourth and Don Gutteridge's homer in the ninth produced the other tally.

Cliff Melton was the winning pitcher, but had to have relief from Big Walt Brown in the seventh.

P. G. A. Sends $250 Check to Shute, Ill in Hospital

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 28.—A $250 check from the National Professional Golf Association tonight cheered Denny Shute, two-time P. G. A. titleholder, whose bid for a third title was cut short by appendicitis.

At the conclusion of medal play, Shute underwent an emergency appendectomy last night and his condition now is good. Revealing that the $250 check had been sent Shute, P. G. A. President Tom Walsh said:

"This is our way of expressing our feelings for a grand fellow."

Demaret Out, Upset Victim; Wood Fails

Old Timers Steal Show at Hershey; Picard vs. Sarazen as Survivors Meet Today

By the United Press

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 28.—The old men of the links, led by "Grand Pappy" Walter Hagen, took command of the twenty-third P. G. A. championship on this third day of rain on the muddy Hershey Country Club course.

After two sudden-death rounds that trimmed the field from 64 to 16, a good many men still left in the battle for golf's hardest title to win were old gaffers—Hagen, still going strong at 47; Gene Sarazen at 38; Jimmy Hines, 35; and Dudley, 38, and others up in the 30 bracket.

While these graybeards were marching along, one of the game's up-and-coming youngsters, Jimmy Demaret, was bumped out of the running along with another ancient, Craig Wood. Demaret lost in the second round, 2 and 1, to Eddie Kirk, of Framington, Mich. Wood was licked on the nineteenth hole of the same round by Jim Foulis, 32-year-old nephew of a man of the same name who won the National Open in 1896.

Many Others Upset

These were the major upsets of the day out a lot of other well-known golfers passed from the running—Jimmy Thomson, Harry Cooper, Johnny Revolta, Horton Smith, Vic Ghezzi, Billy Burke, Ky Laffoon and Ray Mangrum.

The survivors go out tomorrow in 36-hole matches to decide who shall be the quarter-finalists. Here's how they'll line up:

Henry Picard, the defending champion, against Gene Sarazen, three times a winner of this tournament; Jimmy Hines against Sammy Sneed; Dudley against dapper Little Paul Runyan; Hagen against Harold (Jug) McSpaden; Dick Metz, the hottest article in this tournament, against Byron Nelson, who came close to being bumped out in the second round today when 37-year-old Frank Walsh carried Byron 20 holes before yielding; Art Clark, of Uniontown, Pa., versus Eddie Kirk; Al Brosch, of Long Island, against Ben Hogan, and Ralph Guldahl, who never reached the third round in five previous P. G. A. tournaments against Foulis.

Hagen Chief Attraction

The biggest crowd tomorrow will be tagging after the fabulous Hagen, winner of almost as many major titles as the rest of the field combined.

For Hagen is playing the kind of golf that won him five P. G. A. titles, four British Opens and two National Opens.

Today "The Haig" squeezed out a one-up victory over Gil Sellers, of Hot Springs, Ark., in the first round. Then he lashed over the 7,017-yard course in one stroke under par to lick Vic Ghezzi, 2 and 1.

Sarazen moved along easily, defeating Stan Stazowski, Winsted,

4-Mile Horse Race Won by 80 Lengths By Winning Mark

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Washington Park's 4-mile marathon, the longest horse race run here in 70 years, was won today by Woodcock and King's Winning Mark in 8 minutes, 7 2/5 seconds, on a heavy track.

Second in the long grind was Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Wicket, which just beat the only other horse to finish Mrs. L. Copenhaver's Tristrap. Five started but S. L. Burch's Flat Lance fell after about 2 miles and English Harry pulled up.

English Harry set the early pace, with Winning Mark running third during the first 2 miles. Then the Woodcock and King router moved into command and at the finish had an 80-length lead over Wicket.

The winner paid $7.20, $3.40 and $2.60. The 4-mile record is 7:10, set 28 years ago at Churchill Downs.

Challedon to Be Retired Next Year, Reports Brann

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 28 (AP).—Owner W. L. Brann said today that Challedon, voted the best horse in America last season, would be retired to stud in Maryland next March.

The thoroughbred will run only in weight-for-age races until the end of the season, the owner said, and will then take his place beside his famous sire, Challenger II, at Branncastle Farm.

The only notable weight-for age races left on the Eastern schedule are the $5,000 Saratoga Cup here Saturday and the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park in October. The stable said the horse would not start in the new $50,000 New York handicap unless the weights were "reasonable."

Challedon, eighth biggest money winner in history, has earned $297,-150 in little more than two years.

Dietrich Triumphs Over Fleming; Red Sox Rally to Tie Score in 7th Inning

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 28.—The second division Chicago White Sox crept to within one game of the fourth place Boston Red Sox today, capturing the opener of a two-game series, 3 to 2, as Bill Dietrich triumphed over Rookie Bill Fleming in a sparkling pitching duel.

Each team collected five hits, and Fleming, the Pacific Coast League strike-out king, gave up but three in the seven innings he worked. Joe Heving, who relieved after Flaming gave way to a pinch hitter, surrendered the other pair and was charged with the defeat when he permitted the winning run to score in the eighth.

Fleming yielded all his hits in the second when Luke Appling and Taft Wright singled and Mike Tresh was passed, to fill the bases and set the stage for Dietrich to deliver a lusty wallop in his own cause. Bill drove Appling and Wright home with a sharp single.

Boston tied up the game with a two-run rally in the seventh. Ted Williams opened with a single and went to third when Joe Cronin also singled into rightfield. Cronin took second when Wright messed up the ball.

Bobby Doerr lofted a 420-foot drive to Johnny Rosenthal in center, Williams scoring and Cronin taking third after the catch. After Lou Finney bounced out, Charlie Gelbert walked and Pinch-hitter Stan Spence singled to right to bring Cronin home with the equalizer.

Joe Heving went into action in the eighth and made the mistake of passing Dietrich. Jackie Hayes sacrificed the bespectacled hurler along to second and Rosenthal wrapped up the ball game with a resounding double to rightfield, sending Dietrich home with what proved to be the winning tally.

Pirates Beat Phils Twice, 5-0 and 5-2

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 28.—The Pittsburgh Buccaneers, driving hard for a first division berth, snatched two games from the last-place Philadelphia Phils today, 5 to 0 and 5 to 2, with the aid of neat pitching by Pip Sewell and Joe Bowman and heavy batting by Rookie Maurice Van Robays.

In scoring his second consecutive shutout and twelfth victory against three defeats, Sewell allowed but three singles and only one man reached second base. Hugh Mulcahy, who has beaten the Pirates three times this year helped defeat himself with a first-inning wild pitch that let two runners score.

Van Robays got two singles in the first contest and knocked in four of the second game markers with a home run and a double.

French, Root, Bryant Touched for 15 Hits As Errickson Wins

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 28.—A 15-hit rampage at the expense of three Chicago Cub pitchers gave the Boston Bees an 8-to-3 victory today in the first of a two-game series.

Dick Errickson, Bee hurler, helped with two doubles that drove in three runs. It was his tenth victory and came rather handily despite a two-run first-inning outburst by the Cubs. After that he permitted just six hits. An error helped the Cubs to their final score, in the fourth.

Meantime, the Bees drove Larry French from the box in the second inning as they scored three runs and continued to peck away at French's successors—Charley Root and Clay Bryant.

Bryant, in his second test since returning to the Cubs, yielded two hits in the last two innings.

Eddie Miller, Ray Berres and Max West paced the Boston attack with three hits apiece—all singles. Gene Moore delivered the heaviest blow of the Bee barrage, a homer into the leftfield bleachers in the third inning with Miller on base. He also contributed a single.

Doyle's Latest Odds Make Yanks 3 to 1; Dodgers Out

New York, Aug. 28.—Jack Doyle, a sly old gentleman who has made book in the big town so long some people mistake him for a publisher, tossed out a lifeline tonight to the New York Yankees and a moment later handed the Dodgers back to Brooklyn, sans regrets.

Broadway's Mr. Baseball admits that at this eleventh hour his prices are bobbing like so many apples in a tub on Hallowe'en and that one quick win or loss may change everything, but as of 6 p. m. (E.D.T.) he considers the Yanks no worse than 3-1 bets in the American League and you can have all of Brooklyn you can handle at 6-1 in the National.

With due respect for the law of gravity and on the understanding that prices are subject to change with or without notice as additional precincts report, Doyle rates the two leagues like this at the moment.

American

Cleveland, 1-2. And Oz Vitt may not even save his scalp.

New York, 3-1. The Yankee Doodles still can come to town.

Detroit, 3-1. They won't hold that Tiger World Series in 1940.

National

Cincinnati, 1-6. A more lop-sided sure thing than the Tower of Pisa.

St. Louis, 6-1. Apt to give McKechnie the St. Vitus.

Brooklyn, 6-1. Just read it Larry S. McPhail-ure.

Boyle, like Ann Sheridan, usually is willing to let figures speak for themselves. On this occasion, however, he explains that the Yanks have dropped to their present 3-1 from a staggering 8-1—and he does mean staggering—in the short space of three weeks. He quoted the top figures, highest for the Yankees in more than five years, on August 1.

"Now," the white-maned little fellow said, "the team has a chance. The Yankees or some other team must first dispose of Cleveland. But if New York keeps traveling at the present clip there is still a good chance. Just remember your baseball history and you'll realize that with more than 30 games to play and with less than six to make up the task isn't impossible."

Doyle explained that the 1914 Boston Braves aren't necessarily the only team which came from far behind. Just six years ago St. Louis trailed the New York Giants five games with only ten to go and won and as recently as 1938 the Chicago Cubs were seven games behind Pittsburgh on Labor Day and still sneaked through.

While 1940 is the first year in five that the American League leader has't been declared out of the betting so late in August, it also is the first season in many that the National League race has appeared so completely tied up. Doyle believes, and his price bears him out, that Cincinnati is as good as in the series right now.

As for Brooklyn, he won't even agree to give the Dodgers undisputed possession of second place. Two weeks ago the Brooks were contenders; today they're just a 50-50 choice for second with the Cardinals. So maybe you really can't teach an old dog new tricks at that. It is probably just as well, too, for Brooklyn, when you remember the fate of the National League winner these five years past.

D. C. Golf Clubs Face Heavy Labor Day Tourney Schedule

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A tournament-packed Labor Day week-end will usher in the biggest competitive golf month of the year, locally and nationally. In September will be decided the National Amateur and Women's Champions, District Amateur and Public Links titleholders and a half-dozen champions of smaller affairs.

A special three-day tournament program is planned for all local club members, starting Saturday and continuing through Monday. Trophy tourneys include the Stanley Cup at Army and Navy, Turnage Cup at Beaver Dam, Secretary's Cup at Chevy Chase, President's Cup at Manor and the House Committee Trophy play at Congressional.

Belle Haven, Argyle and Capital members will continue club championship qualifications over the week-end, while by the end of the month every club excepting the ones holding spring championships will be at least halfway through the annual title battles.

Nothing definite is on tap for the public links golfers but Managers Tom Doerer, jr., at Rock Creek, B. Harry Graham, at Anacostia and S. G. Leoffler, jr., at East Potomac, will probably hold medal play handicap tourneys.

The week-end card:

Army and Navy—Stanley Trophy, 18-hole handicap.

Beaver Dam—Turnage Cup, two-man team.

Chevy Chase—Secretary's Cup, 18-hole medal, ⅞ handicap.

Indian Spring—Mixed Scotch foursome Sunday, Field Day Monday.

Kenwood—Intraclub tournament; Labor Day Field day events; Women's Hutchison trophy play.

Washington—Labor Day Tournaments.

Woodmont—Labor Day Tournaments.

More than a score of District women golfers will leave Sunday for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and the annual Mason-Dixon championship that starts Monday and extends through next Saturday.

Locally only two tournaments are scheduled next week, the Corby Cup play Friday at Columbia, opening event on the fall card of the Women's District Golf Association. Entries close Wednesday at 1 p. m. with Mrs. L. F. Hurley at Emerson 4129.

The Maryland State Golf Association Senior Championship will be played Wednesday at Green Spring Valley, and a dozen or more District entries are expected to be in the field.

Captains of the club teams that will start the Maryland State team championships a week from Sunday will be rounding up the players next week. Indian Spring is defending champion.

In addition to the District amateur at Manor September 17-20, and the public links match play championship, scattered over two weeks, other September features include The Washington Post Women's Tournament and the Rolling Road Invitation that will attract 50 or more District of Columbia amateurs.

Ted Lyons, Nearing 40, Keeps Winning

Veteran White Sox Hurler States Arm 'Feels Fine'

By Whitney Martin

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Aug. 28.—He's an old gaffer as baseball players go. He's perched on the rim of 40, an age when seam lines usually have replaced stream lines and a full past piles up to crowd out an empty future.

Yet Theodore Amar Lyons could pass in a friendly light as an ambitious rookie, and, as for glancing over his shoulder to see his future, he visions at least there or four more years in the big show.

One of the marvels of this baseball age is the sturdy, affable young oldster who left the Baylor Campus in 1923 to pitch for the Chicago White Sox, and last Sunday, 17 years later, was good enough to blank the revived Yankees with three hits.

"Shucks," he says, "my arm feels fine. Sure, I haven't got the stuff I used to have, and can't go as often, but I've learned a lot and can get by on control. I guess I could pitch about every five days, but I'm just a Sunday pitcher now—have worked every Sunday game except two since the season started.

Arm Went Sore

"You know, about 1931 it looked like I was through. My arm was so sore I only won four games. It gradually came back, though. I started to develop a knuckle ball then to help me out, and I use it a lot now. I grip the ball on the seam with my finger nails. If I use it too much my hand and forearm are tired the next day, but it's nothing serious. It's a hard pitch to control. You never know where it's going.

"Of course I know quite a bit about the different batters by now, but that isn't the main thing. It's being able to put the ball where you want it."

Practically a generation of ball players has come and gone before the eyes of the Louisiana veteran. He's stayed in one spot and watched nine managers come and eight of them go.

"Just a ball team," he grinned. "Let's see, first was Kid Gleason, then Frank Chance, who died before the season opened and was succeeded by Johnny Evers. Then came Eddie Collins, and Ray Schalk, and Donie Bush, and Lena Blackburne, and Lew Fonseca, and now Jimmy Dykes. Most of them infielders, weren't they?"

Improving With Age

Lyons' case history is the more remarkable in that he seems to be improving with age. Last year his earned run average of 2.76 was the lowest he ever registered, and his winning percentage of .700, with 14 victories against 6 defeats, was his highest.

Three times he was in the 20-game winner class, but to show that the lily is not being gilded it might be pointed out that he twice had the back-handed honor losing 20 or more games.

This year, with 10 victories and six defeats on his record, he seemed headed toward duplicating his 1939 performance. That is, if he doesn't have to go against Washington.

"That bunch is a jinx to me this year," he explains. "They just seem to hit me, that's all."

Last Sunday's masterpiece against the Yanks was Lyons' 231st major league victory. Chances seem slim that he can reach the coveted 300 mark, but it's by no means an impossibility. Four more 14-game years would bring him mighty close to the mark.

And also would bring Mr. Lyons mighty close to the 45 mark.

Defense Jobs Call, Clubs Face Caddy Shortage

James McLaughlin, caddymaster at the Whitemarsh Country Club, said today about half of his boys have entered defense industries or have signed with the Nation's armed forces.

Only this morning five caddies left for jobs in a mill which turns out underwear for the Army—a job not as romantic as keeping a sharp eye for a slice, while stifling chuckles, but the pay is better. Top caddies usually earn about $16 to $18 a week at Whitemarsh for six months in the year.

Heurich-St. Elizabeth's Game Is Rained Out

Rain again caused postponement of the Heurich-St. Elizabeth's baseball game which was to have launched the D. C. sandlot championship tournament yesterday, but if possible the game will be staged today.

ONE GREAT BEER!
...WITH A BLUE RIBBON ON IT!
BLUE RIBBON is a blend of 33 separate brews — for smoothness, for flavor, for goodness that's always the same!
It takes not one, not five, not ten . . . but 33 separate brews, from 33 separate kettles, to make a single glass of BLUE RIBBON.
Each brew is as fine as choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of experience can make it. Then all 33 are brought together in perfect balance.

Ring Champs Now Ducking Billy Soose

Overlin and Zale Side-Step Return Bouts After Losing To Penn State Lad

By the United Press

Chicago, Aug. 8.—About as near as young Billy Soose will get to a world title for some time to come is a unanimous "A" for effort.

Those two middleweight champions he knocked over within a month in nontitle bouts, apparently want no part of the lean boxing master who shot up almost overnight.

Shortly after the Penn State collegian made it a grand slam of champions by defeating the N. B. A. titleholder, Tony Zale, of Gary, Ind., Zale's manager put their boy on ice for at least five weeks. Ken Overlin, New York's world champion, probably will be as elusive.

In a rematch with either champion, Soose will be a favorite. The only chance either Zale or Overlin would have against him would be to tag him on the button and tag him quick. Billy is the best boxer around and they know it.

Promised Title Match

"When we came to Chicago to have Billy box Zale in an overweight match it was with the understanding we could have a title bout if he made a good showing," said his manager, Paul Moss of the Farrell, Pa., and Hollywood, Calif., Mosses.

Soose is a remarkable personality in a game packed with assorted characters, phony lingo, backslappers, chiselers, and some of the nicest guys you'd want to meet.

In the first place, he's just out of college—23 years old and unspoiled. He's had three years at Penn State, expects to finish some day, and in the back of his head is an idea he would make a pretty good lawyer.

An Admirer of Ross

The other day at lunch, he met Barney Ross for the first time. Like any fighter out of training, Barney is putting on weight. His hair is prematurely gray. He's a long shot from the Ross of the ring, at least in appearance.

Golf Hit Hard By England's War Troubles

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Local rules take care of balls which roll into trenches dug to stop easy plane landings but golf is having a hard time of it in besiged England, according to Henry Cotton, generally regarded as one of the game's great players.

Writing to Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers Association, that "we are going to see this job through now," Cotton said he was joining the Royal Air Force as a pilot within ten days and disclosed that a serious shortage of water had hurt most of the country's courses.

"Golf is just alive," Cotton writes. "Our courses are covered with posts, poles, trenches, stone boulders, old rollers, in fact anything to stop airplanes having an easy landing. This does not interfere much with play and local rules cover any incidents. We have had a dry summer with no staff and no money and with the idea of saving our water reserves for fire emergencies. No watering has been done—with the greens very burnt up, some almost seriously—and as I write we are in the middle of another hot spell."

Reporting he had raised £24,000 (approximately $96,000) in Red Cross exhibition matches, Cotton said: "I'm glad to read the P. G. A. of America is making a Red Cross effort. My play for this cause will be limited from now on, as will my golf anyway. It is the same for thousands of other chaps taken out of their careers at the wrong moment, but we are going to see this job through now. We have lots of our boys in the services but they will lose touch with their golf game, I'm afraid."

Asking Walsh to keep him informed of competitive play in the United States —"it is like a breath of fresh air to get news of the old days and our golfers here lap it up" —Cotton said he had a new 43-year-old assistant, S. F. Dorman, at his course, the Ackridge Club of Berkhamsted. "Dorman was in Poland ten years," Cotton wrote, "and lost everything—his home, property and all personal effects—tough eh! My young boys have long since gone so I got this older lad, who won't have to go for a bit, to look after my shop whilst there is anything to do."

3 Teams to Compete In Tug-of-War

Three teams instead of two will compete in the tug-of-war which will feature the Police-Firemen's Field Day at Griffith Stadium on September 14, it was announced last night.

A White House Police team, to be captained by Frank McLaughlin, has cast its lot with entries from the Police Department and Fire Department. A 235-pound former wrestler himself, McLaughlin will head a group of huskies totaling 1,550 pounds.

Arrangements for other athletic events—including a softball game, weight-lifting and fencing contests—were meanwhile being completed. Tickets to the annual affair may be obtained at any fire or police precinct.

Army's First Football Drill Forced Inside

Rain Mars Practice Of 66 Hopefuls; 8 Veterans Missing

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Heavy rain forced indoors today an Army football squad that began training for the Military Academy's toughest schedule in 12 years.

Among the familiar faces missing from the 66 hopefuls reporting were those of eight of last year's starters, including Harry Stella, 1939 captain. Graduation claimed all but Bill Gillis, center and this year's captain, Guard Ray Murphy and Ted Brown, blocking back.

Hatch, Due Report

A note of cheer permeated today's opening practice session, however, with the appearance of Johnny Hatch and Ken Due, backfield aces. Hatch met academic difficulties shortly after the past season, but reentered the academy this month. Due showed signs of promise as a sophomore two years ago, but was ineligible for the 1939 season.

Army's hopes of victory over such elevens as Cornell, Harvard, Notre Dame, Navy and Princeton have been further stimulated by the wealth of material available from last year's Plebe squad, which lost only to Fordham.

Merely Limber Up

Coach Bill Wood devoted most of the afternoon to calisthenics and simple passing and kicking plays, which will be the order of the day until formal practice gets under way Saturday.

The Cadets open their season at West Point October 5 against Williams.

Apprentice Jockey Scores With Three Winners at Marlboro

19-Year-Old Rider Never Won Before

Herbert Clagett Boots $82.20 Shot Home in Seventh; Victory Light Wins

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 28.—Never having ridden a winner before today's program, Apprentice Jockey Herbert Clagett performed in sensational fashion and had a perfect score. Three times the 19-year-old Cambridge, Md., boy was boosted into the saddle and three times he came to the finish line ahead of his field. In each instance he was aboard a horse the crowd did not fancy.

His crowning piece of horsemanship and his longest price of the day came in the seventh race when he booted B. Berry's Princess Lady to the wire at an $82.20 pay-off. He had the 4-year-old filly on top throughout and held her together long enough to win by a head in a photo finish with America First, the favorite. Clymene was a well beaten third in the field of eight.

The first winner of Clagett's career came on the concluding end of a $71.70 daily double. He had the mount on Scarlet Flame and took the top at the break, never to be headed. He kept driving the filly through the stretch and finished a length in advance of Wahoo with Spanish Dot third. Scarlet Flame paid $18.30.

Brings in Ann Mowlee

Clagett's second winner came in the sixth race. He climbed into Ann Mowlee's saddle and never gave the Mowlee filly a breather, but she was right there winging at the end and her backers collected $16.30. Five-o-Four was second and Flag Etta was third.

Victory Light, a surprise winner here last Monday, came back today and caused mild surprise by taking the Sandy Springs Purse, featuring the mid-week program. The 5-year-old son of the mud-loving Victorian, which won a Preakness in the slop for C. V. Whitney, ran the same kind of race today as that which brought him victory in his previous outing. The same boy, Jockey Douglas West, was in the saddle and he allowed the gelding to settle into stride before circling the field gradually to win going away.

Pays $14.60 Mutuel

About the only difference in the two events was the price. He paid $68 in winning his first purse of the meeting and came back with $14.60 today. Victory Light was clocked in 1.59 for the mile and a sixteenth.

The well backed Lewis-Davis entry produced the second horse when Goodwine finished two lengths behind the winner. Mrs. V. L. Black's Furr Buckle was third and beaten a total of three lengths in the limit field of eight.

The track continued to be muddy and the weather was threatening but the attendance held up, some 6,000 taking part in the day's sport.

O'Donnell Farm Purse Features Card Today

Tom O'Donnell, Washington restaurauner and donor of the trophy for the race, will make the presentation to the winning owner and trainer at the judges' stand after the finish.

Chart of Marlboro Races

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1940.

(Compiled by Walter Haight.)

WEATHER, CLOUDY. TRACK, MUDDY.

FIRST RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400. For maiden 2-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:12. Off 2:14. Winner, M. Belasco's b. f. (3), by Blenheim—Bracken. Trained by N. J. Fillman. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:28⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLENHEIM ROSE, $6.70, $4.10, $2.80; KELLY POT, $19.10, $5.80; SERRANO, $2.70.

BLENHEIM ROSE went to front at once, opened commanding lead and won in common gallop. KELLY POT responded to punishment to close gamely. SERRANO lacked early speed and came willingly in closing test. COLIN ROI was well placed early and weakened. CATROWEST showed nothing.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:45. Off 2:46. Winner, A. Gazzale's ft. ch. f. (3), by Luculiite—Kum Kalesi. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:20.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCARLET FLAME, $18.30, $6.80, $5.70; WAHCOO, $5.70, $5.00; SPANISH DOT, $6.70.

SCARLET FLAME went to front at once, withstood early bid of JUSTA CANTER and was put to punishment to stave off closing challenge of WAHCOO. The latter, off well, came through on inside to reach serious contention and hung in closing test. SPANISH DOT came with good energy at close. BUD'S KING raced wide throughout.

Daily Double, BLENHEIM ROSE and SCARLET FLAME, Paid $71.70

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:17. Off 3:19. Winner, Hillcrook Farm's gr. f. (2), by Timemaker—Rock Rot. Trained by D. Chamolin. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:11⅘.

COSTUME	(West)	113½	8	5	8	8	8	8	8	74.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALL GRAY, $6.10, $4.30, $3.20; SKAGWAY, $6.80, $4.00; MISS SOOT, $3.60.

ALL GRAY, quickest to begin, drew clear, but had to be put to pressure to stave off SKAGWAY and weakened badly in final 70 yards. SKAGWAY, off slowly, was rushed to contention and closed with good energy under punishment. MISS SOOT closed resolutely. LADY ANDY was off last, moved up and tired.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:49. Off 3:50. Winner, Flamingo Farm's ch. g. (4), by Mayne—Golden Finn. Trained by W. C. Kennedy. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:10⅘.

RAVENHURST	(Hamer)	109	3	5	6¹	6¹	6²	8	8	8.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDEN MAYNE, $15.00, $6.60, $4.80; HAPPY HOSTESS, $8.30, $4.10; ASTER PRINCESS, $4.20.

GOLDEN MAYNE, rated while 7 or 8 wide, forwardly placed in early stages, responded when placed to drive on outside and caught HAPPY HOSTESS to win going away. HAPPY HOSTESS was hard used in disposing of PRINCE TURLEY and weakened right at close. ASTER PRINCESS closed with good energy. SCHLEY AL was forward factor early and flattened out when placed to drive.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:20. Off 4:21. Winner, C. C. Gribbin's blk. g. (5), by Victorian—Light Rose. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:59.

SATIN ROYCE	(W. Kirk)	107	4	1	2²	5¹	8	8	8	16.70

†Mrs. T. Lewis-E. G. Davis entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VICTORY LIGHT, $14.60, $6.70, $4.80; GOODWINE (entry), $4.50, $2.90; FURR BUCKLE, $3.70.

VICTORY LIGHT, slow to begin, circled horses to improve position, went to FURR BUCKLE with good energy and drew out gradually to end. GOODWINE, forward factor from beginning, came with good speed at close, but was held safe. FURR BUCKLE set good pace and weakened when displaced. YANKEE LAD closed some ground from sluggish beginning. FRANK H. ran out.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:52. Off 4:54. Winner, J. V. Tizani's br. m. (4), by Morvich—Ann Bolero. Trained by A. Mazzeo. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:56⅘.

CREAM CHEESE	(Vessell)	107	2	6	5²	5½	8	8	8	11.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANN MOWLEE, $16.30, $7.60, $4.50; FIVE O' FOUR, $9.50, $4.70; FLAGETTA, $2.70.

ANN MOWLEE, going in best form, took command at once, set strong pace and won with speed in reserve. FIVE O' FOUR was off last, went to contention boldly and hung in closing stages. FLAGETTA was hard used to get forward position early and tired. ARTIST failed to rally. BLOX was never a threat.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:23. Off 5:25. Winner, S. B. Berry's br. f. (4), by Prince of Wales—Ghost Story. Trained by L. Hughes. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:59⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCESS LADY, $82.20, $18.30, $6.40; AMERICA FIRST, $3.60, $2.60; CLYMENE, $2.80.

PRINCESS LADY went to front at once, saved ground, drew far out and was tiring at end while just lasting. AMERICA FIRST, confidently handled, was not hurried in early stages, came to contention with rush and barely failed to get up. CLYMENE was off poorly, lost some ground and was held safe. CHILLY EBBIE could not threaten. MOON HARVEST stopped.

ON FISHING

Norfolk Spot Here In Greater Numbers; Trout Hampered

Does anyone know of any place in all of Chesapeake Bay where the large Norfolk spot aren't to be found? If so, it would be worth knowing, for there the trout might have a better chance.

It seems that this year they are with us in greater numbers than we can ever remember. They are almost as thick as the spot and just as small as the spot are large. The pounds in the upper bay are lifting them daily by the ton. There are some large ones here and there on Holland Point Bar under Sharps Island and off West and South rivers.

ACKERMAN

Dr. Sterling Ruffin is doing better than good with his black bass fishing at Cape Vincent in the Thousand Islands area, but the 68-pound white marlin that Dr. W. V. Connors caught at Ocean City a day or two ago on the Lev-Lou wasn't so bad either.

Kip Farrington, jr., with four broadbill swordfish already to his credit this summer, tried the Hatteras area last week in hopes of adding a big blue marlin to his string. With luck, at least we call it that, although with Kip it is at least 60 per cent fishing ability, he probably would have accomplished it, too. The first day he was unable to get out, however, and when he did, real fishing was impossible with the riled water resulting from a hurricane and ten days of continuous bad weather.

One of the foremost figures in the angling world, and a grand guy, is recovering at the Mayo Clinic from an ailment that has almost had him down for the past several years. We are highly pleased that Tommy Aitken has found the reason for his acute discomfort caused by temperatures of less than 70 degrees. We wonder what the coming greater Miami fishing tournaments, which will have 160,000 entries, would be like if he had been normal while arranging it.

Milton Gordon brought home proof that small pansized stripers are still striking controlled lures at Tall Timbers, but they are also showing in many places in the upper Chesapeake. In fact it is almost impossible to run any distance without running into a school, but getting them to strike is something else. Anglers fishing Kent Island on the Eastern Shore are connecting every now and then—in the early morning and late evening.

Only 3 Lettermen Turn Out for Tough Central Grid Season

36 Hopefuls Given Viking Grid Garb

Coach Pierce's Annual Pessimism Borne Out For a Change; Martin Certainty to Perform

By Bill Burnett.

Digging himself out of a heap of hip pads, jerseys and freshly laundered socks, Coach Hardy Pierce, of Central High, yesterday issued his annual statement that "things are pretty tough from a football standpoint with the Vikings."

The announcement, while not officially launching football hostilities among Washington high schools, nevertheless was an accurate indication that action is not far distant.

Since his introduction upon the local scene in 1934, the burly former gridman from Hardin-Simmons and George Washington, each year starts off with the same story. Each year he has made a spectacular success of what, to him, began as an almost hopeless season.

Things Look Tough

But this year Pierce speaks the truth. Things are pretty tough at Central. Pierce and all observers were certain of that yesterday when uniforms were issued at the Thirteenth street school. Out of 36 candidates who put in the first appearance for the Viking football team of 1940, only 3 boasted letters.

Harry Martin, halfback, and Sam Di Blasi, end, were the only regulars left over from 1939. Jack Samperton, another end, was a first-line reserve. These were the extent of Pierce's seasoned material.

Lost from the club which won the interhigh title in 1938 and ran a close second to Western in 1939, were such brilliant stars as Benny Steiner, Jack Wilhelm, Jim Porter and Johnny Bredbenner. The latter will return to school, but his age will not permit him to play.

The certainty that Martin, called the best all-round athlete in the high schools, would return somewhat eased Pierce's pain upon viewing this year's team for the first time. A runner and blocker of exceptional ability, he was at one time expected to transfer from Central due to scholastic difficulties.

Center of Line Weak

Four youngsters will probably fight for the three remaining places in the backfield. Fred Dunn, Steve Brodie, Mike Denikos and Curly Berry have had some experience, but not enough to count on.

Central's big weakness will probably be the center of its line. George Lavender, a reserve last year, may get the pivot post, and candidates for guard and tackle positions will probably be Jim Kurz, Reed Smith, Hubert Tucker, Sam Richwine and Henry Lowlar.

In contrast to this not-too-cheering group of candidates is the brutal schedule arranged for the Vikings. Each of their eight games will be a hard one, with St. John's, Eastern, Tech and Washington-Lee outstanding.

Three night games have been tentatively carded by the progressive Pierce—two of them against interhigh foes. St. John's will be met on October 4, Eastern on the 10th and Tech on the 17th. Griffith Stadium, it is hoped, would be the site of each.

First practice will be held next Tuesday at the Mount Pleasant Stadium. Fred Dunlap, former guide at Devitt Prep, will assist Pierce with the coaching probably taking over the junior varsity later on.

Jannazzo, Williams Bout Off Till Sept. 4

Holman Williams and Izzy Jannazzo will wait until next Wednesday night, September 4, to settle their ten-round argument at Griffith Stadium.

Jannazzo, his manager, and his trainer, caught an afternoon train for New York, where he will resume training at Stillman's gym. Williams will remain here with his trainer, Larry Amadee, and will complete his drills at the arena.

Matchmaker Menendez said the entire supporting card will be held over.

Contract Bridge

The sense of anticipation is needed in the bidding of this hand, which is taken from one of Sam Fry, jr.'s, problems.

♠ K J 7 5
♡ K J 7 4
◇ 10 3
♣ A Q 2

What do you bid?

Here is another where you have to plan in advance.

♠ A K J 5
♡ K J 10 9
◇ K 6
♣ K Q J

What do you bid?

The answer to the first question, says Fry, is to bid one club. The hand, though a minimum, is too good to pass. If you open with a spade without an immediate raise you will next have to show the hearts, and the bidding may be forced too high. A club call will make it easy for you to rebid, and if partner responds with a major suit you can start raising.

The master player advises bidding one spade on the second hand, as it is foolhardy to open with two no trump although having the requirements with two strong four-card major suits. If you find your partner with four cards in either major, there should be a game at that suit, while three no trump might go down. If you open two no trump, partner cannot be expected to mention a weak four-card major. If partner replies to one spade, you may force in hearts on the next round.

Central High Equips Its Team for Coming Football Wars

Duseks Meet 2-Man Champs On Mat Card

Plummer and Newman Risk 3-Match Streak; Miss Burke Is Back

Unbeaten in there weeks of the newlest wrestling fad, two-man team competition, Lou Plummer and Eddie Newman will meet two of the Duseks in tonight's feature match at Turner's Arena. Ernie and Emil, of the brother mat clan, will furnish the opposition.

Plummer and Newman have not faced a team with the ability of the Duseks, so there is considerable doubt attached to their fourth straight triumph.

Miss Burke's last appearance here was against Ritz Lopez last month and since then she has wrestled in Texas, Arkansas and New Mexico, where she has added to her winning streak that totals in the vicinity of 350 matches.

First of the preliminary bouts that start at 8 o'clock will pit 300-pound Sheriff Tom Hanley against Tommy Mahoney and Herb Freeman against Tommy O'Toole.

Due to the increasing interest in the two-man team competition, Promoter Joe Turner has offered a special purse to the winners of tonight's bout.

Joe Louis Reveals He Will Be a Daddy

St. Louis, Aug. 28 (INS).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis revealed in St. Louis today that he and his wife, the former Marva Trotter, are expecting the stork.

"We're expecting a baby 'bout December," he said. "Maybe he'll be a fighter—if he's a he."

Joe, Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong and Band Leader Duke Ellington were in St. Louis as honor guests at the Negro Elks convention.

Infielder, Hurlers Recalled by Bosox For Early Action

Boston, Aug. 28 (AP).—Recall of Tony Lupien, first baseman of the Little Rock team, and Pitchers Mickey Harris and Woody Rich from Scranton has been announced by the management of the Boston Red Sox.

Lupien will join the team on its next Western swing and the two pitchers will report as soon as they finish the Eastern League play-offs.

The Sox also announced the recall of 11 other players from farm clubs or teams to which they had been optioned, but none of these will report until next year.

They included Pitchers Wilburn Butland and Wilfred Lefebvre, from Scranton; Pitchers Bill Sayles and Alpha Brazle and Infielder Hal Seiling, from Little Rock; Outfielder Leon Nonnenkamp, from Newark; Pitcher Charlie Wagner, Catcher George Lacy and Infielder Paul Campbell, from Louisville, and Pitchers Fran Dassok and Larry Powell, from San Francisco.

Yankees Call Up 7 Class AA Players

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—The New York Yankees announced today they have recalled seven players from their Class AA farm clubs at Newark and Kansas City.

From Newark will come Mike Chartak, an outfielder; Buddy Blair, infielder, and George Washburn, right-handed pitcher.

First Baseman Johnny Sturm, Buster Mills, an outfielder who was with the Yanks several weeks this season, and Charles Stanceu and Tommy Reis, both right-handed pitchers, will come up from Kansas City.

All will report for spring training at St. Petersburg, Fla., next spring.

Baer Accepts $30,000 Offer

Sacramento, Calif., Aug. 8 (AP).—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, said today he had wired Jack Kearns in Jersey City accepting $30,000 for a Baer-Pat Comiskey bout there in late September with a provision he be given exclusive broadcast rights.

Hoffman said he had not heard from Kearns but assumed his offer was accepted. Kearns was to announce his approval of terms in Jersey City.

Hoffman held out for $35,000 guarantee and Kearns' offer was $25,000.

'Rockne of Wrestling' Victim of Pneumonia; Produced Champions

Oklahoma City, Aug. 28 (AP).—Edward Clark Gallagher, 53-year-old wrestling coach who brought world fame to Oklahoma A. and M. College, lost his bout with pneumonia today.

He Taught "Leverage"

His death came at a time when his teams had completed three consecutive undefeated seasons—with an unbroken string of 25 dual meet victories—and won four successive national crowns.

The scientific system he devised, based on the principles of leverage, will go on—taught by the hundreds of coaches who learned their lessons under him.

Gallagher turned out coaches who today are teaching wrestling at Duke, Massachusetts Tech, Northwestern, Michigan, United States Naval Academy, Michigan State, Virginia Military Institute, Lafayette, Kansas, Kansas State, Grinnell and hundreds of high schools and smaller colleges.

19 of 23 Teams Unbeaten

A veteran of 28 years on the Aggie staff, he became head wrestling coach in 1916 and turned out 19 undefeated teams in 23 years. The sport was suspended in 1918 and 1818 because of the World War.

His record includes 137 dual meet victories, 4 ties and only 5 defeats. His teams from 1921 through 1932 were undefeated, winning 70 consecutive meets. He turned out 69 national individual champions, 15 members of Uncle Sam's last four Olympic teams and three Olympic champs.

Oklahoma Alma Mater Seeks Navy's Coach

Among E. C. Gallagher's star pupils were Raymond Schwartz, wrestling coach and assistant football coach at the United States Naval Academy, and Johnny Harrell, a member of the Naval Academy team who as a sophomore at Oklahoma A. & M. was national collegiate heavyweight wrestling champion.

When Gallagher became critically ill some months ago, Oklahoma A. & M. alumni began a quiet campaign to draft Schwartz as his successor. Wrestling is a major sport at Oklahoma.

Chisox Call in Five For Spring Trials

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox announced today five rookies, including three pitchers, would be called up for trials. All will report in the spring.

One hurler, Eugene Stack, has struck out 197 batters in 208 innings with Lubbock of the West Texas-New Mexico League. Also called from Lubbock was Chester Hajduk, first baseman and outfielder.

The other rookies were Pitchers Warren Martin and Southpaw Clyde Umstead, of the Jonesboro club in the Northeast Arkansas League, and Warren Lorenz, shortstop, with Wisconsin Rapids of the Wisconsin State League.

Water Fete Director Defies Anglers to Reel Him In

Patsy Palmer, 15-year-old Wilson High School student and holder of District records in four events, who will have the leading role in the benefit Aquafete scheduled next week at the Takoma pool

Elmer Hipsley, former national life guard champion directing the Red Cross Aquafete scheduled for Takoma Pool September 4-5-6, yesterday challenged any local angler to reel him in by a line attached to a belt around Hipsley's waist during the three-day show.

Hipsley, a splendidly built 220-pounder and one of the strongest swimmers in this vicinity, has successfully defied the Nation's best fishermen in similar exhibitions.

The Aquafete director plans to enter the water as a human fish and permit any ambitious fisherman a chance to "catch" him. Those accepting Hipsley's challenge will be expected to donate $25 to the Red Cross if unsuccessful. Hipsley warns the anglers to be prepared for a good ducking, confident that he can pull the strongest of them into the pool with him. The only condition he makes is that the fishermen not use power reels.

Meantime Hipsley announced that Patsy Palmer, attractive Wilson High School student and the city's outstanding woman swimmer, will have the leading role in the Aquafete. Miss Palmer, only 15 years old, is District champion in and holds the records for the following four events—100, 220 and 440 free style, and 150-yard medley. Recently in the Western Maryland championships the Shoreham Hotel team ace broke marks for the 100 and 220 free style and 50-yard backstroke.

Rehearsals for the Aquafete will continue Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights at McKinley Pool. All who would like to join the production cast are asked to call District Red Cross First Aid and Life Saving Department, NAtional 5400.

Market Heads Defer Plan to Extend Hours

Big Board Governors To Study Proposal At Sept. 11 Session

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 28.—The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange at their meeting today received a petition from an important group of member firms to extend the trading hours but put it over for consideration at a future meeting.

The plan, which would make the hours of trading, Mondays through Fridays, 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., New York time, instead of the 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. period that has been in effect many years, will probably be considered at the next regular meeting, September 11.

There has been agitation among the exchange membership from time to time in recent years for a longer trading day but brokers said the current movement was the strongest of any that has developed. Many members have become eager to try any plan that might increase the volume of commissions, in view of the extremely dull trading recently, on several days the smallest in 24 years.

Keenest for the change were said to be a group of firms operating offices on the Pacific Coast. They point out that when the market closes at 3 p. m., Eastern daylight time, it is only 11 a. m., in San Francisco, Pacific standard time.

Those opposing the change, however, have expressed the opinion that the present five hour session was more than ample to handle all the business available, and that no appreciable increase would result from keeping the market open later. Some have expressed apprehension lest a longer trading day cause increased expense, particularly when the 40-hour week goes into effect under the Fair Labor Standards Act in October.

Year's Deposits Of FDIC Banks Up 6.1 Billions

13,480 Institutions Show Record Total Of 58.4 Billions

The 13,480 banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation received record deposits of $58,425,000,000 in the last year.

The corporation said yesterday that condition reports submitted by the banks on June 29 showed that their deposits had increased $6,099,000,000, or about 12 per cent, during the 12 months.

Advertising Heavier

Newspaper advertising linage placed by retailers in 82 major cities (including Washington) during the week ended August 17 showed a gain of 1.5 per cent over the corresponding week of 1939, Advertising Age reported yesterday. For the week the total lines placed by the retailers was 16,459,795, against 16,254,898 lines for the corresponding week of a year ago.

The cumulative total for the 33-week period ended August 17, 1940, was 612,436,879 lines, an increase of 1.4 per cent over 604,178,019 reported for the same period of 1939.

Va. Home Financing Gains

Urban home financing in Virgina in July totaled $7,813,000 with 3,359 mortgages being recorded, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported yesterday. The figures compare with 2,392 mortgages amounting to $5,729,000 in July a year ago.

By types of lenders the home financing for July this year was as follows: Savings and loan associations, $3,158,000; insurance companies, $556,000; banks and trust companies, $1,502,000; individuals, $1,506,000; others, $1,091,000.

Life Institute Adds 22

Twenty-two additional life insurance companies have joined the Institute of Life Insurance in 1940, bringing the total membership to 99 companies, it was announced yesterday by Holgar J. Johnson, president of the institute.

"The Institute of Life Insurance now includes in its membership companies representing approximately 62 per cent of the life insurance in force in this country with home offices in 34 States, the District of Columbia and Canada," Mr. Johnson stated.

The new members of the institute include Equitable Life Insurance Co., Washington, D. C., and the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, Newark, N. J.

Purely Personal

Willkie's Personality Gives New Slant on Business Chiefs

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

Wholly apart from narrow political consideration, the projection of Wendell L. Willkie's personality on the national scene will give the public a new angle on Wall Street and corporate affairs.

It will come as an eye opener to many who learned their economics from demagogues on the stump and in the universities to discover that some few humane, civilized and social-minded men find employment in the district south of Fulton street in Manhattan.

This recalls my own sense of discovery 23 years ago when I first began to report Wall Street news.

In meeting brokers, investment financiers, bank executives and corporate officials face to face, I was shocked to find that they were not a special species of ogres as depicted in fiction, but were a fair sampling of human beings in the top group such as you would expect to find in main street or anywhere else. Comparatively few of them had been born and bred in New York. Many of them had gravitated from villages, towns, cities and rural areas throughout the Nation.

As an objective reporter, I perceived that you couldn't readily tie up all these indivdualists into a convenient single classification. There was variation in the manner in which they parted their hair, in the type of clothes they wore, and in the political and social ideals they clung to. I was impressed by the fact that business and finance were the outstanding American purusits, and that consequently they attracted some of the first-rate minds of their period.

Another discovery was that top-notchers, however, conservative in their views, were inclined to be more broadminded than the paid propagandists who purported to represent their views.

In taking the measure of the personality of Mr. Willkie, the public, it seems to me, is going through a somewhat similar experience of discovery. It must not assume that Mr. Willkie is a typical, a biological sport, a complete deviation from the Wall Street type. It is true that Mr. Willkie carries the flavor of Indiana, but many high-placed New Yorkers also have a background of simple beginnings in a far different environment.

The fact that a liberal fellow like Willkie could succeed in Wall Street should in itself end some of the damagogy which has confused the public mind.

Mr. Willkie is teaching the Nation that gentlemen come from Wall Street, which is the national market place for securities. Likewise, the fact that a fellow like himself was head of a public utility holding company tends to reinterpret the modern corporation in the public mind constructively as a consolidation of the savings of many thrifty persons in order to merge and improve the tools, so as to produce more and better goods and services at a lower price.

The fact that a major party was willing to confer its greatest honor on a businessman signifies that it rejected the myths and emotions of the business baiters and the political racketeers.

It may mean the dawn of an awakening, which will pave the way for a resumption of national economic progress after the prolonged depression.

Trade Quickens as Stocks Stage Broad Rise; Axis Power Weakening Seen in Balkan Crisis

New York, Aug. 28.—Defense program influences on business, further British resistance to German air attacks, trouble in the Balkans seen as weakening the position of the Axis powers, and new signs of healthier general trade, were accounted reasons for a broad advance in share prices today. The strong technical position of the list with complete lack of liquidation aided in gains ranging to more than 2 points.

At the close big board price levels were at the best since the second week of August, volume of 381,570 shares was the largest in a week. Traders considered it significant that leadership was improved.

The composite for the 100 key stocks ended 0.43 point higher with steels, coppers, motors and high priced manufacturing issues dominating. Bonds were steady in all departments with strength in Scandinavians featuring the foreign section. Foreign exchange dealings were dull with little change in arbitrage rates. Wheat was steady to fractionally lower while cotton firmed 2 to 5 points in the active months and 9 points in the September position.

Steel common, up ⅜: Bethlehem, a 2-point gainer and General Motors and Chrysler, ahead ¾ and 1¾ net, respectively, were among the most active stocks. Continental Motors, a $3 issue, however, led the list on sales of 12,600 shares. American Radiator, in second position, made a sharp gain of ⅝ and closed at 7⅛. Anaconda and Kennecott in the copper section were well ahead and International Paper and power issues continued in demand.

With the number of listed issues traded expanding to 610 or nearly half the total available, there were better than average rises in Westinghouse, Johns Manville, Great Northern preferred, American Can, DuPont and American Telephone. Aircrafts, meanwhile, firmed in response to Washington announcements of the number of planes on order or about to be placed. President Roosevelt's statement that business was not to blame for delays in defense proceedings was taken as reassuring. Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft were well ahead at the close. Mercantile issues made small gains on reports of increasing retail trade. Bad weather, reflecting on vacation matters, tended to restrain buying in certain affected shares.

The spurt in copper stocks followed rumors in the trade that Great Britain is turning, or will soon turn, to this market for supplies due to the inability of some empire sources to make prompt delivery of sufficient quantities.

Although listed bond trading remained in the doldrums today, there was a good tone in almost all groups that have a speculative tinge. The corporate section of the market contained many small advances and a few more sizable ones. Investment issues were steady to firm. Foreign dollar obligations were quiet and little changed. Turnover totaled $3,250,000.

Canadian and Australian bonds attracted a little buying in the quiet market for foreigns. German and Italian obligations hardly varied, but some of the occupied-country bonds did well. In the Latin-American section the favorites were Argentine, Panama and Uruguay bonds, others remaining dull.

Special Dividend In D. C. Rail Stock Voted by Utility

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Directors of the North American Co., public utility holding concern, today declared a dividend of 30 cents on the common stock along with a special dividend in the form of certificates for participating units of beneficial ownership of common stock of Washington (D. C.) Railway & Electric Co., a subsidiary.

On basis of current value of the participating units the special dividend amounts to 20 cents a share on North American stock. A slightly larger special distribution in the units was made last December. Cash dividends of 30 cents were paid in recent quarters.

Both dividends are payable October 1 to holders of record September 10.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—Hogs moved steady to 10 cents lower today but the top held at 7.65, the highest level since last September. The general steer market was steady to 25 cents lower, and spring lambs were bid 25 to 50 cents lower.

Encouraged by continued higher prices yesterday, hog loadings here topped previous estimates by 3,000. Best wholesale pork loins rose 1½ cents to 2 cents a pound. Average price for hogs yesterday reached 6.73, representing an increase of more than $1 this month.

Prime and weighty steers were in broad demand. The top was 13.10 with several loads bid at 13.15 and 13.25.

(United States Department of Agriculture).—SALABLE HOGS—Receipts, 11,000; total, 14,500; slow, generally steady to 10 lower than Tuesday's average; loss mainly on 250 pounds and up; bulk, good and choice, 190-240 pounds, 7.40@7.65; top, 7.65; 240-270 pounds, 7.15@7.55; 270-300 pounds, 6.75@7.35; sows, steady to mostly 10 lower; practical top, 6.50; most 300-350 pounds, 6.15@6.40; 350-400 pounds, 5.75@6.25; 400-450 pounds, 5.50@5.90; 450-500 pounds, 5.35@5.65.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Wholesale and retail demand for heavy woolen blankets improved today and sweaters sold in better quantity. Premiums were realized in some tight constructions of spun rayons for spot delivery. Sales of silk goods were small, but traders looked for a pickup in business shortly. Sales of gray goods were light.

Sugar Futures

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Domestic sugar futures retreated today as potential buyers awaited developments in raw and refined sugars. Final prices were unchanged to 3 points lower on sales of 2,900 tons. Uncertainty over legislation to extend the quota system for another year also hampered interest.

Raws were offered in fair quantity at 2.73 and 2.75 cents a pound and some sugar was believed available at concessions.

Refined Strups and Sugars, Inc., announced it would take 30-day business at 4.20 cents a pound for fine granulated prior to an advance to 4.25 at the close today. Prices locally remained at 4.20@4.35.

World sugar futures lost 1⅛ to 2 points. A disquieting factor was news Peru had removed restrictions against sugar exports. Sales totaled 1,750 tons. September, *.68; December, *.71. No. 3 rang as follows:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—Wheat values rose ⅝ cent at one stage today to the best level since August 15 but wound up unchanged to ⅜ lower compared with yesterday's finish. September wheat closed at 71⅛@71¾ and December at 74⅛@74⅝.

Profit taking, which offset buying of mills and local traders, kept the market under pressure most of the session and at times quotations were ½ cent below the previous close. Profit taking was encouraged by the fact that prices are about 5 cents above the year's lows of August 16.

Corn closed unchanged to ⅛ higher. September 61⅛@61½, December 57⅛@57¼; oats ¼ higher, rye ⅛ to ¼ up, soy beans ⅛ to ½ higher and lard 5 to 13 higher.

Prospects of a dictated settlement of Balkan affairs at least temporarily caused some dealers who bought on the growing crisis to liquidate. However, fear that an outbreak of hostilities in southeastern Europe, the continent's surplus producing region, might further complicate the world wheat situation was tempered by realization that the Danube may have little if any excess grain to sell this season anyway.

Reports of a higher loan rate for the new crop were regarded as premature. Dealers pointed out, however, that 75 per cent of the current parity price is about 91 cents. The average of prices received by farmers at local markets in July was about 62 cents, compared with 47.8 cents in July last year.

Soy beans rose about 2 cents at one stage, extending the advance started yesterday, attributed by brokers to a belief that the market had been oversold. Oats and rye were firm with corn, oats reflecting the small movement to market and light terminal stocks.

Power Output Drops in Week

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—Electric power output in the week ended August 24 dropped back from the near-record figure of the previous week, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Production of 2,570,610,000 kilo watt hours was down 1.4 per cent from the 2,606,122,000 in the week of August 17, but was 9.2 per cent above the outturn for the same week last year.

Utility circles attributed the setback in part to widespread cool weather which tended to curtail use of electric fans and other hot weather accessories in the electric appliance line.

Bendix Plans Vast Expansion

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—The Bendix Aviation Corporation plans to quadruple facilities for the production of aviation parts and equipment, as part of the national defense program, it was reported today.

All of its existing aviation parts plants will be expanded and in addition of at least one, possibly three or more entirely new plants in new locations will be erected.

Bendix Aviation Corporation has procured a commitment from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that it will make available up to $18,500,000 for additional plant construction.

Retroactive Taxes Seen Cutting Nets In Second Half

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—A. W. Robertson, chairman of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., said at a meeting of directors today the company's earnings in the second half of 1940 are likely to be affected substantially because of proposed retroactive new taxes, which could not be taken into account for the first half of the year.

Robertson declared as much as $500,000 monthly might have to be set aside in addition to the regular tax accruals of more than $1,000,000 monthly.

The chairman disclosed the company's total pay roll for the first six months was $51,000,000. The number of employes at present totals more than 52,000. The average monthly earnings of an employe have increased to $169, from $147 in the past year, he added.

P. U. C. Studies $10,000,000 Pepco Bonds

Issue to Finance Plant Expansions Debated at Hearing

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday took under advisement an application of the Potomac Electric Power Co. for authority to issue $10,000,000 in additional first mortgage bonds to finance proposed plant expansions.

The proposal was explained and examined at an all-day hearing before a joint meeting of the Securities & Exchange Commission and the P. U. C.

Members of both commissions raised the question frequently as to why the ower company does not issue common stock instead of new bonds.

To Spend $1,000,000

Neal brought out during his tsetimony that Pepco would expend $1,000,000 next year on facilities to furnish the naval powder plant at Indianhead, Md., with power in connection with the national defense program.

V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant of the Public Utilities Commission, submitted a chart to show that a share of common stock of the power company, based on earnings over a ten-year period, is now worth $831.19 as against a par value of $100.

He added that this estimate was "conservative." Previously, Fred Brandi, vice president of Dillon, Reed & Co., which will sell the new bond issue, expressed the opinion that Pepco common stock could be sold for 14 to 16 times its earning power. P. U. C. officials figured this to be approximately $1,000 a share.

All witnesses for the power company, including Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, insisted, however, that the bond market is much more advantageous at this time than the stock market.

Keech Urges Stocks

Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the P. U. C., suggested that the power company might be in a better position with proportionally larger capital stock as against bonds to meet competition, if in subsequent years radical changes occur in the power field.

The power company sold 15,000,000 worth of bonds in 1936, $5,000,000 in 1937, and $5,000,000 in 1939. The proposed $10,000,000 issue would be split between the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Mutual Life Insurance Co. Dillon, Reed & Co. will get $25,000 for making the sale, and Sullivan & Cromwell, of New York, will get $3,000 for legal work in connection with the issue.

Major Staples Resume Climb; Wheat Eases

Corn Shows Buoyancy; Cotton Rallies 10c To 25c a Bale

By the Associated Press

Most important commodities yesterday continued this week's gentle price rise with new gains in futures markets.

Main holdout was wheat at Chicago. The grain climbed more than ½ cent at one time but retreated later to a final range unchanged to ¾ of a cent a bushel lower. Prospects of a dictated settlement in the latest Balkan crisis caused some selling. Corn ended unchanged to ⅛ higher.

Copper improved in line with moderate demand for spot metal. Coffee canceled most of Tuesday's rather severe losses. Hides were again a strong spot with outside gains of 1/3 cent a pound. Also higher were silk, cocoa and cottonseed oil.

Sugar dipped after improvement yesterday on news of a quota cut. Lead, wool tops and rubber were uneven.

Wholesale Prices Of Beef and Pork Continue Upsurge

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP).—Prices for wholesale cuts of beef and pork advanced today, the top for choice cattle going to $13.25, the highest since May, 1939. Top hogs remained at yesterday's peak of $7.65, the highest since last September.

Best wholesale pork loins advanced 1½ cents to 25 cents a pound, the highest since the middle of last September. Today's quotation represented an advance of 8 cents from the beginning of the month and doubled the price reached in June during the hog price slump.

Although top loins of beef held at 35 cents a pound, higher prices were asked for cheaper loins, which advanced ½ cent to 20½ a pound. The top price for choice veal yesterday rose to 20 cents.

The strength of meat prices was due to improved consumer demand as a result of cool weather and improved buying power as well as lowered meat production.

Herr Addresses Vegetable Raisers On Cost Problem

Philadelphia, Aug. 28 (AP).—There's nothing wrong with the Nation's produce markets that a "year or two of prosperity" won't cure, says Horace Herr, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National League of Wholesale Fresh Fruit and Vegetables, Inc.

He told the convention of the Vegetable Growers Association of America yesterday that:

"Producers finding it impossible to get back even the cost of production complain it costs too much to distribute. A year or two of prosperity would silence the question."

Dr. H. P. Rasmussen, of Cornell University, said the housewife spends 32 cents of her vegetable dollar to buy potatoes which "still are the most important vegetable in the diet of the American family."

Rooney Gets High U. S. Steel Post

New York, Aug. 28 (AP).—George W. Rooney has been appointed comptroller of U. S. Steel Corporation effective October 1, Irving S. Olds, chairman, announced today. Rooney, 46-year-old Pittsburgh accountant who has been with the steel company since 1930, succeeds Adolph W. Vogt, who died last night.

Foreign Markets

London, Aug. 28 (AP).—British government bonds and gold stocks stayed in front of a steady securities market today. Extremely curtailed activity was attributed in part to increasing severity of air raids. Industrial leaders held up well and most base metal issues were unchanged. Oils wavered and domestic rail tended downward in view of the uncertainty concerning an increase in fares. Brazilian loans improved in the foreign bond market.

Liverpool, Aug. 28 (AP).—Cotton futures advanced 7 to 18 points today, influenced by steadiness in the Egyptian market. Contracts came out slowly.

SO THERE'S MY CASE, CHIEF— I KNOW AMEL PAID THOSE MEN TO BURN THE FACTORY—
AND YOU HAVE THE NUMBERS OF THE BILLS HE PAID THEM—
BUT THEY GOT AWAY— AND NOW AMEL KNOWS ALL ABOUT ME!
CHEER UP—WE'VE GOT AMEL—BUT TO MAKE OUR CASE STICK IN COURT, WE'VE GOT TO GET THOSE MEN, TOO—
THAT'S OUR JOB NOW— TO FIND THOSE MEN—THEN WE'LL HAVE THE WHOLE RING—
COME ON—WE START AT THE STAGE DOOR!

Today's Radio Highlights

1 p. m., WMAL—Now that women have had the voting privilege for 20 years, Margaret Culkin Banning believes that this is a good time to take stock of women's place in national freedom for the past two decades.

4:15, WMAL—The Saratoga Cup, sixteenth running of this closing feature at America's premier track, finds Tommy Daley, of Maryland, at the N. B. C. mike to follow the winner around the curves.

7, WOL—Third and final reminder of this Mutual change: Wythe Williams is taking Fulton Lewis, jr.'s former quartet hour Tuesday and Thursday evenings, while the latter is now heard regularly over WOL at 7:15.

7:30, WRC—Henry Aldrich has been boasting to his new girl of his prowess at wrestling. Poor Hank.

7:30, WOL—Ted Lewis, Songbird Kitty Carlisle and Banjoist Eddie Peabody are heard on that up-and-upping variety hour, In Chicago Tonight.

7:30, WJSV—Mrs. Evelyn Fayrer Turner, chief escort of the United States committee for the care of European children who has just completed a voyage on the British liner Samaria, discusses her duties of shipboard mother as one of the features of Strange as It Seems.

8, WRC—Helen Jepson, John Garfield, Joseph Schildkraut and Mary Healy are the entertainment field's representatives on the Music Hall variety hour.

8:30, WOL—Football season begins: Mutual airs the seventh annual battle between the College All-Stars and the Green Bay Packers on Soldiers' Field in Chicago. Bob Elson and Guy Savage do the airing. After the first hour, Mutual switches to the Coliseum at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, for former Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's speech accepting the Democratic nomination for the Vice Presidency, which will come at 9:30, lasting a half-hour. Then Mutual switches back to the All-Star Football game.

9, WRC—'Tis Bobby Burns-Rudy Vallee is burlesquing this night with Peg La Centra playing that sweetheart, Jean.

9:15, WJSV and WMAL (WRC at 9:30)—Representative Marvin Jones, of Texas, introduces Henry A. Wallace when the former Cabinet member accepts the Democratic Vice Presidential nomination.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"Isn't he here yet?—Have you told my wife I'm waiting?"

Listen! with Glynn

You people who have always had the desire to have a nice pretty skunk as a pet, but who have been inhibited for one reason or another—mostly one reason—can begin to cheer up.

WJSV, always at the forefront in superior public service, is to bring you the answer today at 2:45 p. m., when Elinor Lee conducts a pet clinic on the air in connection with the national convention at the Mayflower of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Three of the country's most eminent animal medicos will answer questions put to them about the care and feeding of pets by a group of Washington children Mrs. Lee has assembled. One of those pets, of all things, is a skunk which has been rendered practically unskunk-like, thanks to a veterinary's operation on its offending olfactory feature.

And the visiting vets will explain just how it's done, among other things. It seems that skunks, except for that one notable unsocial aspect, are playful and affectionate and just the thing to have around the house.

Colleges Likely To Refund Fees Of Conscripts

3% of Students Estimated to Be In the First Draft

Special rulings on the refunding of school fees to students who are called in the draft are under consideration in most of the local universities, it was indicated yesterday.

Although raising of the minimum age from 18 to 21 in the present bill has greatly reduced the number of college men who will be affected, it is estimated that approximately 3 per cent will be in the first group called for training.

Harvey T. Casbarian, comptroller at the University of Maryland, said although the matter of refunds under emergency was left to the board of regents, it was certain every effort would be made to reduce, as far as possible, the expense to a student who had entered the university and then was drafted. A complete refund except for room and board for the period he had been in school probably would be given, he said.

American U. Would Refund

Casbarian indicated that everything would be done to meet the situation from the financial standpoint and to make it as easy as possible for the student to resume his university education later.

At American University, where there are already generous rules on refunds, these probably will not be altered. There, a deferred payment plan calls for one-third of the tuition by September 20, another third by November 1 and the final payment by December 1. Under this plan, a student called in the draft would have paid little over the amount covering the period he had been in school. In case full tuition had been paid in advance, it would be refunded on the same basis, according to Herbert E. Walter, business manager.

Full Quota Expected

There was no indication there of anyone's staying out of school because of the prospect of the draft, he said.

Dean John E. Grattan, of Georgetown University, said the present practice at Georgetown is to refund the amount advanced for board if a student drops out. No specific action has yet been taken regarding those who may be included in the draft.

Catholic University has taken no action, although the matter is under consideration. George Washington University also is considering it, although no new rulings have yet been announced.

Goodwill Industries to Invite Groups To Visit Plant Aiding the Handicapped

By Suzanne

WITH THE APPROACH of the club season, Mrs. Miller Hickerson, promotion supervisor for the Goodwill Industries, is preparing to invite local organizations to visit the industries, 1218 New Hampshire avenue, and hold meetings there if they desire.

Goodwill is one of the institutions every resident of Washington should know about. It is the place that provides work for handicapped persons, who recondition used furniture, clothing and other articles that are sold in the Goodwill store. This serves the double purpose of giving jobs to the workers and providing necessities at low prices to the store patrons.

The function of Mrs. Hickerson's department is to help spread the good news of Goodwill's service. Cooperation from the public just naturally comes when people understand what goes on there.

No more effective way of getting acquainted with it could be devised than that of having a meeting there, with a trip through the plant. Visitors often leave feeling their own burdens lighter after a word or two with the cheerful workers who earn their livelihood at Goodwill.

Clubs can arrange for luncheon meetings in the cafeteria, where luncheon is served at cost, or they can take an afternoon trip through the plant and afterward be served a simple tea as guests of the industries.

Mrs. Hickerson will also speak before club groups at their regular meeting places, bringing motion pictures and telling of the work carried on at Goodwill.

There is also a group known as the District visitors, under the direction of Mrs. Grace Kizer, who call to thank contributors to the Goodwill Industries for their donations and spread the news of Goodwill's work. During the first six months of this year eight District visitors made 27,452 calls and placed 3,191 Goodwill bags with families not previously in the list of contributors.

Women have much to do with helping the project, for they are usually the ones who fill the bags and send them back to the plant. Old clothing, bedding, furniture, books — anything usable in a household—is welcomed as contributions.

There is also the Goodwill Guild, of which Mrs. Samuel Herrick is president, and the Pantry Shelf Committee, headed by Mrs. Barnet Nover — both women's groups which cooperate in aiding the project and its workers.

A Goodwill bag filled by the average household means from four to eight hours cash-paid employment for some handicapped worker, and each bag gives some employment to about 34 different persons.

CANCEL MEETING—The last in the series of summer dinner meetings at the Women's City Club, which was to have been held tonight, has been canceled due to illness in the family of the chairman, Mrs. Dorothy K. Butler.

Y. W. C. A. ACTIVITIES—Open house was held last night at the pool of the "Y. W." with stunts, relays and a fashion show. Alison Claflin, of Wellesley, assistant in the junior summer program, gave an exhibition of the swimming waltz.

A special week-end is planned at Kamp Kahlert over Labor Day. The closing banquet, water and land sports are scheduled for guests. Miss Henriette Howard is chairman of the committee in charge of the banquet. Miss Rae McMasters and Miss Anne Davis are the assisting counsellors.

PLAN CELEBRATION — The District of Columbia, Daughters of the American Revolution, will observe the 153rd anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, September 17, at 8 p. m. at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. Jessie Scott Arnold is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, Mrs. Lois Marshall Hicks, Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke and Mrs. Brinkley E. Callicott.

General Almazan In Baltimore To Visit Family

Baltimore, Aug. 28 (AP).—Gen. Juan Andreau Almazan, independent candidate for the Mexican presidency in the recent election, arrived in Baltimore this afternoon for a visit with his wife, daughter and brother, and turned aside all questions with the assertion that he's "only a tourist."

The towering, broad-shouldered general said he had no plans for the immediate future, but hoped to visit in New York and Chicago before returning to Mexico.

He declined to discuss the Mexican political situation and declared he had "no idea" whether he had been successful in his campaign for the presidency. The Mexican Congress will announce the result within a few weeks, he indicated.
